In casting his dissenting vote, Cahill said the trust fund is not "the proper vehicle" to promote affordable housing in Quincy because the $100,000 will handicap the business community. He said the threshold "doesn't sound like a lot (of money) but it can be the difference between opening and not opening a business.

"We can't make business unaffordable," he said.

Cahill also said the $100,000 threshold would not generate enough money to seriously help the situation and would at the same time unfairly impact the small business owner in Quincy.

In voting against the order, Cheney said the threshold for the fee should be much higher, such as $500,000 or at the very least, $250,000.

"I feel it's a slice from small business. I am very concerned about the effects on the business community," Cheney said, adding, "I think you're killing the goose that laid the golden egg."

Although there are no specific programs earmarked for the funding, the fund would be used for affordable housing programs only, Chretien said. These include down payments for first-time home buyers to rental assistance.

At a meeting last month, Chreiten pointed out that the fund would be structured so that money would be paid back with interest upon the sale on a house or a part of the appreciation would be given back to the fund.

Moreover, the spending of the trust fund would be approved anually by the City Council and be administered by the city's Planning Department.

The councillors that voted for the fund agreed that the fund is a necessary step in alleviating the affordable housing problem in Quincy.

Council President Patricia Toland, who commented on the affordable housing crisis across the nation, said, "We really have to face the problem and this is a way to start."

Ward 4 James Sheets, who said this is an age of "special needs," voiced his support saying if the federal and state governments aren't going to give the matter the attention it deserves, then the local government must address it.

"I believe we have to find special ways to deal with these special needs. We must find balance and I think we've done as good a job on this proposal as we can."

Councillor Stephen McGrath also stood behind the fund. "We all want affordable housing but the question is, who is going to do it.

"I think one percent is a good compromise. This ordinance isn't going to solve all the affordable housing problems in Quincy but at least it's a start," he said.

Ward 6 Thomas Nutley also voted in favor of the fund, but said he was "very distressed" that his amendment calling for the fund to

Supports $40,000 Cap On Outside Salaries For Legislators

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

A news story in the Feb. 28 Patriot Ledger dealt with a proposal by Attorney General James Shannon to place a $40,000-a-year cap on outside salaries for state legislators. It's a great idea which should become law, but I doubt that it will.

One local state representative who reportedly makes $45,000 a year as a legislator and $80,000 in outside income, for a total of $125,000 per year, immediately started bellyaching. He claimed that limiting him to a total of $85,000 a year would be "absurd" and that he couldn't stay in the legislature under those conditions. Are we to assume that he couldn't support his family on $85,000 a year?

For his information, most of us in his district live on a lot less than that, and for that matter, many of us would be delighted to earn just the $45,000 a year that we pay him, ostensibly to be a full-time representative. On our "absurd" salaries we manage to afford food, clothing and shelter as well as paying the sky-high taxes that he and his fellow legislators saddle us with.

If politicians are extravagant in their personal affairs, it's no wonder they're extravagant with our tax dollars. If they can't survive on what we pay them, let them get out and make room for people who can. It's high time that ordinary citizens took back control of government from bloated bureaucrats and larded legislators. Public service is meant to be a public trust, not a public trough.

include residential projects was not considered. He offered the amendment at a prior council meeting but it failed to receive a second and thus was never discussed.

"I don't think it does enough. We're getting a thin ham sandwich when we need steak and potatoes. But a thin ham sandwich is better than nothing but I want steak and potatoes.

"The fact that we're restricting this to business strikes me as discrimination. I wanted to get more out of this but I don't see us getting more out of it.

"I wish I could have broadened this amendment to all construction. We could have done more and spread the load," Nutley said.

DO YOU NEED A LIFE INSURANCE AGENT?

No, but.....

You can buy insurance through the mails, by going into some savings banks, or over the counter in some department stores depending on what your state regulations permit.

Considering all the life insurance policies that are purchased each year, you will find that the great majority are purchased through life insurance agents, and for justifiable reasons.

Agents have proven themselves by passing state exams to receive their licenses. Also, they go through continuous educational updating throughout their entire careers. In addition, they have the expertise of their companies' home office personnel who specialize in all facets of legalities and investments, and they have access to the aid that massive banks of computer can supply.

With the onset of financial planning, agents are the best qualified people to help you sort out your requirements, and make the necessary recommendations.

Sheets Going 'Person-To-Person'

Jim Sheets acknowledges that some political observers have cast him in the role of an underdog in this year's mayoral race but it doesn't bother him.

It doesn't bother him because he doesn't consider himself an underdog. And his supporters and worker's don't either.

SHEETS

"We don't concede a precinct to anyone anywhere across the city," he says, "It's not where you start but where you finish."

Does he think he can win?

"I wouldn't be in it, if I didn't," he says.

Without mentioning names, he predicts:

"The two candidates who are nominated will be the two candidates the people trust and feel confident with -- the two candidates the people can identify with."

And again, obviously, he feels he will be one of them.

He sees the election close right now as he and the other three major candidates -- Councillor Steve McGrath, former Mayor-Councillor Joseph LaRaia and businessman Peter O'Connell begin to step on the gas pedal in their campaigns.

"Every vote is going to count," he says. "By summer, two or three candidates might pull ahead, leaving one or two behind. By primary day, the voters will have a clear choice."

He thinks the people are going to look the candidates over very carefully this year with no incumbent in the picture.

"And," he says, "they are going to make up their own minds. They are not going to be dictated to by anyone. You don't build a campaign on endorsements from political figures. You build a campaign on the people."

He had over 700 at his campaign kickoff.

Sheets says he will conduct a "person-to-person" campaign.

"And we are going to travel the high road," he promised. "It's going to be a positive campaign.

"I'm not going to be out there knocking the other candidates. But if one attacks, I'll respond. People can judge the other candidates, by what they say.

They can judge me by what I say.

"I'm going to speak out on the issues. But first I am going to get a handle on the issues. I'm going to talk with the people and listen to them. That is how you really identify the issues. Then I will speak out on them and there will be no doubt where I stand."

The sludge facility at the Quincy Shipyard is already very much a king-sized issue, he says.

"Wherever I go -- not just in Quincy Point -- people talk about it and are very concerned about it. This is the City of Presidents. People don't want it to be known as the sludge capital of Massachusetts."

He thinks the city left this important property unprotected when General Dynamics indicated it was closing the yard and would be selling the land.

"We should have put together some kind of a public-private sector joint venture," he says. "This way we could have tried to protect the shipbuilding industry there and come up with a private venture acceptable to the people.

"We should not give up fighting the sludge facility. We should study the legal aspects. Get the EPA involved. Maybe the land is too small for a sludge facility. We may possibly still get the thing overturned."

Sheets is in his 16th year as Ward 4 City Councillor. He served as state representative from 1975 to 1978.

In 1978 he made a run for the Congressional seat vacated by Congressman James Burke. He finished third in the primary, behind eventual winner Brian Donnelly and Pat McCarthy.

Sheets, who started teaching history and government at Quincy Junior college in 1961, is now chairman of the Division of Social and Public Services at that school.

Some of Sheets former QJC students who worked for him in his first run for the Ward 4 seat in 1973 are coming back to help him in this year's mayoral race.

KAUFMAN

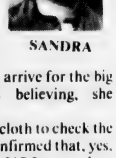
One of his former students is Ron Kaufman who worked for him in that first election and went on, you might say, to bigger things.

Kaufman was New England coordinator for George Bush's presidential campaign and is now one of his top aides in the White House in charge of appointments.

Sheets and Kaufman were scheduled to have a reunion in Washington today (Thursday). Sheets is going down to do some research work at the Library of Congress. While there he and Kaufman will have lunch together.

Sheets' campaign for mayor will be tailored along his previous campaigns: People oriented. Talk with the people.

"We're going to knock on every door in the city," he says. "We're going to find out what the people want and what they don't want."



The way Sheets sees it, this year the bottom line question for the candidates as far as the people are concerned is:

"What are you going to do for the city and for us if you are the next mayor of Quincy?"

□

SOMEONE HAS SUGGESTED that since Mayor Frank McCauley, isn't running for re-election this year, maybe his wife, Sandra, should.

"Why not?," muses McCauley. "She's a lot more popular than me."

SANDRA

It was also noted that Sandra is pretty thrifty and observing and that no one is going to pull the wool over her eyes.

Sandra made the Boston press last week as a shopper at the reopening of Sears at the South Shore Plaza.

She was one of the first shoppers to arrive for the big price reduction policy. Seeing is believing, she apparently feels.

She peeled a sales sticker off a tablecloth to check the new price against the old price. And confirmed that, yes, indeed, the price was down -- from $17.96 two days before to $13.96 at the reopening.

Maybe Sandra should run for mayor. Maybe it's time for a woman mayor. If Sandra is checking up on Sears you could imagine what a close eye she would keep on Paul Levy and the MWRA.

□

THERE MAY SOON be a new candidate for School Committee. Judith Brams of Atlantic St., North Quincy, is seriously thinking of running and could make an official announcement shortly.

She's been active in the Squantum School PTO and the City-Wide Parents Council.

Apparently this is no sudden decision. She has been attending School Committee meetings as a parent the past three years.

□

JOSEPH SHEA, who was executive secretary to former Mayor Walter Hannon is off and running for the Ward 4 City Council seat.

SHEA

Shea officially announced his candidacy this week. But he has already filed the names of his election committee at City Hall.

The committee: Chairman Mario Traficante, Treasurer John Barr, Bernice Mader, Democratic State Committeewoman and Ward 4 Democratic Committee chairman; Gail Kilcommons, Thomas F. Burke, Roma Vangel, Robert Smollett, Patrick J. Flaherty, Diane Cooper, Robert Tufts, Karen Gillis, Robert P. Johnson and William T. Draicchio.

All parents are urged and welcome to attend.

George Alcott:

He Keeps The Pumps And Scales Honest For You

The next time you fill your gasoline tank, buy a pound of lunch meat, think of George Alcott.

He owns no filling station or grocery store, nor does he expect to be a consumer advocate, a la Ralph Nader. But he has a very heavy hand in making sure City of Quincy residents get what they pay for.

Alcott, a Squantum resident is the city's Inspector of Weights & Measures.

Since taking the job eight years ago, he has been a one-man insurance policy for fairness in the marketplace.

Surprise is one element on his side. He makes up his own schedule, varies his once a year checks at each establishment, and strikes with a thoroughness designed to keep them guessing.

"Most people are honest, they don't fool with the pumps or scales," says Alcott, who is empowered to issue citations and shut down faulty equipment. "Knowing that I'm coming around...that makes a difference too."

From the filling station with 17 pumps — a half day job in itself, Alcott stands as a corrective measure. He bridges the gap between a trusting but oft un-knowing public and the equipment malfunction or miscalibration, intentional or not, that could rip off consumers.

If he finds an error outside the acceptable range, Alcott red tags the machine, making it illegal to operate. If he finds the tagged machine still in use, he can cite the establishment for a fine of between $50 and $300 as determined by a district court magistrate.

A broken fuel pump seal is cause for an automatic fine. The tiny lead seal, affixed to the pumps inner machinery by Alcott guarantees the fuel pump is tamper free. A slight adjustment of the pin it immobilizes could cause the pump to give as little as four gallons of fuel while showing five gallons on the meter says Alcott.

Using a special five gallon test measure, Alcott extracts a sample of fuel from each pump. The test measure is calibrated in cubic inch gradiants. One gallon contains 231 cubic inches and the acceptable five gallon measuring range is six cubic inches high or low, so the difference can legally vary about one half cup either way.

Minus 30 cubic inches was his worst lowside pump reading, plus 20 was the worst high side reading.

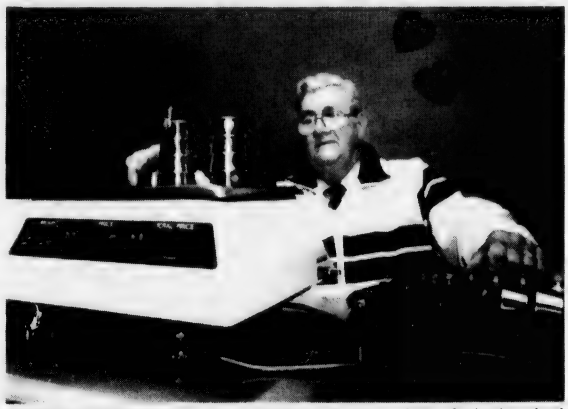
"When I notify them that the number is over, they usually get it fixed fast," says Alcott.

After returning the fuel to its underground tank, so as not to foul up inventory, Alcott uses a calculator to make sure the price on the pump is accurate. A one-penny margin is allowed for the five gallon purchase. He once caught a 25-cents difference.

At grocery stores, Alcott uses an attache case carrying 30 pounds of weights. He starts with a one-ounce weight and adds them in increments to 15 pounds. Food scale margin of error is tight, .01 pound for weights of 1 to 4 pounds, graduating up to .04 pound for weights of 20 to 30 pounds.

Food scales must also survive the shift test. Alcott moves the stacked weights from the middle of the scale to the corners. The load must consistently weigh the same.

Fifty pound weights are used to measure platform scales. Alcott's expertise helps the women, infants, and childrens program keep track of babies weights, and hence their nutritional needs.



He also monitors the scales used to weigh high school wrestlers. "Those boys sacrifice everything to make certain weights," Alcott says. "It's a shame if the scales they use are out of whack."

The Inspector himself is inspected. In addition to the tests that include each seminar he attends Alcott must send his weights and fuel test measure to Boston once a year for inspection.

"One little dent in that test measure would throw the whole calibration off, and so would dropping and chipping a weight," says Alcott who takes pride in his enforcement role.

"With the price of gasoline, even your teaspoons count," Alcott says. If you keep four teaspoons out of every gallon, at the end of the year your average pump has cheated the public out of $1000.

Alcott is also the Sealer of Weights and Measures on a part time basis for the Town of Braintree.

GEORGE ALCOTT, Quincy's inspector of weights and measures, checks a food scale at a local supermarket.

'Quincy, MTA Need Each Other'

March 9-15
27 Years Ago

Thomas J. McLernon, general manager of the Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA), told the St. Joseph's Holy Name Society that Quincy and the MTA "need each other."

"The MTA is straitjacketed within the confines of a 14-community area," he said. "It can stagnate within those very confines."

McLernon forecast a $5 million reduction in the $20 million annual deficit in 1962, adding that "a manageable, almost pain-free deficit" of $8 million can be brought about.

KENNEDY SEES TRADE BENEFITS

Edward M. Kennedy, assistant Suffolk County district attorney, just back from a tour of European Common Market countries, said Quincy has nothing to fear from lower U.S. trade barriers.

He predicted that the Fore River Shipyard would benefit from a trade expansion act since "it appears reasonable that provisions should be made to provide American-built vessles to handle it."

KNIGHTS VOTE RECONSTRUCTION

The North Quincy Knights of Columbus 59ers Association voted to reconstruct Council headquarters on Hollis Ave., a project Grand Knight John J. Sullivan estimated would cost $56,000.

Tuna Tomato Sauce
Quick And Easy

When I want to make something easy and tasty but don't feel like hanging around the kitchen for too long, I cook tomato sauce with tuna fish (especially during lent). Sometimes I use the dark meat and other times, the light, and sometimes I use both at the same time. You take your pick. I also like to use whole tomatoes, but crushed tomatoes are fine. It's just a matter of preference.

QUICY AND EASY
TUNA TOMATO SAUCE
Two cans of tuna fish (light or dark)

1 can of tomato paste
1 can of tomatoes (whole or crushed)
1 medium onion
1 or two garlic cloves
1 Tbsp of basil
(or parsley, oregano or favorite seasoning)
Salt & pepper to taste

In hot oil, saute the onion and garlic. Add the tomato paste, the tomatoes and the seasonings. Cook for about 15 minutes. Add the tuna and the mushrooms if you are using them. Cook for about an hour covered most of the time, stirring frequently. The sauce goes well with linguine or any other thin spaghetti.

Auto Body Shop Gets Used Car License

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from the George Taylor Auto Body Shop, 1188 Sea St., for a Motor II license to sell used cars.

The shop currently holds a repair shop license with restrictions of the construction of a blockade fence and the operating hours of 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Atty. John Haddigan told the board that James Ryan, who runs the shop, was requesting the Motor II license so that he could buy one or two cars at a time at auction to keep his employees busy during the slower work months.

Ryan told the board that the cars will be placed on the side of the building and shielded by the blockade fence.

Councillor Michael Cheney has not been contacted, Ryan told the board.

The board noted that no complaints have ever been issued about the shop and granted the license, restricted to two cars, subject to the approval of Councillor Cheney

Joseph Shea Ward 4 City Council Candidate

Joseph P. Shea of 55 Tinson Rd., West Quincy, who ran for Ward 4 councillor 20 years ago, has decided to again seek the seat this fall.

In announcing his candidacy, Shea, 43, said he is concerned about the quality of life in Ward 4 and addressed the issues of development, traffic, flooding and education in the area.

Shea, who served as executive secretary to Mayor Walter Hannon, received his bachelor's degree from Suffolk University in science and government and has studied public administration at the graduate level at Suffolk.

He is employed as a senior pension representative for an insurance company and is affiliated with several community organizations.

"As a lifelong Quincy resident of Quincy, I feel my experience in government and as a businessman along with my work as a community activist in Quincy helps qualify me to serve as your ward councillor.

On development, Shea said, "Outrageous development has taken place in the last 20 years in our ward which has seriously threatened the quality of life for all residents of Ward 4. The encroachment on our residential neighborhoods has been for the most part unplanned, disorganized and sometimes even reckless.

"The sewerage, drainage, flooding and traffic problems created by this over development must be addressed. As your ward councillor I would propose that no commercial or multi-residential building be constructed until such time as all water and sewer lines are brought up to code or declared capable of handling the increase in volume brought on by the new development.

"I would further propose that the city devise a better system of inspecting and monitoring all future building and development. Compliance to federal, state and city codes must be more closely adhered to," Shea said.

Furthermore, Shea said, "I will also propose that Ward 4 be rezoned to be more sensitive to the residential character of our community and call for neighborhood meetings to be held to address the concerns of all our citizens regarding the rezoning of their neighborhoods," adding that both Ward 1 and Ward 6 have been rezoned in the recent past with the results appearing favorable.

Regarding traffic, Shea said, "Many of our streets have become safety hazards due to the overcrowding and volume of traffic. Water St., Copeland St. and particularly Willard St. are of major concern with the future development of Yankee Heights, a 129 acre site (adjacent to the former city landfill and the Blue Hill reservation), the recent Blueberry Ledge condos (adjacent to the St. Moritz complex) and with the recent announcement of the closing of Antonelli Iron Works, travel on Willard St. will become almost impossible.

As Ward 4 councillor, Shea said he would "offer effective representation to ensure that the recommendations from the recent Quincy Traffic 2000 study be updated and implemented to address these issues."

He also said he would work with the Quincy Police Department in enforcing the parking ordinances of the city, particularly in the residential area of Ward 4.

As for flooding, Shea said, "For too long, we have all observed the flooding in Ward 4. I am familiar with the Army Corps of Engineers' study of October dealing with the Furnace Brook. Why hasn't it been implemented."

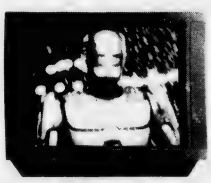
If elected, Shea said he "would call for the implementation of this report and the immediate release of state funds earmarked for the West Quincy area affected by flooding.

"I would also work to create a better working relationship between the city and the MDC in the Furnace Brook area," he said.

Shea also said he is concerned over issues regarding the MWRA, public safety, education and helicopter service from Crown Colony.

"There are no simple answers to these issues. I promise a common sense approach to these complex problems.

"The 1990s will bring our city many new challenges, both financial and environmental. I believe with my education and experience I can meet these challenges.



"I will work to preserve the residential character of our neighborhoods and work to improve the quality of life for all residents of Ward 4," he said.

A key to Shea's campaign will be personal contact with the voters. He said he will be going door-to-door and having coffee hours and neighborhood gatherings to personally discuss the issues with Ward 4 voters.

"I want to hear what the voters have to say and I want the voters to know where I stand on the issues," Shea said.

He is married to the former Josephine E. Brillo and is the father of Amy Shea, 18, and Joseph Brillo, 15.

'Clinging To Past' Sermon Topic At Wollaston Congregational

"Clinging to the Past" will be the sermon by Rev. Elden D.J. Zuern, pastor, on Sunday, March 12, at Wollaston Congregational Church. A hymn sing at 9:45 a.m. will precede the morning worship.

Kurt Olson will be lay scripture reader, and David Mauriello will be acolyte. Alice King will be the greeter, and Gilda and Adam Knowles, ushers.

Donald A. Reade, organist, will accompany the senior choir and congregation in singing "My Song Is Love Unknown" and "Forth in Thy Name, O Lord, I Go."

Nursery care is provided for infants and toddlers. Church School for grades 1-12 meets at 10 a.m.

At 5 p.m. the third combined Lenten program will be held at Wollaston Baptist Church, with "Elements of Christian Devotion" as the theme. The Rev. Llewellyn Smith, minister of the East Milton Congregational Church, will speak on "Ministry." Supper will be served at the host church and reservations should be made through the church office. Other churches participating are Wollaston Congregational Church and First Baptist Church of Milton.

At the recent annual meeting of Wollaston Congregational Church, it was voted to establish an official organ fund where contributions may be made for the repair or replacement of the sanctuary organ.

Saturday, March 11, at 6:30 p.m. the Singles and Doubles will have a Pot Luck Supper, Hawaiian Style, in the social hall. Theme for the evening is "Hawaii in March."

Saturday, March 18, the Youth Fellowship will hold its monthly dance from 7 to 10:30 p.m. in the social hall.

'The Gift of Pain' Bethany Sermon Topic

"The Gift of Pain" will be the sermon of the Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, at both the 9 a.m. chapel service and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary, Sunday, at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts.

Emphasis at both services will be on Christian response to world wide human need, including emergency relief for victims of earthquakes, drought, flood, and war, as well as long range goals of self-development in providing tools, seeds, wells and ungrading methods of agriculture and crop cultivation.

"One Great Hour of Sharing" will be observed to aid in raising funds for these world concerns.

Jean C. Smart will be lay scripture reader in the chapel, and Eleanor L. Shattuck in the sanctuary. At the 10 a.m. service, Beth Stiles will present a moment of Mission Outreach concern. During this service also, the Chancel Choir directed by organist Charles J. Blue, Sr. will sing "O Savior of the World" by John Goss and Cecil Gates' arrangement of "The Lord's Prayer."

The worship service will be broadcast "live" at 10 a.m. over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Sunday School for pre-school through 8th grade meets from 10 to 11 a.m., supervised by Pamela Ford Curran. Nursery care and a toddler class are also provided.

At 11 a.m. there is a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. Persons from the community are invited to attend the worship and fellowship hours and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

Monday, March 13, Rev. Arnold from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the parish house, will lead a Bible study on "Easter and Beyond" dealing with Jesus' resurrection and appearances and the implications for our death and hope for life beyond. The Bible study course is free and open to the public.

Wednesday, March 15, the 7 a.m. Lenten devotional service will be led by Rev. Joel F. Huntington, who will speak on "Blood and Water." Heather McLain will read the scriptures and offer the morning prayer. A light continental breakfast will follow the 30-minute service. The public is invited.

Additional information on Bethany's ministries and programs may be obtained from the church office at 479-7300.

The Most Rev. Daniel Hart, Brockton region, will administer the Sacrament of Confirmation on Friday, April 21 at 7:30 at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

'God's New Covenant' Squantum First Church Topic

Sunday, at First Church Squantum, worship begins at 10:30 a.m.

A special Covenant Sunday communion service was held last week, with Rev. Dr. Eugene Langevin, pastor, leading the worship. Seated with the pastor at the communion table were Barbara Walter, Kate MacRitchie, Steve Williams, Grace Holmes and Richard Hendry, deacons. Joan Hansen, church moderator, read the scripture.

Dr. Langevin preached on the subject, "God's New Covenant." The Chancel Choir was accompanied by organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson.

The two Lenten programs continue. Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m., the group discussed "Tell Me a Riddle" in a film series, "Human Nature and the Christian Gospel." On March 15, the subject will be "Tender Mercies."

Wednesday night the Bible study meets at 7:30 p.m. The subject last week was "The New Creation," led by Dr. Langevin and based on the life, travels and writings of the apostle Paul.

Children's Reading At Wollaston Congregational

During March, a reading group for young children is being held at the Wollaston Congregational Church, corner of Lincoln and Winthrop Aves.

The schedule, which started March 6, will continue on Mondays from 9 to 10 a.m.

Future stories include March 13, "Leprechons", March 20, "Peter Cottontail", March 27, "The Little Engine That Could."

The story will be read and activities related to the story will take place. There is no charge. A parent or other adult must accompany the child. Ages five years and younger are welcome.

More information may be obtained by calling 471-3121.

35 To Receive First Communion At Blessed Sacrament

Papa Gino's Presents $3,000 Check To Boy Scouts

Mike Albrecht, General Manager of Papa Gino's, 1 Beale St., Wollaston, recently presented a check for $3,000 to the Greater Boston Council of Boy Scouts. Scout Executive Erik L. Nystrom accepted the check on behalf of the Boy Scouts.

Papa Gino's employees raised the money last summer from the sale of coupon books at their restaurants throughout New England and New York. A total of over $251,000 was raised in the "Children's Appeal," for youth oriented organizations such as Boy Scouts.

The Boy Scout Council plans to use the money for summer camp scholarships for local scouts.

Learning About AIDS Evening Program At Bethany Church

This coming Sunday evening at Bethany Church there will be a program focusing on the issue of AIDS from 7-9 p.m. in the Allen Parlor.

The program is a continuation of efforts at Bethany to better understand the devastating illness, how to cope with the fears and judgement surrounding it, and how Christians can minister with those persons and their families who have the disease.

The program will be moderated by Janet K. Dorman, who is on the staff of Interfaith Aids Ministry. In addition there will be a panel of three persons who will help shape the discussion— Joseph Doherty, case worker at Quincy Mental Health, Dianne Mahoney, R.N. on the staff of a Boston hospital, and also a young man who has AIDS.

The program will begin with informal presentations by panel members. This will be followed by an opportunity for questions and open discussion. The program will end with scripture readings and prayers led by the Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister of Bethany Church. Afterwards there will be light refreshments.

Those who seek to better understand the reality of AIDS as it exists in the community are invited to attend.

Bethany is located at the intersection of Coddington and Spear Sts., in Quincy Center. For further information call the church office at 479-7300.

SUN PUBLISHER Henry Bosworth, his wife, Dorothy; Norma Finnegan, her husband Martin (Marty) Finnegan, Quincy Sun Citizen of The Year recipient; Mayor Francis McCauley who was a speaker and Senator Paul Harold at reception Sunday at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center. Harold, who was a nominee, was the emcee.

Bosworth told Finnegan the clock was symbolic "it symbolizes that you always have time for those in need."

A companion presentation, a framed copy of a special Quincy Sun Page One telling of Finnegan's selection as Citizen of The Year was made to Finnegan by Robert Bosworth, assistant editor of The Sun. Extra copies were distributed to those in attendance.

The program was videotaped by Quincy Sun Channel 26. Excerpts were shown Monday and Tuesday on Channel 26 and the program will be shown in its entirety at a later date. A videotape copy wil be presented to Finnegan as a memento.

Mayor McCauley praised Finnegan's work in helping youngsters to fight alcohol and drugs and commended The Sun for presenting the award annually to recognize outstanding community service.

"To me," said Finnegan in accepting the award, "This is one of the greatest things that has ever happened in my life. I was stunned when I was informed that I was to be the recipient and I haven't come down to earth yet."

Finnegan was selected from among 33 nominees submitted by Sun readers. The final selection was made from those nominations by a 10-member panel of judges.

"He had the good fortune," Bosworth noted," of being taken under the wing of the legendary Munroe MacLean, an outstanding teacher, coach, a classy gentleman and a good friend of many of us here, today. And, what Mac didn't teach him, another legend, Bill Sullivan did. Sullivan was among those attending.

Bosworth noted that Finnegan is now athletics director but said the award was being presented to him "as coordinator of Project Impact, an innovative program to train teachers and community adults to help youngsters deal with drugs, alcohol and other problems."

The program consists of Impact teams trained by experts "to not only know how to recognize a certain program, but how to help the youngster cope with it and overcome it," he said.

"Marty," Bosworth said, "has given countless hours of his own time to the program since 1985 and has raised funds to allow 60 teachers and representatives of the community to be trained at conferences by the Northeast Regional Center For Drug Free Schools and Communities."

Finnegan was nominated for the award by Janet Powell, a teacher at Broadmeadows Middle School and a member of the Project Impact teams. Who was a guest at Sunday's reception. In nominating him, she said,

"He has a tremendous vision for freeing our children from drug-alcohol abuse. He is responsible for Project Impact, a very important school and community partnership. Thanks to him for loving and caring."

"Marty," Bosworth said, "probably sums up the goal of Project Impact best in these, his own words,

"We must learn to communicate. We adults must learn how to tell our young people that they are precious to us. They are important to us. And, most of all, that we love them.

"By doing this, we can help them get through the difficult years of growing up. If we can make the school and the community climate better for kids, they won't need to turn to drugs and alcohol. They will turn to us."

The Media Influence On Youngsters Today

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Martin C. (Marty) Finnegan, Quincy Sun Citizen of The Year for his volunteer work as coordinator of Project Impact warns of the influence of the media--especially television--on today's youth.

"The problem that we have to face is the fact that the media influence on kids and we have to determine whether their influence or our influence, the school, the community, the family and church, are going to determine what makes for a good time.

"And this is really where it's at. If we can face this problem, if we can realize that MTV is an example of what our kids are looking at today and realize we never had to face that when we grew up," he said.

Finnegan then inserted his own ancroynm for MTV. "I call it Mediocre, Trashy and Vituperative. That's what MTV stands for to me.

"And if you look a little bit more closely at the word vituperative, you'll find it means harshly abusive, acrimonious, rancorous, bitter, long lasting resentment deep-seeded ill will and comes from the Latin word rancidus-rancere which means, to stink.

"Now, we can have that opinion of what MTV is but we must realize that our kids think it's great viewing. That our kids look at it and think that's what life is like," Finnegan said.

"Television has a great influence," he continued. "I have never seen a party on television serving orange juice and Coca Cola. I've never seen an athlete played on television having a glass of orange juice because it's good for him.

"We celebrate victory by drinking. We celebrate defeat by drinking. No matter what it is and that's our biggest drug,--alcohol--and unfortunately we who have grown up with it have accepted it.

"Our kids think it's the new thing because they see the adults drinking. They think that's the way to go themselves so we have to really combat these influences."

Finnegan said these influences shouldn't be looked upon as problems but rather as an opportunity to help and grow closer to kids.

"It's an opportunity for us to get together and say to them, 'Hey, we love you.' Even in our own homes, we don't express love to the people that are most important to us."

In order to prevent children and teenagers from falling victim to substance abuse, communities such as Quincy must develop programs, like Project Impact, and work together to attain the program's goals, he said.

The initials in Project Impact stand for "Initiate, Motivate, Prepare, Activate, Communicate Teams." The teams talk about substance abuse problems and discuss possible plans of action to combat the abuse.

In explaining the problem of alcohol and drug abuse with today's youth, Finnegan pointed out that "drug free schools may be a misnomer."

"Two percent of the drugs taken by kids are taken at school, the rest of the drugs are taken in the community, in an automobile, in a movie theatre, in a beer joint, in a pizza parlor, down at a park.

"The drugs are being used and they're being used in the community and that's why we have to be sure that we not only alert our schools but that we alert our community.

According to Finnegan, the Project IMPACT teams are "community teams that use the school and the church and the community to get people to realize that we must work with our young kids today and what they face. We must not let the media determine what our kids think is the way to live. We must work with our young people and let them know how much we love them and care for them.

"And make it a two-way street. And we will be successful in the city of Quincy. I have complete confidence," Finnegan said.

MARTIN FINNEGAN, middle, The Quincy Sun's "Citizen Of The Year" for 1988, is joined by William Gaine, assistant executive director of the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association, and Janet Powell of Quincy who nominated Finnegan for the award.

5 Injured In North Quincy Fire

By JANE ARENA

Two civilians and three firefighters were injured early Tuesday morning in a two alarm fire at the four story brick apartment building at 30 French St., North Quincy.

Both residents and one of the firefighters were treated and released from Quincy City Hospital.

The fire damaged two apartments, and began due to an "electric blanket malfunction" in the first floor apartment of Mary Ryan, according to fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

"She woke up and saw the small fire at the bottom of her bed," Gorman said, "and luckily she was able to escape."

Gorman said that due to smoke detectors all of the other residents in the 30-unit building were also able to evacuate the building.

Barbara Sullivan, 82, was treated for smoke inhalation at Quincy City Hospital. Matthew Linehan, 12, was treated for cuts on his arms and legs resulting from broken glass.

The firefighters who were injured were Peter O'Hare who was treated for a sprained back suffered when he slipped on ice and Lt. John Barber and Gerald Ceurvels who were injured when part of the ceiling collapsed on them. Gorman said their injuries were not serious.

Gorman said it was a "stubborn fire," but added that "due to the construction of the building" the firefighters were able to contain and keep it from extending into the walls and the two above apartments.

Gorman said it took about a half hour to stop the blaze and another hour "of overhauling and making sure it didn't get into the walls."

He estimated that $80,000 damage had been sustained by the building with another $20,000 to the building's contents.

Besides the two damaged apartments, others in the unit sustained moderate smoke damage, Gorman said.

This was the second apartment fire in the city in two days. Early Monday 14 people were driven out of a burning building in the Adams Shore neighborhood. No one was injured in Monday's fire.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

One of the fine organizations for youngsters in America is scouting - The Boy Scouts and Girls Scouts. It was in March, on the 12th in 1912, that Daisy Gordon, and ten other young girls, met in an unused stable of Daisy's aunt, Juliette Low, in Savannah, Georgia, and founded the first patrol of Girl Guides in the United States.

Mrs. Low had married an Englishman and they lived in London and Savannah. She knew Sir Robert Baden-Powell, the founder of the Boy Scouts, and when she became acquainted with and helped the Girl Guides - which had been founded in Savannah by her sister - she brought the two concepts together.

The headquarters of the Girl Scouts was moved to Washington in 1915, after other groups began forming in other cities. Later it was moved to New York and in the span of only a few decades, there had grown up in this country a national Girl Scout organization with members numbered in the millions.

Generally speaking, scouting is one of our noblest youth organizations - teaching and stressing doing good deeds - helping others - courtesy, learning and cleanness in word and deed. After a short period of declinging interest in scouting, the movement is again vigorous and expanding, which is good and welcome news ...

Vera Franklin, 81
Retired Quincy Teacher

A funeral service for Vera (Lawson) Franklin, 81, of Quincy, was held March 3 at St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston. Private burial was in Riverside Cemetery, Saugus.

Mrs. Franklin, a retired teacher in the Quincy public schools, died at home Feb. 28 after a long illness.

Mrs. Franklin taught mainly at the Montclair School in grades 1 and 2. Many parents in the neighborhood requested that their children be in her classes because of her solid, old fashioned teaching methods.

Mrs. Franklin graduated in 1927 from Bridgewater Normal School, now Bridgewater State College. She had won a couple of double promotions during her student career and was a good deal younger than her contemporaries.

She began her teaching career in Seekonk and worked there for a year before going into sales work at Jordan Marsh and T.D. Whitney in Boston.

She re-entered the teaching field when her youngest child entered nursery school and she taught in Quincy for 22 years.

Mrs. Franklin spent summers at South Wellfleet on Cape Cod, where her grandfather had built a cottage in 1910.

Mrs. Franklin grew up in Stoughton and South Easton where she attended public schools. She had wanted to be a teacher since her childhood days.

She was a member of the Retired Teachers Association.

She is survived by her husband, Benjamin L. Franklin, two sons, Robert L. Franklin of Boston and Jay D. Franklin who teaches English at his own school in Matsudo, Japan, two daughters, Pamela F. Tice of New York City, and Deborah F. O'Neil of Middleboro, a sister, Olive L. Bragazzi of New York, four grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Memorial donations may be made to the Vera and Ben Franklin Scholarship Award Fund which was established by her family at her 50th wedding anniversary. Donations may be sent to Leon Gould, principal, Montclair School, 8 Belmont St., North Quincy 02171.

Vera L. Moynihan, 86

A funeral Mass for Vera L. (Lynch) Moynihan Murphy, 86, of Quincy, was celebrated March 2 at Sacred Heart Church. Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Murphy died Feb. 26 at the South Shore Hospital, South Weymouth.

She was active in Sacred Heart Church, St. John's Church, and St. Ann's Church.

Born in Holyoke, she had lived in Quincy for 50 years, much of the time in Wollaston. She had lived at Granite Place before moving to Logan Nursing Home, South Weymouth three years ago.

She was the last of 10 children of the late John and Elizabeth (Teasdale) Lynch.

Wife of the late Humphrey S. Moynihan and the late William H. Murphy, she is survived by two sons, Stephen Moynihan, director of Business Affairs for Quincy Public Schools, and William Moynihan of Quincy six grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Matthew Kenney

A funeral Mass for Matthew Kenney, son of George and Marilyn (Finlay) Kenney, was celebrated Saturday (Feb. 25) at St. Ann's Church in Wollaston.

Burial was private.

He died Feb. 21.

He is also survived by two brothers, Daniel Kenney of Weymouth and John Kenney of Quincy, a sister, Kathleen Harrington of Quincy, his grandmothers, Flora Kenney of Quincy, and an aunt, Lorraine McGantly of Holbrook.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St.

George A. O'Mara, 63
Retired Firefighter

A funeral service for George A. O'Mara, 63, of Quincy, a retired Quincy firefighter, was conducted Monday in St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston.

Mr. O'Mara died March 3 at Quincy City Hospital.

A firefighter for 33 years, he spent much of his career at the Wollaston station and later worked as an aide to former Fire Chief Edward F. Barry at headquarters on Quincy Avenue.

He retired in 1981.

He served as a Navy pharmacist's mate (hospital corpsman) in the Pacific during World War II. He was in Okinawa when the war ended.

Mr. O'Mara worked two jobs most of his life, operating his own wallpapering business while holding down his fire department position.

Born in Boston, he enjoyed golfing and fishing.

He is survived by his wife, Alice M. (Warner) O'Mara, a son, Michael W. O'Mara of Quincy, three daughters, Maureen Rehs of Pembroke, and Diane Jurewich and Janet O'Mara, both of Quincy, his mother, Flossie (Greenwood) O'Mara, two brothers, Robert O'Mara and William O'Mara, three sisters, Nancy Troy, Jean Chipman and Joan Steidle, and seven grandchildren. He was the father of the late Donna O'Mara and the late James O'Mara.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Rita G. Kiely, 75
Was Legal Secretary

A funeral Mass for Rita G. (Delaney) Kiely, 75, of Quincy, legal secretary seven years for the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination before retiring in 1976, was celebrated Monday at Sacred Heart Church.

Mrs. Kiely died March 3 at Carney Hospital in Dorchester after a brief illness.

She had previously worked for the Industrial Accident Board three years and for the U.S. Veterans Administration 20 years.

Born in Charlestown, she lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy in 1953.

Wife of the late Dennis K. Kiely, she is survived by a daughter, Denise Evans of Tewksbury, a sister, Alice Fitzgerald of North Easton, and four grandchildren.

Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 333 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Crime Prevention On The Street

All of us walk the streets, most of us without fear. But there are times and places where one needs to recognize the possibility of crime.

The first rule for a pedestrian is to carry no more cash than you need to. But to keep a mugger from becoming enraged, it is a good idea to carrry at least ten dollars. Most of those who are inclined to attack to steal from you have a great need and are easily frustrated to a point where they lose their sense of reason. An unsuccessful mugging can lead to a violent attack on the victim.

The idea is (A) reduce the temptation to a thief and the amount of your loss, (B) to have enough money to avoid frustrating a junkie and cause him to assault you. Hiding cash was Grandma's way of seeking safety and it still has advantages. A money belt is one possibility, hiding money on other parts of the body is another possibility.

If you are one of those people who feel insecure about going around without a substantial amount of money you might consider travelers checks. Remember that credit cards are valuable to a thief, often more valuable than cash. Some wallets are so constructed that all the credit cards show when you open them, other wallets show only one credit card at a time making you less conspicuous.

When a credit card elapses, or when you decide you are not going to use it anymore, destroy it by cutting it up.

It almost goes without saying that you are safest when you do not attract attention to yourself. If you are carrying a good deal of money to pay a bill or to buy something, keep the large bills in a separate buttoned or zippered pocket. Keep the small bills in a handy place so that a large amount of money doesn't show. Never flash a roll of bills. If you are paying for a purchase have the approximate amount of money needed handy, so that you don't take out a large roll of bills. To a thief, a roll of bills gets as much attention as waving a red flag at a bull.

Jumpathon To Benefit Heart Assn.

Students representing all 14 Quincy elementary and middle schools will participate on Tuesday, March 14, in a jump rope jumpathon to benefit the American Heart Association.

The jumpathon will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd. Buses will begin arriving at 11:30 a.m. and continue until 12:30. Demonstrations will be given by the Broad Meadows pep squad, jump-rope team, and double-dutch team beginning at 12:45 p.m.

Within the last two years students have raised about $10,000 for the American Heart Association by jumping rope. Quincy received a plaque for the highest contributing school system in 1986-87 by the Heart Association.

Participating schools include Broad Meadows, Daniel Webster, Central, Atlantic, Wollaston, Parker, Atherton Hough, Squantum, Merrymount, Montclair, Furnace Brook, Lincoln Hancock, Sterling and North Quincy.

Dr. Mary Lydon, John Bogan and Barbara Winters are coordinators. Vincent McGuire is special needs coordinator.

Benefit Las Vegas Night Saturday

A Las Vegas Night to benefit the Neurofibromatosis Foundation, Inc. Massachusetts Chapter will be held at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus, 5 Hollis Ave., on Saturday, March 11 from 7 p.m. to midnight.

Donation is $2.

Neurofibromatosis (NF) is a tumor disorder affecting one in every 4,000 births. NF produces tumors which can grow on any near ending within the body, causing deformities, deafness, blindness, paralysis and even death.

Proceeds from the first annual Las Vegas Night at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus will benefit NF research which recently made two major breakthroughs.

Elderly Workers Coalition To Meet March 15

The South Shore Coalition of Workers with the Elderly will meet Wednesday, March 15 from noon to 1:30 p.m. at 1000 Southern Artery Senior Citizens Housing, Quincy, in the activities room on the mall.

Cathy Wrotny, R.N.C., M.S., gerontological clinical nurse specialist at Boston V.A. Medical Center, will speak on "Attitudes, Communication and the Elderly—A Complex Mix."

The program will include a film in which the viewer actually experiences the hearing and vision changes of an elderly person. Wrotny will discuss both care-provider and elderly attitudes as well as focus on how care-providers communicate and then how elderly clients receive our messages.

She will also examine strategies for improving dialogue.

Wrotny, who had worked with elderly clients for many years, encourages both care-providers and senior citizens to come to the meeting and share their perspective.

The meeting is free.

Participants may bring a lunch, beverages and a snack will be served.

YMCA Girls Win Swim Championship

The South Shore YMCA swim team recently competed in the Eastern Mass. District championships in Brockton and the girls' under 8 team won the championship with 246 points, easily defeating Beverly with 156 points.

South Shore took first place in all individual events except the 100-yard individual medley, where it placed second, and the 25-yard breaststroke, also finishing second. With nine of the 11 girls new to the team, it completely dominated the meet.

The 100-yard medley relay team of Meredith Curley, Jill Stenhouse, Angelina Cangiano and Erin Murphy broke the Eastern Mass. record set by Marblehead in 1989, finishing in 1-14.22. The other medley relay team of Anna Israel, Kelly Murphy, Kate Palmieri and Alyssa Wyman finished fourth at 1-26.41.

In the 25-yard freestyle Erin Murphy won (15.05), Angelina Cangiano was third (16.36), Jill Stonehouse sixth (16.45), Kelly Murphy 10th (17.12) and Alyssa Wyman 12th (17.68).

Curley was second in the 100 individual medley (1-31.85), first in the 50 freestyle (34.00) and first in the 25 backstroke (17.69). She scored the most points in the meet.

Palmieri was first in the 25 butterfly (17.37) and fourth in the 50 freestyle (37.08). Right behind Curley in the 50 freestyle was Erin Murphy (34.61). Jill Stonehouse took second in the 25 breaststroke (21.69) and Kelly Murphy was fourth (23.98).

The 100-yard freestyle relay team of Cangiano, Curley, Stonehouse and Murphy won with a time of 1-05.13, just missing the New England record of 1-02.41. In a recent meet against Marshfield the team did a 1-12.45.

For the boys' 8 and under team Karl Ehrens won the 25-yard backstroke (18.16) and was fifth in the 100 individual medley (1-34.35).

The 100 freestyle relay team of Ehrens, Billy Walker, Tom Kendrick and Danny Mayhew took sixth.

The 9-10 boys placed third overall in the team competition. The 200 medley relay team of James M. Keyes, James Morelli, Terrence Roche and Paul Zukauskas took second (2-24.17). These same boys finished second in the 200 freestyle relay (2-08.51).

Individually Zukauskas, last year's 8 and under record holder in the 25 freestyle, took fourth in the 50 butterfly (30.74), fourth in the 50 butterfly (34.62) and seventh in the 100 freestyle (1-12.59).

Morelli was fifth in the 100 individual medley (1-22.49), a second in the 50 breaststroke (40.84) and 11th in the 100 freestyle (1-15.15).

Roche took fourth in the 50 breaststroke (42.67) and eighth in the 50 backstroke (41.04), Keyes was seventh in the 100 individual medley (1-23.17), third in the 50 backstroke (36.79) and eighth in the 50 butterfly (37.58). Cory Madera swam a 36.75 50 freestyle and Robert Blaikie a 46.56 50 butterfly.

For the boys 11-12 team the 200 medley relay team of Don McDougall, Patrick Preston, Tom Zukauskas and Barry Canavan turned in a 2-39.03 and the 200 freestyle team of Zukauskas, Preston, McDougall and Jarrod Baker did a 2-14.56.

David Cangiano of the 13-14 boys team qualified for the New England area championships by winning the 100 freestyle in 52.57. He also broke the EMass. 100 butterfly record, winning in 59.08. He just missed winning three events when it took a new EMass. record to beat him in the 100 backstroke. His time was 1-01.65.

Michael Martorano placed ninth in the 100 freestyle (57.61), third in the 100 butterfly (1-04.78) and fifth in the 50 freestyle (25.65).

The boys 15-18 freestyle relay team of Tim Roche, Erik Stenfors, Brad Tilden and TWINS Patti (left) and Gayle Morrell of Quincy had outstanding freshman seasons for the Plymouth State College women's basketball team.

Morrell Twins Turn Plymouth Around

Due largely to their efforts, the PSC women rebounded from their losingest season ever last season to post a 13-13 mark this year.

The victory total was the second highest ever for a PSC women's team. Coach Suzan Rowe's Panthers saw their season end at Rhode Island College when PSC lost an 87-77 Little East Conference semifinal playoff game to RIC.

Patti also enjoyed a fine season, although her play was hampered by a severe ankle sprain suffered early in the season.

Patti, a first-time Suburban League all-star, led Coach Doug MacFarlane's First Ladies in scoring with a 14.8 game average.

She scored a school record 41 points against Brockton, led the team in rebounding with 93, an 11.4 average and was second in steals with two a game.

Gayle was second in scoring with a 14.6 game average, second in rebounding with 190, a 10-5 average, and fourth in steals with 1.7 a game.

Jago's Hat Trick Sparks Beacon, 4-2

Kevin Jago had a hat trick and assisted on the other goal to spark Beacon Sports to a 4-2 victory over Adams Sports in Executive Hockey League action Monday night at the Youth Arena.

Pete DiBona scored the other goal and Dave Mullen had three assists, Bob Boyle and DiBona two each. Mike Flaherty and Dennis O'Connell scored for Adams and Skip Manganaro, Don Fawcett, Paul O'Brien and Fred Cobban had assists.

P.J.'s Flyers defeated Grumpy's Pub, 5-3, on goals by Bill Shea, Jim Connolly, Jim Conso, John Farren and John Ryan. Farren and Shea each had two assists and Connolly, Peter Janis, Rich Gibbs and Mullen one apiece. Mark Matanes, Peter Bertrand and Mike Manganaro scored for Grumpy's and Manganaro had two assists and Bertrand and Jerry Ionelli one each.

South Shore Bearing edged Emmott's Electric, 5-4, with Jay Powers and Steve Dyment scoring two goals each and Peter Greene one. Jack Alfred had three assists, Jim Sullivan two and Chip Linscott, Jack Hurley and Kevin Noone one each. Mark Boulter had two goals and Marty Tolson and Rich Joyce one each for Emmott's. Mike O'Connell had three assists, Joyce two and Boulter, Dick McCabe and Jack Valle one each.

Pee Wee Bs Win Silver Medal

Quincy's Pee Wee B hockey team, sponsored by AT&T Movers, won the silver medal at the Watupa Tournament in Fall River.

Quincy went to the finals before losing to Quebec for the second time. Quebec averaged 14 goals a game and Quincy gave the Canadians their two best games of the tournament.

Quincy lost to Quebec, 5-1, in its opener, then came back to wallop SWS, 12-0, topped Newport, 5-4, and defeated Southern Connecticut, 5-1, to move into the finals.

Quincy's Michael Manganaro was named the all-star goalie and David Pacino was named an all-star defenseman.

Brian Connolly had seven goals and three assists in the tournament, Eric Zimmerman six goals and two assists, Michael Dern two goals and two assists, Lee Hughes two goals and an assist, Kim Kunz a goal and assist, Chris Geary a goal and assist, Steven Provost a goal and assist. Pacino, Paul King, Jay Evans, Andrew Vermette, Kevin Flaherty and Dennis Pateas played outstanding defense.

The team officials thank Mike Turner and the tournament directors for their invitation to play in the tournament.

Squirt Bs In State Championships

Quincy's Squirt B hockey teams, sponsored by Continental Cablevision, will play in the state championships this weekend in Springfield as District 3 champions.

The team will play Natick Friday night and will face Medford and Haverhill on Saturday.

"The last time Squirt B team won the states was back in 1983, and we feel it has been long enough," said coach Bob Pirelli. "Mike McTomney, Jack Manning and I have been working hard in preparation for the tournament and we feel we are ready."

In a Greater Boston League game Quincy defeated Canton, 3-1, to move closer to first place.

Canton took a 1-0 lead in the second period but Quincy answered with a John Manning goal, set up by Shawn McTomney and Mike O'Brien.

Quincy came out fired up in the third period as Capt. Jimmy Gallagher scored on a breakaway and Billy Barron scored the insurance goal with Joshua Wingate and Chris Grant assisting.

North Junior, Point Panther Cheerleaders In Toronto Commpetition

The City of Quincy will be well-represented in the International Cheer Ltd. Can-Am tournament in Toronto in April with the Quincy Point Panther cheerleaders representing the junior high division and the North Quincy High junior varsity squad competing in the jayvee division.

The two squads won the right to advance to the competition with their finishes in the Can-Am Regional tournament in Webster.

North Quincy won the junior varsity division and the Panthers were second in their division. Each division qualified the top three teams. Close to 200 squads will compete from junior high level through collegiate co-ed level.

A representative from each squad will also have the chance to compete for a spot on Team Can-Am.

Both squads are trying to raise the money for the airline and hotel accomodations through bake sales, candy sales and donations.

The tournament will be held April 7-10. It will be the first time Quincy will be represented two-fold in cheerleading competition.

The Panther Squad, coached by Patti and Kay coached by Patti and Kathy Myers, assisted by Anita Curran, comprises Capt. Lynne Feeley, Co-Capt. Maureen Wood, Michelle Minichello, Maureen Mancuso, Jennifer Walsh, Karen Curran, Debbie Russell, Amy Murphy, Vicky Comeau, Jennifer Kelley, Katie McCarthy, Kelley Dyer, Cindy Cedrone and Christine Curran, Junior varsity cheerleader Kara Bagen will move up to the varsity for the Canada trip.

Strong Support For Local Hiring

(Cont'd from Page 1)

"The slogan, 'Make it in Massachusetts' isn't working in Quincy. People are coming from out-of-state to work here and reap the benefits," Cheney said.

Several union workers also voiced their support for the bill to the Council.

Kevin Cotter, business manager for a local plumbers union, said Quincy residents want to contribute to the community.

"We live here. We pay our taxes here,," adding that it's become common practice for out-of-town contractors to come to Quincy and undermine the local manpower.

"It's very much in order to have the residents of Quincy reap the benefits of the economic prosperity in Quincy," Cotter said.

Also speaking in support were Councillors James Sheets, Thomas Nutley, Lawrence Chretien, Theodore DeCristofaro, and Charles Phelan.

Sheets said, "We need to ensure that we have no modern forms of scab labor in the city of Quincy. I think this is a good first step."

Nutley said, "I really think one in three (ratio) is not asking that much."

Phelan agreed saying, "I don't see going from one to two to one to three as unreasonable."

Chretien said, "This proposal is something that is absolutely necessary."

However, Cahill and Klayman disagreed.

Klayman, reading from a prepared statement, said the bill is "in essence building a wall around your city. This will force other cities and towns to retaliate and build walls around their cities and towns as well.

"The outcome will be that residents will only be able to work in the city in which they live, and when the work runs out, as it must, they'll have nowhere to turn. To impose residency requirements is counter productive," she said.

Cahill echoed Klayman's remarks. "Quincy is a leader on the South Shore. I agree that if we pass this order, other communities will be forced to do the same."

He said he was also concerned about developers overlooking Quincy residents by funding a project with only private funds. The ordinance would not affect private development in the city, he said.

Councillors Raise Concerns Over Methadone Clinic

On Tuesday, McCauley said he will wait for the officials to meet with him before any action is taken.

Also on hand for the presentation was Robert Potter, vice president of Habit Management, Inc., the company that would operate the van.

For about 90 minutes, Mulligan and Potter outlined their proposal while addressing the concerns of the councillors.

According to Mulligan, the proposal calls for locating a mobile methadone clinic in Quincy. The clinic would be staffed by a nurse and a unit manager who would dispense methadone orally to heroin addicts.

Mulligan estimated that there are between 400 and 500 intravenous drug users in Quincy and the van would help 70 to 80 addicts in Quincy.

One of the sites being considered for the van is outside the Quincy District Court. The clinic would operate daily during the early morning hours, such as 6 to 8 a.m.

Addicts would need to acquire four forms of identification from the state in order to receive the medication. They would also need to pay a $200 admission fee and then $83 per week to receive the treatment.

There are three types of payments— private (the addict pays out of his own pocket), Medicaid and state funding through the Department of Public Health.

As for profit making, Mulligan said most of the van's services are non-profit but some are profit making.

Dosage would depend on the client's addiction Mulligan said, adding that the average dosage is 45 milligrams and the largest dosage is 60 milligrams. As for the types of people who seek this form of treatment, Mulligan said 66 percent are parents and 40 percent are women.

Patients also go to counseling once a week.

The Quincy van would be operated much like other vans located across the state, including one in Brockton. That clinic began operation in December and is up to 50 clients, Mulligan said.

Quincy residents would be the principal users of the van but some outside addicts might also use it, Mulligan said.

Mulligan and Potter also outlined the benefits of the program.

They said they are—

- 60 percent of those treated find jobs.
- Criminality is decreased.
- Social function within the family is improved.

Still, most councillors said they have reservations about this program coming to Quincy.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro cited a recent published report that revealed one heroin addict who had been on methadone for 13 years because she "loves it."

"I have reservations about this. Clearly, many people thrive on this type of treatment," he said.

Mulligan responded that this instance is more like the exception than the rule and that there is documented proof that many people finally get off drugs all together.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney said he supports the treatment of addicts with different methods, such as methadone, but "we also have a responsibility to the community so it's difficult to support this proposal."

"I'm not 100 percent satisfied that this is the best means of treatment but I am satisfied that something must be done," he added.

In order to help councillors get a better picture of the program, Mulligan said he is willing to arrange a visit by the City Council to monitor a clinic.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said he still has a long way to go before he's convinced this program can work in Quincy.

Phelan, who witnessed methadone clinics in Boston as a special police officer while a student at Northeastern University, said, Methadone is not the answer. It's one service. We need other services in Quincy to work hand and hand in the drug treatment effort."

Concerned about public safety, Phelan said he would want to see a police detail at the methadone site.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, who said he is opposed to the van concept, made several suggestions to Mulligan.

Nutley said he would rather see a permanent or "fixed" methadone clinic, such as at the Quincy City Hospital. Because of the MBTA, a mobile van near Quincy Center and the Red Line in the city would "suck in" non-Quincy residents.

"If this has to be mobile, then it should be placed in a location situated away from the MBTA," he said.

Nutley also said there should be daily urine tests, frequent testing and a time limit on patients receiving methadone. "They shouldn't be on it forever."

Also voicing strong disapproval for the plan was Councillor Timothy Cahill. Cahill said he prefers having all addicts go to counseling instead of being given the option of being medicated.

"I am very much opposed to this because in effect, it is a way to legalize drugs. At some point, you have to put your foot down. I think the only way to get people off their drugs is to get them off, cold turkey," he said.

Cahill also offered some honest and frank testimony regarding his own experience with drugs 10 years ago. He said he was part of the "drug culture" back in the early 1970s, experiencing with some drugs, but that he has not touched drugs in 10 years.

Saying he would feel like a "hypocrit" if he supported the methadone proposal, Cahill said he believes the only way to get off drugs is to avoid drugs altogether.

Mulligan responded that he tries to put addicts into drug-free treatments first but unfortunately, the drug treatments are the only source of help for some people.

Councillor President Patricia Toland commented, "It's not the best choice but it works for some people. If it's going to come, we ought to work together as much as possible."

Speaking in support of the proposal was Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien. Chretien was the only councillor who voted against a resolve last summer stating the council was against the siting of methadone van in Quincy.

According to Chretien, the mobile clinc would help stop the spread of AIDS among heterosexuals in Quincy since the use of dirty needles is the primary way the deadly disease is spread.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Out Of State Workers On Quincy Construction Jobs

A vast majority of workers currently on two Quincy construction projects are from out-of-state, according to a report obtained recently by Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney.

Two separate surveys were conducted in the report. One report shows that 24 out-of-state workers were involved in the construction of at least one building at Crown Colony while 16 out-of-state workers and a few from outside the country were on the site at the Brackett Street-Southern Artery project.

According to Cheney, the state and Quincy lose up to $5,000 annually for each non-local resident worker who is working on a Quincy project.

Cheney also noted that there are two laws being violated. The first, according to Registry of Motor Vehicle sources, states that any person or persons who have relocated to Massachusetts must within six months register to insure their motor vehicle in Massachusetts. They must also obtain a license here.

The other violation, Cheney said, is in regard to out-of-state trucks transporting material to both Quincy and outside construction sites. According to state law, these trucks must have their names affixed to one side of vehicle.

Cheney pointed out that several trucks have delivered materials to both of these sites without proper identification.

Recently, Cheney wrote to Secretary of Public Safety Charles Barry and made him aware of the situation and asked that these laws be enforced.

"It is not fair to local residents that workers from outside the Commonwealth of Massachusetts are able to work in the City of Quincy and not pay the local taxes or fees.

"This only highlights the fact that the City of Quincy should have a local preference hiring ordinance," Cheney said.

Council Backs Donnelly

Congressman Brian Donnelly's recent refusal to sign a letter to a house appropriations Subcommittee asking it to earmark $59 million for the Boston Harbor Cleanup has the support of the City Council.

By a 9-0 vote Monday night, the Council voted in favor of a resolve stating it supports Donnelly's refusal to sign the letter. It is hoped this action will enable the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to "take a close and hard look at the way the City of Quincy is being treated and take steps to reduce the unfair burden on this city.

"The MWRA should locate its headquarters at the Fore River Shipyard. The former General Dynamics site should be given top priority to house the headquarters of the MWRA," the resolve states.

It was introduced by Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro and Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney.

"By Brian Donnelly doing this, I hope the MWRA will come to Quincy and be more reasonable. I appreciate Brian Donnelly's efforts. It just goes to show Brian is representing the true interests of Quincy residents," Cheney said.

Also speaking in favor were Councillors Timothy Cahill, Thomas Nutley and DeCristofaro.

"I hope Congressman Donnelly holds his ground. It shows that the MWRA doesn't have total control over us," Cahill said.

In response to community concerns and requests from local officials and legislators, the Metropolitan District Commission will be enforcing a new traffic policy at the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum Street.

Motorists turning right onto East Squantum from Quincy Shore Drive are now restricted from making a left turn into the Dunkin Donuts shop at the intersection.

Those who wish to visit the store must drive straight through the intersection and enter from the right. The new regulation is an effort by the MDC to increase public safety and lessen traffic congestion in the area.

Now until March 14, Metropolitan Police will issue warnings to any motorist who makes the illegal left turn. Beginning March 15, all violators of the regulation will receive traffic citations.

Trash Handling Lecture March 16

A free lecture entitled "The Problems of Handling Trash and Solid Waste Management Practices" will be held Thursday, March 16 at 7:30 [illegible] Church of Presidents, opposite City Hall, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Featured speaker will be Barbara Kronf of the executive office of Environmental Affairs, Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, division of Solid Waste Management.

Water Safety Instructor's Course To Start March 15

Recreation Director Barry Welch, announces that the Quincy Recreation Department will sponsor an American Red Cross Water Safety Instructor's Course.

The course is designed to provide individuals with the skills necessary to teach American Red Cross Swimming Programs to the public. Those successfully completing this course will receive National Red Cross certification.

The course is open to those who are at least 17 years old and hold a current Advanced Lifesaving Certificate.

Telephone reservations will be accepted, but all must pass a qualifying swim test before being accepted into the course.

The course will begin Wednesday, March 15, and will continue Tuesday and Wednesday evenings from 5:30 to 8 p.m., and some Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The training takes approximately four weeks. All classes will be conducted at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Registration can be made by telephone or in person at the Quincy Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery. Quincy residents will have first preference, followed by those who live in communities served by the South Shore Chapter of the American Red Cross. These communities include Quincy, Weymouth, Randolph, Braintree, Holbrook, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Scituate, and Cohasset. Registration is limited and will be done on a first come first served basis.

There is a fee for the program, and additional information can be obtained by calling Welch at 773-1380 ext. 204.

Legislators, Businessmen Push For MWRA At Shipyard Headquarters

A combined force of state legislators, South Shore businessmen and Quincy officials say it would be in the public and ratepayer's best interests for the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to move its office complex to the Quincy Shipyard.

It would be the most economical and cost-effective proposal of seven sites presently under consideration, they said at a Boston press conference Monday.

"Quite frankly," Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli, D-Quincy, told the group, "I find it ironic and absurd that we, as citizens, have to gather here and argue for something so obviously logical and that will save so many people significant amounts of money...I guess that is the price one pays when enormous power is given to an authority without the customary checks and balances found in government."

A bill submitted earlier by Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, (D-Quincy), directs the MWRA to relocate its administrative and executive offices to the Quincy Shipyard, upon expiration of its lease at its present headquarters in the Charlestown Navy Yard.

The petition is scheduled to be heard before the Committee on Natural Resources today (Thursday) at 11 a.m. in Hearing Room F-2 at the State House. Officials attending a Monday press conference pledged unanimous support of the measure.

Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro whose district, which includes the shipyard, noted that purchase of the 180-acre shipyard by the MWRA for $49.5 million in 1987 from General Dynamics, "automatically removed some $250,000 annually from the Quincy tax rolls. It's only fair that they return something beneficial to the area's economy."

Local officials remain opposed to the Authority's decision locating a sludge plant at the shipyard location. But they said they would welcome establishment of the office complex, which would bring upwards of 900 employees to the city daily.

Cerasoli said that figures compiled by the Authority's Division of Development show than an office building at the shipyard would cost $26 million, including "unlimited parking space," something that none of the other sites can provide.

"The only problem though," added Cerasoli, "Is that every time we point out the positives for the Quincy site, they (MWRA) either raise the costs of locating at the shipyard or claim the figures they gave us are now outdated."

A site in Roxbury, heavily lobbied by Boston interests, would cost approximately $52 million and is the most expensive of the proposals under consideration, it was noted.

MWRA documents indicate that a proposed site in Malden would cost a total of $34 million while a second Malden site would cost about $44 million. The first site would provide 500 rentable parking spaces at $15 per space, per month. The second would include an additional $4.9 million for a 350 car parking facility "to complement 650 at-grade spaces."

Two other sites being reviewed by the MWRA are the former Stop & Shop warehouse and bakery in the North End at a cost of $22 million for the purchase price alone. A Fort Point Place site would cost an estimated $32 million including development costs. Neither locations offer parking facilities.

Remaining at its Charlestown location is an option still under study by the Authority. However according to Authority figures it will cost more than $40 million in rent over a ten-year period.

The conference ended on a rallying note with state and local officials vowing to continue the fight on both fronts against the MWRA, until "the best interests of the immediate residents of the area, the ratepayers of the system and the taxpayers of the Commonwealth are achieved."

Keith Westerman Names Ward 4 Campaign Committee

The Committee to Elect Keith F. Westerman Ward 4 Councillor filed its incorporation papers Tuesday with the City of Quincy Elections Department.

Quincy resident and newspaper-cable television personality, Marie D'Olimpio, has accepted the position of committee chairman.

D'Olimpio said she feels Westerman is well suited for the council because of "his extensive background in government and politics."

"This experience coupled with Keith's excellent character and commitment to public service make him the best choice when it comes to the Ward Four council seat," she said.

Constance (White) Westerman will serve as the committee treasurer.

Anyone wishing to work with the committee on Westerman's behalf is asked to call D'Olimpio at 479-4631.

WEEK OF: March 9

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You're easily influenced by the ideas and moods of others, which makes you highly sympathetic but sometimes short on self-confidence. A boost in self-esteem may occur in the mid-year period, when major positive changes take place in career and educational spheres.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
A fresh perspective helps you resolve a lingering difficulty. Hobbies are highlighted and prove unusually rewarding. Don't be afraid to ask questions, no matter how trivial.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Imagination is vivid; the week proves rewarding - - literally - - for creative expression. Invitations arriving now contain an element of glamor. Work environment has it's lighter moments.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Taking the initiative helps you surmount a hurdle in career environment. Your wit is sparkling, making you much in demand socially at this time. Romance situation is brightening.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Public relations skills are sharp. This is a grand week for self-promotion. You also reveal a special talent for bringing people together. Financial decisions require more research.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
"Pruning" is a key task right now, as the week sees you simplifying your lifestyle. A long overdue debt may arrive. Weekend is favorable for diverse social activities.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
A neighbor sets out to corner you, and you may have to agree to help in a community fund-raiser or other task. Generally speaking, romance and friendship blossom.

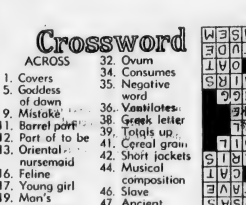
LEO — July 23 - August 22
Housebound friend benefits immeasurably from your warm ways. Career path may be a little jumpy, then stabilizes. Community project is given the green light.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Week includes much to-ing and fro-ing; everone needs your help. Friendship circle is expanding. Communications of all varieties improve greatly by Monday-Wednesday.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
In domestic situations, you finally see the light at the end of the tunnel. Overdue objects are returned by the weekend. Friend assures you of loyalty by Wednesday.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Local attractions prove more lively than you could have guessed. A steady string of visitors is a way of life through the weekend. Bonus may arrive on Tuesday.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Network of friends may prove helpful on the job front. Educational interests, especially ones related to skills development, are highlighted through this period. Social life is perkier.



CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Unhappy friend at last responds to your encouragement. Events attended now are classier than expected. Springtime resolutions should include making an effort to take more initiatives.

DARE To Help Fight Drugs, Alcohol Abuse

A new program that builds the self-esteem and self-assurance of school children to help them resist the temptations of drug and alcohol abuse will begin this spring in the Quincy Public School system.

The program is called "D.A.R.E.," which stands for "Drug and Alcohol Resistance Education." The announcement was made Monday by Police Chief Francis Finn and Eugene Creedon, director of Elementary and Middle Schools.

More than 700 schoolchildren will be enrolled in the program during the next two years. Modeled after the D.A.R.E. program creating by the Los Angeles Police Department in 1983, the D.A.R.E. program in Quincy is a community service provided by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts.

In announcing the D.A.R.E. program, Chief Finn has pledged that Quincy Police Officer Robert Edgar will serve as the D.A.R.E. instructor as a full-time assignment.

"D.A.R.E. teaches children more than how to 'Just Say No,'" Finn said.

"As instructor, Officer Edgar will provide the children with the social skills to resist peer pressure, to build their self-respect and to make more mature decisions about their behavior.

"The things they learn from D.A.R.E. will help them for the rest of their lives," he said.

Creedon concurred—

"The fifth-graders have been chosen because at age 11 or 12, children are growing into adolescence, and all the pressure associated with that age.

"At the fifth grade level, D.A.R.E. hopes to reach them before they've been exposed to personal drugs and alcohol abuse," he said.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield Regional Director Mark Kelley said his company is very supportive of the D.A.R.E. program due to its health care aspects. "The skills learned from D.A.R.E. help children to make better decisions about things that affect their lifestyle and their health.

"We applaud the focus of D.A.R.E. to help students recognize and resist the many subtle pressures that influence them to experiment with alcohol and drugs," Kelley said.

Creedon said the school system has been developing a comprehensive health education program for grades K through five that deals with substance abuse. "We are looking at programs that don't only use scare tactics. We discovered D.A.R.E. in Massachusetts from the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs," he said.

The D.A.R.E. program is divided into 17 lessons taught by Officer Edgar beginning next month to 200 fifth graders at the Lincoln-Hancock, Montclair and Webster Elementary Schools. He recently completed an extensive two-week training course to help him prepare the classroom curricula.

Some of the D.A.R.E. lessons include resistance techniques, assertiveness, managing stress without taking drugs, decision-making and risk-taking, role models, and forming a support system. The course concludes with a graduation ceremony where students will perform special activities.

According to Finn, in 1990, more than 500 fifth graders from all 10 public elementary schools will participate in D.A.R.E. He said he hoped that children enrolled in the city's parochial schools will become a part of the D.A.R.E. program next year.

The show will be repeated Tuesday, March 14 at 6 p.m.

LEGAL NOTICE

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage given by ROBERT K. MITCHELL and KATHLEEN I. MITCHELL to Eagle Mortgage Corp. dated May 5, 1988 and recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 7956, Page 34, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing same will be sold at public auction at 2:00 o'clock p.m. on the 4th day of April, 1989 at 1344 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy, Massachusetts, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage.

TO WIT:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts and being shown as Lot 227 on Pilgrim Boulevard, now known as Wm. I. Morissey Boulevard, on "corrected Plan of Merrymount No. 2, made by Ernest W. Branch, C.E.", dated December, 1921, recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 1510, Page 281, and bounded and described as follows:

WESTERLY by Quincy Shore Drive, formerly Pilgrim Boulevard, fifty-eight (58) feet;

NORTHERLY by Lot 228, as shown on said plan, one hundred (100) feet;

EASTERLY by land of owners unknown, fifty-eight (58) feet; and

AREA Contains 5800 square feet of land.

For title see deed of Thomas C. Healy, Trustee of the Moreland Realty Trust recorded on November 22, 1971 with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 4788, Page 207.

TERMS OF SALE:

Said premises will be sold and conveyed subject to a mortgage to Quincy Co-operative Bank dated November 18, 1971 in the original principal amount of $31,000.00 and recorded with Norfolk County Registry of deeds in Book 4788, Page 208 and also subject to a mortgage to Shawmut Bank of Boston, N.A. dated June 17, 1982 and recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6014, Page 277 and also subject to a mortgage to Shawmut Bank of Boston, N.A. dated July 26, 1983 and recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6215, Page 37 and further subject to and with the benefit of all, if any, rights, rights of way, restrictions, easements, covenants, improvements, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens, and existing encumbrances of record, if any there be, insofar as the same are in force and applicable, created prior to the said mortgage which is being foreclosed.

A deposit of TEN THOUSAND ($10,000.00) DOLLARS by certified or bank cashier's check - no cash - will be required to be made at the time and place of the sale. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash or by certified check or bank cashier's check at the offices of Shocket & Dockser, One Apple Hill, Suite 225, (Route 9), Natick, Massachusetts, within twenty (20) days after the sale which balance is to be deposited in escrow with the firm of Shocket & Dockser, pending approval of said sale by the Norfolk Superior Court. Deed to be taken within ten (10) days from the date of the approval of said sale by the Norfolk Superior Court.

The successful bidder, other than the mortgagee, shall give the required deposit to Shocket & Dockser, One Apple Hill, Suite 225, Natick, Massachusetts 01760, which deposit shall be retained by the mortgagee if the successful bidder shall refuse to sign this Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate, or if, after signing, the successful bidder does not perform his oar her obligations hereunder. If the deposit is so retained, it shall become the property of the mortgagee as seller under this Agreement, and shall not be applied on the mortgage debt and such retention of the depsit shall not release the successful bidder from his or her obligations hereunder, should the mortgagee decide to pursue the same and or cease to pursue any and all other rights, remedies, and courses from time to time available.

The premises shall be conveyed by the usual foreclosure deed under the statutory power of sale, subject to the foregoing, and, in addition, subject to any and all unpaid taxes, tax titles, tax liens, water and sewer rates and any other municipal assessments or liens.

The sale shall not be deemed complete until the successful bidder shall have made his or her deposit and signed this Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate. The balance of the consideration is to be paid at the offices of Shocket & Dockser, One Apple Hill, Suite 225, Natick, Massachusetts, on or before 10:00 o'clock on the twentieth (20th) day following the sale, provided that such day is one on which the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is open for business, and if not, then on the next day on which such Registry is open for business. Time is of the essence as regards to this Agreement.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the sale.

Council Asks Mayor, Finn Meet On Police Cuts

The City Council believes Mayor Francis McCauley and Police Chief Francis Finn should meet and look into the possibility of a supplementary budget to resolve the current staffing problem.

By a unanimous vote, the council approved the resolve which was introduced by Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan. He is the chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee.

There was no discussion on the resolve.

It states–

"Whereas, the recent police patrols have been reduced in order to cut costs, and

"Whereas, the basic function of the Police Department is the public safety of the neighborhoods and the business community of the City of Quincy, and

"Whereas, in June of 1987, the Police Department, the Mayor and the City Council agreed to switch to the one-man patrol car system with 13 patrol cars and five walking beats, and,

"Whereas, there exists a possibility of lawsuits resulting from reduced coverage,

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the mayor and the police chief meet and look into the possibility of a supplementary budget to resolve the staffing problem."

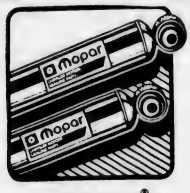
Lodging House License Granted

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Daniel R. Dowling for a lodging house license at 30 Bigelow Street Realty Trust, 30 Bigelow St.

The board noted that Dowling currently holds a loding license for the lodging house at 22 Bigelow St.

Dowling told the board that he wants to convert the house at 30 Bigelow St. to a seven unit boarding house and also said he has plans to update the building and the landscaping. He will have an on-site manager as he has in the house at 22 Bigelow St., he said.



The Board granted the license with the stipulation that a fire protection sprinkler system be installed according to the recently adopted City requirement.

The license is also pending a routine inspection by the Fire, Building and Health Departments.

City Program Starts May 1

Paper Recycling To Save $100,000

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A city-wide paper recycling program which officials project will save approximately $100,000 in disposal costs this year will begin Monday, May 1.

Mayor Francis McCauley and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, chairman of the city's Recycling Committee, made the announcement at a press conference Tuesday in the Mayor's Office.

The program, to consist of the collection of newspaper and magazines, will reduce the amount of Quincy's waste going to landfills, thereby lowering disposals costs and saving valuable natural resources.

Beginning May 1, all residents of buildings with four or fewer dwelling units will be required to place bundled or bagged newspapers and magazines at curbside every other week on the day of their regular trash-pick. The paper should be placed eight to 10 feet away from the regular trash before the designated day or no later than 7 a.m. the day of the pick-up.

Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI), which is Quincy's current residential solid waste hauler, will collect the paper. BFI was awarded a one-year contract after a competitive bidding process, McCauley said.

After collection, BFI will transport the paper to M. Sugarman & Co., Inc., a paper broker in Quincy. From there, the paper will be shipped to mills locally or overseas for reuse.

As for the market for recycled paper, Chretien said the program's first objective is to cut down on disposal costs in Quincy. A good market for recycled paper would be an added benefit, he added.

The program was devised with the help of the city's consultant, Alternative Resources, Inc., which provided technical expertise throughout the planning and implementation effort.

By implementing the paper recycling program, the mayor projects that Quincy can save up to $100,000 in disposal costs in the first year. The actual figure depends on the

Best Winter For Snow Costs Since 1986

Unlike some past winters, Mother Nature has been kinder to the city's snow removal budget this season.

According to Mayor Francis McCauley, the city has spent $264,962 on snow removal and other storm related costs this winter. The amount budgeted this year was $300,000, meaning a surplus of $35,038 exists.

However, that figure is slightly deceiving.

The mayor pointed out that the extra money does not include paying the bills which resulted from the two minor storms that hit Quincy in late February. McCauley said these two storms will probably wipe out the surplus, and perhaps create a small deficit because of the amount of salting and sanding that was done.

The budget also pays for maintenance and repair work on snow removal vehicles as well as overtime pay for drivers.

Still, the mayor is optimistic the city will not face a severe deficit like in years past.

For example, in fiscal year 1987, $300,000 was budgeted but storm costs totaled $703,839, resulting in a $403,839 deficit.

Other deficits occurred last year and in 1985 while a surplus was realized in 1986.

In fiscal 1988, the city budgeted $300,000 and costs amounted to $593,846, creating a shortfall of $293,846. In 1985, $127,461 was budget and $337,820 was spent, resulting in a $210,359 deficit.

In 1986, the city was in the black in terms of snow and ice removal. A total of $300,000 was budgeted but costs amounted to only $197,457, giving the city a surplus of $102,543.

"We've had an excellent winter so far this year, the best since 1986 money wise," McCauley said.

McCauley Praises Gorman

O'Connell To Be Sworn In As Fire Chief

Deputy Fire Chief Paul O'Connell will be sworn in as the city's new fire chief today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. in Mayor Francis X. McCauley's office, thereby becoming the fourth chief in the last seven years.

O'Connell, 38, will succeed Acting Chief Thomas Gorman for the $63,012 annual position. He will be one of the youngest fire chiefs in the city's history.

On Monday, O'Connell signed a Civil Service list indicating he wanted the chief's job. Since he was the only candidate from within the departent to score a passing mark on the test last summer, O'Connell's name was the only one on the list. His mark of 96 out of a possible 100 points was good for two years.

O'Connell had previously turned down the job. Last June, after the test scores for examination became known, O'Connell decided against becoming chief. At that time, he told the mayor that he was too young for the job and needed more experience as deputy chief before he could be chief.

During the last eight months, O'Connell gave much more thought and consideration to the job and last month, he informed the mayor that he wanted to be considered for the job.

"I needed some time to think about it. After further investigating what the chief's job is really about, I was able to have a change of heart and I made the decision," O'Connell said last month. The 16-year veteran also said he needed more time to discuss the career move with his family.

The swearing in, to be administered by City Clerk John Gillis, will mark the beginning of O'Connell's term as well as the end of Gorman's term. Gorman was appointed acting chief last June after O'Connell, as well as two other deputies who took the Civil Service test but did not pass, turned down the job.

Gorman then decided to appeal his exam mark in an effort to become permanent chief. The appeal was in the process of being reviewed when O'Connell indicated he wanted to be considered for the chief's job.

On Tuesday, Gorman said he is dropping his appeal and will become a deputy chief again once O'Connell is sworn in.

"He's done an excellent job the past nine months. I've enjoyed working with him. We have appreciated his efforts," he said.

The chief's job became vacant last June 24 when former Fire Chief Carl Valenti announced he was retiring.

McCauley Backs Shipyard For MWRA Headquarters

Saying it is both logical and economical, Mayor Francis McCauley has joined other state and city officials in urging the state's water agency to locate its headquarters in Quincy.

In a recent letter to John DeVillars, chairman of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and secretary of the state's Environmental Affairs, McCauley also said locating the MWRA's headquarters in Quincy would not compensate the city "in any way" for the siting of a permanent sludge facility at the shipyard.

"The MWRA's headquarters are, of course, most welcome at the shipyard or elsewhere in Quincy. And, I join the ongoing efforts in support of that decision. However, I do so because I consider it to be a logical and economical decision for the Authority.

"I do not feel that locating MWRA headquarters at the shipyard would in any way compensate the city for the MWRA's acquisition of that facility, or mitigate the impacts of any of the MWRA's facilities or activities upon the adjoining communities," the mayor said.

Last month, the MWRA Board of Directors voted in support of a recommendation made by Executive Director Paul Levy to site two long-term sludge processing facilities at the former General Dynamics shipyard in Quincy. As part of the Boston Harbor cleanup, the facilities will compost and pelletize the sludge.

The shipyard will also be the site of an interim sludge processing facility to operate from 1991 to 1995. In McCauley's letter, the mayor also made it clear that the city's agreement with the MWRA for interim sludge should not be interpreted as support for the facilities.

"The fact that the City of Quincy entered into a Memorandum of Understanding with the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority concerning the processing of sludge at the Fore River Shipyard during the interim period 1991-95 must not be interpreted as support for residuals processing at the shipyard in either the interim or the long-term," McCauley said.

According to McCauley, in 1987, the MWRA committed to a "privitization approach" to interim residuals management involving the dewatering at Nut Island of sludge from the treatment of South Metropolitan system flows, with trucking of the dewatered sludge cake through Houghs Neck and the streets of Quincy. Residuals from the treatment of North Metropolitan system waste water were to be barged from that island to Newington, N.H. for drying and pelletizing.

"Quincy found the Nut Island proposal to be wholly unacceptable, with major community impacts, and congestion problems on Nut Island, and was convinced that the Authority's proposal to process its sludge in Newington, N.H., was not implementable," McCauley said.

"The obvious alternative to the Newington, N.H. site was the Fore River Shipyard, which the Authority was in the process of acquiring. Quincy thus foresaw the outcome of privitization program to be two sludge management projects in Quincy, established unilaterally by the MWRA, and with little opportunity for the City of Quincy to protect its citizens other than by embarking on an extended legal effort, which would probably have delayed the goal of eliminating sludge discharges to Boston Harbor.

"The City therefore proposed an alternative of processing all sludge at the (shipyard) for the interim period, with significant oversight by and concessions to the City, as the better of a set of bad choices," the mayor said.

"Nevertheless, having entered into this agreement, the City will comment on the MWRA's current Draft Facility Plan and EIR in the spirit of continued cooperation while preserving its right and in fact stating its commitment to continued vigorous opposition to the Authority's 'preferred option' for long-term residuals management and in fact to any long-term residuals processing at the Fore River shipyard," he said.

Quincy, Roxbury In Truce Over MWRA Headquarters Siting

Vowing not to allow the harbor cleanup agency to pit Quincy against Roxbury, a truce has been reached between officials from the two communities over the siting battle of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority headquarters.

One Tuesday, Mayor Francis X. McCauley, one of the proponents for a Quincy based MWRA headquarters, said he agrees with the truce.

"I don't think we should be fighting one another. The fact that we want the offices in Quincy has nothing to do with Roxbury or the black community.

"Congressman Brian Donnelly is cooling the rhetoric down and I think he's right," the mayor added.

Despite the truce, Donnelly (D-MA), who met Monday with a Roxbury group attempting to attract the MWRA headquarters to a site near Ruggles Station, is refusing to honor the group's request to withdraw his legislation to force the agency to move to Quincy.

"We're going to try and tone it down. The last thing we want is the MWRA turning us on each other," Donnelly said.

"I think we both feel that both communities have suffered from past and present governmental actions, and we don't want to see a Roxbury versus Quincy scenario. That's not in anybody's interest," Donnelly added.

Ron Homer, spokesman for the Roxbury group, said, "We agreed to lower the political rhetoric and to look at the proposals in terms of what is best for the ratepayers."

Donnelly, whose district includes Quincy, has agreed to stop characterizing the Ruggles Station location as the most expensive of six options to the MWRA. Among the options is the Fore River Shipyard, the site the MWRA has selected to host two permanent sludge processing plants.

However, Donnelly declined to withdraw legislation he filed last week in response to Gov. Michael Dukakis' letter to the MWRA board of directors in support of the Ruggles Station location, appearing to tip the siting in favor of Roxbury. Donnelly had said the Quincy site was the cheapest and ought to be chosen on that basis.

The bill filed by Donnelly threatens to hold up $59 million in federal funds for the harbor cleanup if Quincy is not compensated for being chosen by the MWRA as the site for sludge facility.

Donnelly, who said his feelings "run pretty deep about the way the MWRA is handling the Quincy situation," said if he had his way, he would have the agency go back and rewrite the bid proposals "and open the whole process up again."

Donnelly added he was no longer certain which of the six bids were the cheapest and he would wait for the MWRA's final analysis.

After meeting with Donnelly in his Washington office for 90 minutes Monday, the Roxbury group, headed by Homer and Councillor Bruce Bolling, claimed victory.

"We at least got him to stop saying Quincy is cheaper," Homer said. "And we let him know that we don't want the U.S. Congress to decide this. My position is that we ought to let the MWRA analyze it."

Roxbury proponents argue their bid is the most faithful to the criteria of the MWRA bid proposal. But last week, the inspector general's office issued an opinion that the Roxbury bid is technically invalid because the developers do not own the site.

Donnelly said he has doubts about the bid process because the MWRA, which owns Fore River Shipyard, is preparing the Quincy bid, while private developers are bidding for the other sites. He is also questioning the criterion of high quality of building stipulated in the MWRA bid proposal, which appears to rule out usage of the vacant General Dynamics offices at the shipyard.

Planning Board Meeting

The Quincy Planning Board was scheduled to meet Wednesday, March 15 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chamber of City Hall.

Agenda items include—

- An update by the Ricciardi Co. regarding the Yankee Heights Subdivision.
- The establishment of a public hearing for a PUD application for a Marina Bay Corporate Park by the Boston Harbor Marina Co.
- PUD special permit for phase III of the Falls, Quincy Ave., by Fox Properties, Inc.

Would Aid Quincy Point Water-Sewer Rate Payers

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli (D-Quincy), has introduced legislation aimed at assisting water and sewer ratepayers who would live in the shadow of a sludge processing facility proposed for construction at the Fore River Shipyard.

Testifying recently before the joint Legislative Committee on Natural Resources and Agriculture, Cerasoli declared that while the fight opposing the sludge plant is not over, Quincy Point residents deserve to be treated fairly if the plant becomes reality. One of the three measures by Cerasoli would exempt persons who live within two miles of a sludge or sewer treatment plant from payment of water and sewer use charges of the Water Resources Authority.

A second bill would prohibit the Authority from increasing water and sewer rates of its member communities until the final costs of cleaning up Boston Harbor are determined and approved by agencies involved in the multi billion dollar project.

Cerasoli, speaking before a packed committee room, stated the harbor may not be clean for a hundred years and that by the year 2000, sewer rates could possibly outdistance property taxes. "That must not be allowed to happen," Cerasoli said.

Cerasoli strongly argued in favor of legislation that would direct the Water Resources Authority to locate its office headquarters at the Fore River Shipyard. Six other sites are presently under consideration for the headquarters which would bring a multi million dollar payroll and a professional staff of over 900 personnel into the Quincy area.

Finn Commends Cahill For Candor And Honesty

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

I read with great interest Councillor Timothy Cahill's acknowledgment of his past experimentation with illegal drugs. Councillor Cahill was a young man when peer pressures were extremely severe and the educational process did not and could not cope with the problem nor its volume. Tim Cahill was a victim of the times!

The Community, including many professionals— Dr. Djerf, Dr. Irons, Dr. Ridder, Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, other School Administrators, and myself, tried to organize resources to help with this problem that was afflicting the community.

Councillor Cahill, without any assistance, recognized that these illegal drugs were not compatible with all that he wanted to do in his lifetime, whether it be in sports, a Quincy businessman, or political leader.

He has since matured and grown to become one of the City's outstanding businessmen and political leaders. His experience has left him sympathetic as well as empathetic to the problems of substance use and has helped him form opinions as to the best way of addressing these problems in today's context.

Councillor Cahill, keep up the good work! Your candor and honesty are to be commended.

Francis X. Finn

WHAT'S THE RIGHT POLICY FOR YOU

(A Three Part Series)

There are three basic types of policies to choose from: whole life, term, and endowments. Other types of policies presented are combinations of these three. I'll cover each basic type during the course of the next three weeks.

With a whole life contract, premium are required to be paid until the policy is surrendered, or the insured dies. Premiums are divided by the company to fund the death benefit, and the balance goes into a reserve account known as "cash value." These cash values have been referred to as forced savings plans for emergencies, college funding, or supplementing retirement programs. Funds borrowed will have an interest charge, and if death occurs with the outstanding loan, the beneficiary will receive the proceeds minus the loan.

Many contracts being offered today are showing a shortened premium paying period for the insured with the balance of premiums generated from the policies accumulated values.

At Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. our professionals ar happy to discuss the many protection options available today. Please give us a call at 471-6200 or stop by our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy.

Tim Cahill: He's Got Class

Will Tim Cahill be hurt politically by disclosing he experimented with drugs while a young freshman at college?

He shouldn't be.

Not if voters like to see honesty and courage in their elected officials.

Cahill didn't have to stand up there at a City Council meeting last week and reveal he had tried marijuana and cocaine while a 19-year-old freshman at Boston University.

CAHILL

He has no police record. No one was threatening to expose that brief part of his past. He could have kept it locked inside and thrown away the key.

So, why did he go public?

"Because," he says simply, "I didn't want to be a hypocrite. I wanted to be honest about it."

Cahill said he knew that one day he would publicly make the disclosure. It would be at an appropriate place and an appropriate time. Like at a City Council meeting or at a school talking to youngsters about drug abuse.

Last week's City Council meeting became both the appropriate place and time.

The subject matter was a proposed mobile Methadone clinic for Quincy. Cahill strongly opposes it.

"I wanted to state my case against Methadone," he said. "I didn't want to be a hypocrite and talk about drugs without revealing that I had personal experience with drugs. I didn't think it would be honest not to reveal it.

"I just don't feel Methadone is the right treatment. Methadone is a drug. I don't believe you can substitute one drug for another. It's like an alcoholic trying to solve his problem by switching to beer. That's not going to do it."

Cahill said he and other students experimented with marijuana and cocaine but he never became addicted.

"I decided to get off it, and I did," he says. "And I want people to know you can beat drugs if you really want to," Cahill says. "And the quicker you try, the better.

Drug free treatment programs are more effective than Methadone, he feels.

"The only way to really stop is to stop," he says. "Not substitute another drug for the one you are now taking."

What has been the reaction since his disclosure?

"It has been positive," he says. "People have come to me to tell me they appreciate honesty and that they are with me. That makes me feel good."

If he had a chance to take back that disclosure would he?

"No. I'm glad I did it. And if I hadn't done it then, I would have done it sometime in the future.

"I'm more proud of the fact that I overcame drugs than I am ashamed that I tried them."

Cahill is now 30 and hasn't touched a drug in 10 years.

He has an occasional glass of wine at dinner.

He is a respected businessman and a good family man. He is married to the former Tina Falco and they are parents of three daughters; Makena, 4; Nicole, 2 and Devin two months. They've been married five years. Tina knew about the drugs. Cahill had told her.

willing to stand up and speak out on issues and not count votes he might win or lose because of his stand.

In fact, that very night there was another item on the council agenda regarding a proposed local preference hiring ordinance.

Cahill opposed it despite the fact the other eight councillors favored it and the council chamber was filled with union workers and representatives who also favored it.

The next morning one of those workers told Cahill he respected his honesty and that: "I'm still going to vote for you. So are some of the other guys."

Cahill will officially announce his candidacy for a second term Thursday, April 13 at the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club on Washington St. The 7 to 9 p.m. event will have an open invitation-no charge.

"I'm going to go out and see and meet the people and talk with them," he says. "I am not going to bring up the drug matter but if there is someone out there who wants to talk about it, I will be happy to talk with them."

And, he adds:

"I want them to see me as I am today – not as I was 10 years ago."

THERE THEY WERE, two men from Quincy having lunch together — in the White House. Mayoral candidate James Sheets was the guest of his long-time friend and former student, Ron Kaufman, who is now Deputy Assistant to the President for Personnel.

SHEETS

Sheets reports Kaufman has six secretaries and his office handles some 300 to 500 calls a day. Kaufman has a say in the hiring — or rejection — of an estimated 4,000 employees in the Cabinet level departments.

"He's very popular at the White House," says Sheets. "They all know him as Ronnie, and he has become a legend in his own time."

Kaufman won fame for his handling of the George Bush campaign in the New England area. Especially for the endorsement of Bush by Boston police, the Boston Harbor pollution media event and the Willie Horton affair.

Sheets says he was amused to also find among all the Bush memorabilia in Kaufman's office his 1970 graduation diploma from Quincy Junior College.

When people ask him where Quincy Junior College is, he proudly tells them, Quincy, Massachusetts. And sometimes adds, birthplace of Presidents of John and Jon Quincy Adams.

LOOKS LIKE A guaranteed primary election for the Ward 4 City Council seat. Darrin McAuliffe will officially announce his candidacy at a 7 to 9 p.m. campaign kickoff Wednesday, March 29 at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

He will be the third candidate, necessitating a primary.

Already announced candidates are Joseph Shea, executive secretary to former Mayor Walter Hannon and Tom Fabrizio.

Summer Recreation Job Applications Available

Red Cross Flag Raised At City Hall

Mayor Francis McCauley proclaimed Quincy's support of March as American Red Cross month during a Red Cross flag raising ceremony Monday at City Hall.

Assisting the mayor were Helen Shea, chairman of the South Shore Red Cross Board, Robert Quinn, member of the board of directors, Mrs. Jean Fox, area manager of the South Shore Red Cross, and Mrs. Jacqueline Gardner, director of Office of Volunteers for the South Shore Red Cross.

Quincy is one of many communities across the South Shore that is coming together to strengthen support of Red Cross programs and services.

For the past 126 years, the Red Cross movement has upheld and protected humanitarian rights, helping people in need throughout the world.

The International Red Cross Principles are Humanity, Impartiality, Neutrality, Independence, Voluntary Service and University.

To ensure support for Red Cross services on the South Shore, volunteers and staff approach Red Cross Month with a four-pronged campaign — to thank people for supporting the Red Cross through their United Way gift, to inform them about Red Cross services, to recruit additional volunteers and to solicit new contribution members to the Red Cross family in the South Shore.

To carry out its worldwide services, the Red Cross depends upon both contributions and volunteers. More than 1.8 million men and women volunteer their time to the Red Cross on a regular basis.

Nationally, volunteers outnumber paid staff by more than 80 to one. The South Shore region prides itself on having more than 700 volunteers serving in a number of Red Cross programs.

Many people have the idea that Red Cross volunteers are active during wartime and disasters only. However, volunteers work in, and in fact make possible, the entire spectrum of Red Cross services.

The chapter is always in need of volunteers and stresses there is no age limit. The main qualifications are a desire and an ability to help others.

Each year, like many people throughout the nation, South Shore residents turn to Red Cross volunteers following disasters, for blood donations, classes in CPR and water safety, AIDS information and non-emergency medical transportation.

Women's Issue Office To Honor Broadmeadows Teacher

Ronald Adams, Broad Meadows Middle School teacher, will be honored at a State House reception today (Thursday).

He is among teachers to be honored by the Massachusetts Department of Education and the Governor's Office on Women's Issues for the development of curriculum units about women.

Using written material from the Quincy Historical Society, newspaper clippings and their own collections of oral histories, students are preserving the story of these women pioneers who helped the United States win World War II by their work in Quincy.

The purpose of the unit is to team granddaughters and grandsons with grandmothers and other women who worked at the Fore River Shipyard. Students find and interview female Fore River shipbuilders about their struggle for acceptance, their sacrifices in the home, and their achievements in the shipbuilding industry.

Students are using oral history techniques learned from The Cambridge Oral History Center to collect a record of the Fore River women workers. When the collection stage is concluded, students will share transcripts of the women's remembrances in booklet form.

Anyone who knows of a woman who worked at Fore River during WWII is asked to call Adams, supervising teacher, at 786-8723 so that arrangements can be made for students to interview her. Oral histories will be collected through June, 1989.

This is the third year in which Quincy teachers have been honored by the Department of Education for their work on women's history in the curriculum.

"We are proud to have a Quincy teacher selected for recognition again this year for work which includes women in the curriculum," Quincy School Superintendent Dr. Robert Ricci commented. "We congratulate him (Ron Adams) and other teachers who work hard to enlarge students' understanding of the contributions of women to the history of the United States and to Quincy."

March 16-22 1947 42 Years ago

The Quincy City Council voted to split Precinct 5 of Ward 1 into two precincts, effective in time for the state primary election in the fall of 1948.

The split was requested by David J. Crowley, the councillor from Ward 1, which has 1,812 registered voters and covers almost all of Houghs Neck.

Crowley said splitting the precinct would speed up receipt of final returns in city elections which, in the past, has been delayed for several hours.

NEW DUMP ORDERED

Mayor Charles A. Ross ordered the Public Works Department to start using Fallon's Quarry, the old swimming hole off Quarry St. to two generations of Quincy youngsters, as a city dump.

"In the first place," said the Mayor, "the old city dump, a quarry on the other side of Quarry St., is about filled up.

"In the second place, Fallon's Quarry is one of those deep quarries which have been the scenes of so many drownings down through the years."

Marie's Kitchen

Baked Macaroni And Cheese

When my children were growing up, most of our Friday night dinners consisted of baked macaroni and cheese and fish cakes.

On a recent Friday, most of them gathered in our kitchen and that is exactly what I cooked. Each of them had a story related of how they remembered those dinners. Here is a tried and true recipe for baked macaroni and cheese. I use the large casserole elbows which I can only find in Star Market.

BAKED MACARONI AND CHEESE
1 Lb of large casserole elbow macaroni
3 Tbsps butter or margerine
3 Tbsps flour
2 cups milk
(plus the amount you will add to the macaroni during the preparation)
8 oz of cheddar cheese or a favorite cheese
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup of bread crumbs

Boil the macaroni according to the directions on the package. While that is cooking, melt the butter or margerine in a pan. Add the flour and then the milk, salt and pepper and cook stirring frequently. Add the cheese and cook until blended. After you drain the macaroni, put them back in the pan and add enough milk to cover them. Cook until some of the milk is absorbed. Lightly butter a casserole or baking dish. Place the elbows in that pan and then pour all the cream sauce over them. Sprinkly the bread crumbs over that and then bake uncovered in a 350 degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes.

Of course, during this time, if you were making fish cakes, they would have been heating in the oven also. Last week, when all the little darlings were over, I used both fish sticks and fish cakes.

Giuliana Art Exhibit Opens Sunday At Handshakes

Quincy artist Giuliana, will have an exhibit of her work on display at Handshakes Cafe, 1354 Hancock St., beginning Sunday and continuing through April 29.

There will be a champagne reception and viewing to open the exhibit on Sunday from 3 to 9 p.m. The public is welcome to attend.

The exhibit entitled "To The Four Winds," a collection of new age mixed media paintings, will be the first of future art exhibits at the cafe.

Giuliana, who is also coordinator for future shows, said the exhibits and artists will change every four to six weeks.

Handshakes owner, Timothy Cahill, decided to have art exhibited in the cafe "because he had the space there," she explains.

"This is good for him," she said, "because it adds more cultural appeal to the cafe."

It is also good for local artists, she explains, because the cafe, unlike many art galleries, will not take the customary 60 percent of profits from art sales.

Giuliana, a native of Quincy, earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from Bridgewater State University and also studied at the Massachusetts College of Art. She works full time in her Quincy studio.

Council Backs Broadmeadows On Shipyard Museum

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The City Council has embraced the efforts of students at the Broadmeadows Middle School who want the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to establish a shipbuilders' Museum in honor of the shipbuilders at the Quincy Shipyard.

At a recent council meeting, councillors approved a resolution enthusiastically supporting the efforts of the students and encouraging "all governmental bodies to cooperate fully in making this shipbuilders museum a reality."

The resolve was introduced by Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney and Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro. Cheney also presented a commendation to Ronald Adams, a seventh grade teacher at Broadmeadows, who is helping the students achieve their goal.

For the past four years, students at Broadmeadows have worked diligently and with enthusiasm to preserve the history of shipbuilding in Quincy. Several students presented their research and proposal before the council during the March 6th meeting.

Thousands of men and women have been employed and built quality ships at the shipyard for the past 102 years, during both peacetime and wartime. More than one thousand ships, considered by many to be among the finest in the world, were built at the shipyard.

During wartime, it is said that many sacrifices were made by shipbuilders who gave up lunch hours and coffee breaks in order to build ships in record time, thereby shortening two world wars.

The workforce at Fore River built quality ships of any type or size, and in peacetime met the energy and transportation needs of the nation. Furthermore, the shipyard was among the first to employ women and had the distinction of constructing the first ship dedicated to a black war hero, the USS Harmon.

Many people consider the Fore River Shipyard to be a historical site, rich in history of shipbuilding.

Thus far, the students have corresponded and met with many state officials, including Gov. Michael Dukakis, MWRA Executive Director Paul Levy and Environmental Affairs Secretary John DeVillars. Students have also been in touch with Quincy officials and members of the Quincy Historical Society, including Historian Hobart Holly.

Furthermore, feedback has been very positive and encouraging. For example, Levy said the idea for the museum was terrific and even went as far as to say he believes there is a place at the yard which could accommodate the museum, Adams said.

Besides the shipyard location, Holly told the students that they should also consider other Quincy sites, just in case the shipyard site doesn't work out.

According to Holly, there is a lot of shipbuilding material and information at the Adams Academdy where the Quincy Historical Society is based. Because of a lack of space, Holly believes the creation of a museum is vital to the preservation of the materials.

"There's not enough space at the Adams Academy to store this information," Adams said. "Hobart Holly has really encouraged the students to look into the shipyard site as well as other Quincy sites for the museum," he added.

The students, who work on the project mostly out of class, are currently in the process of drafting their final proposal. Adams said the students would like the museum to have several features.

First, they would like part of it to be "floating." Adams explained that the students ideally want the museum to include a ship that was commissioned at the Quincy shipyard.

They would also like the museum to have a "personal touch." This would include videos and photos of shipbuilders and sailors.

Once the final proposal is drafted, the students will make their presentation at the State House. Adams said this could happen before the April school vacation week.

Adams said he hopes that after the proposal is presented, the state will join with the students and provide the necessary funding for the museum.

"There looks like there's space, there looks like there's plenty of material and it looks like the Governor and the secretary of Environmental Affairs want to get together in funding (the project)," Adams said.

In the four years since the project began, the students and administrators at Broadmeadows have made tremendous strides in developing their idea for a shipyard museum. But the reality of a museum will take more time.

Janice Walsh: Teen Mothers Program 'A Rewarding Experience'

By JANE ARENA

Janice L. Walsh, Business Education teacher at Quincy High School, has dedicated her life to children, both personally and professionally.

As a mother of two, she is dedicated to her own children, and, as a teacher, to her students.

But in both roles, Walsh is faced with extra challenges.

In her teaching position, Walsh is head teacher for the Quincy Teen Mothers Program, a part of Quincy High School, but housed in Bethany Congregational Church, across the street from the school.

The Quincy Teen Mothers Program, which meets three days a week, offers teenage mothers the chance to complete their high school education in an atmosphere which is academically challenging and also supportive.

"Quincy should be commended for the program," Walsh says, "Other communities are now starting similar programs, but Quincy is ahead of its time for starting this in 1978."

When Walsh first took the teaching position three years ago, she was also working part time teaching business education courses at Aquinas Junior College. She soon left to give her full attention to the program.

"It's so rewarding," she says, "that's one of the reasons I left Aquinas, to make a commitment to the Quincy Teen Mothers Program...it's a real family type of environment. It's a very nice environment, and very rewarding, both academically and personally."

Walsh explains that the program is structured to ensure the most individualized attention to each student. Currently there are 20 students in the program.

"The students are tested before they enroll." Walsh explains, "some of the girls are at the top of the class, really bright, and one girl enrolled now is even at the college level."

Some others, however, may be academically behind in one subject or another, or have a reading disability or learning disorder. It is for these students, Walsh explains, that the program can be especially significant.

Along with the basic academic requirements, the students also take a "Functional Competency" course, designed to focus on an individualized area of study.

"Every girl's program is different," Walsh explains, "because they're coming in at different levels of their high school careers. We try to focus on every girl's individual needs. It's difficult but it's very interesting."

The other specialized course in the program, taught by Walsh along with business education courses, is Family Life Planning. This is a new area of teaching for Walsh, but one she's very enthusiastic about.

Because the girls are at different stages of motherhood as well as different academic levels, the Family Life Planning course covers everything from pre-natal nutrition to which toys are best for toddlers.

"Many of the girls live on their own," Walsh says, "So they really need this course."

The course offers guest speakers, films, and demonstrations to aid the girls in their decision to parent their children.

"We have two goals in the program," Walsh says, "one is an academic goal and the other is to foster good mothering skills and to (help them to) be a good mother...we want them to gain confidence in themselves both as people and as mothers."

Walsh explains that her teaching position at the program is very much like a mothering position in itself.

Along with the 20 students, there is also a nursery downstairs for 14 infants and toddlers. Four nursery aides work with the babies and the staff is rounded out by two other teachers, a Coordinator, who is a social worker, and a Guidance Counsellor.

Walsh says that the whole staff feels very close to the students.

"It really is a family environment...we love them and nurture them as much as we can."

When asked if the program is successful, Walsh can hardly help but show her pride.

"We have an average of eight to 10 graduates per year," she says, "and compared with the National statistics...the National statistics are against them. Most girls either drop out of school or go on home tutors...these girls get their diplomas...and many of them go on with their education afterwards."

Walsh has a lot of success stories from the students. Some go on to Quincy Junior College after the program, one is at Bentley studying accounting, one has a position as a Chef in a Braintree restaurant, and the list of success goes on.

"I really enjoy what I do," Walsh says, I love going to school everyday. I look forward to it. That's part of our secret to success, all the staff loves what we do."

As if her commitment to the Quincy Teen Mothers Program and her own mothering wasn't enough, Walsh is also extremely active in Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore. She has been on the Board of Directors for the past six years, and has served as an officer on the board for three. She is also chairwoman of the parents committee, which handles the fundraising.

"That keeps me busy," she says lightly. "We have things like the fashion show and Las Vegas Night...it's a lot of work, but it's almost all profit."

At the past annual fashion show, held at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, the organization raised $6,700.

In addition, she keeps busy in professional business education associations and she also went back to school recently to take two courses.

"Sometimes I feel isolated," she says, "and I want to keep up with what's going on in business education."

The other course was one more directly related to her work at the Teen Mothers Program, a course called Supporting Families Under Stress.

"I'm a teacher, but there's so much going on in the lives of the girls, that I also feel like a guidance counsellor," she says. "The course was an introduction to me to deal with the stress of teenage parenting and all the other stresses in their lives."

With all her commitments and activities, one would guess that Walsh has her share of stress in her own life. If she does though, you wouldn't guess by talking to her.

"I'm usually right in the middle of something," she says with a grin, but it's obvious that she enjoys whatever she's in the middle of.

"I know I wouldn't be happy unless I was working with kids. I love working with kids," she says. "I've known that ever since the first time I walked into the classroom."

PALM SUNDAY ✝ SERVICES

Children To Re-enact Christ's Ride Through Jerusalem At Wollaston Congregational

On Palm Sunday at 9.30 a.m. the church youth of Wollaston Congregational Church will enact Jesus' ride through Jerusalem.

The waving of palms and shouting Hosannas will greet riders of a "donkey."

At 10 a.m. in the sanctuary, Rev. Elden D.J. Zuern will preach the sermon entitled "Portraits of Loyalty." In examining the motives of different persons, we may be able to get a better picture of our own loyalty to God and His church.

Lay scripture reader will be Paul Frazer and acolyte, Wendy Sweetser. Ushers will be Mr. and Mrs. Steven Stentiford. Bernadette Stentiford will supervise the care of pre-schoolers in the nursery and church school for grades 1-12 will be held at 10 a.m.

The senior choir will be directed by Donald A. Reade, organist.

A dinner will be held after the morning service by the Youth Fellowship. The dinner will have a Passover significance and all members and friends are invited. Reservations should be made through the church office.

A traditional St. Patrick's Day dinner will be delivered hot to homes March 17 or may be picked up. Those interested are asked to call Gus Oster, leader of Youth Fellowship at 471-3121 for further information.

The Youth Fellowship will also hold a Yard Sale on Saturday, March 18 in the social hall. Proceeds will benefit the Washington trip in April.

A Maundy Thursday Union Service with East Milton Congregational Church will be held at the Wollaston Congregational Church with Holy Communion at 7.45 p.m. Both ministers, Rev. Llewellyn P. Smith and Rev. Elden D.J. Zuern together with the combined choirs of the churches will participate.

'Vital Signs' Sermon Topic At United First Parish Church

Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett will deliver a sermon titled "Vital Signs" during the Palm Sunday Services at 10.30 a.m. at United First Parish Church, "Church of the Presidents."

Norman Corey, Music Director, will play organ works by Franck, Bach and Pachelbel. Patrick Jordan, guest soloist, will play selections on the Viola. Edna Allen will be the hostess for the Social Hour immediately following the service.

Historic United First Parish Church was established as an independent church in 1639 and will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams were life-long members of the church. Their tombs stand in a crypt within the church building along with those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine.

Church School is held each week at 10.30 a.m., child care is provide. Visitors are welcome. The Church is located at 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center, (opposite City Hall). For information call 773-1290.

This week the Youth Group will be making lunch, with members of the Social Concerns Committee, for those served by the Quincy Crisis Center van.

Palm Sunday Breakfast At Squantum First Church

May Lewis and Drucilla Warnes were the greeters, Harry Holmes and Tore Wallin were the ushers, and Ann Wallin and Evelyn Ahearn hosted the Fellowship Hour.

The two Lenten programs continued this week. On Tuesday, in a film series entitled "Human Nature and the Christian Gospel," the group discussed "Tender Mercies." The Wednesday night Bible study group continued studying the life, travels and writings of the apostle Paul. The subject this week was "The Life in Christ."

Since this Sunday is Palm Sunday, members of the church will gather for an every-member Palm Sunday breakfast at 9.15 a.m. Worship begins at 10.30 a.m. Sunday School and a nursery meet during the service.

'Triumph And Tragedy' Sermon Topic At Covenant

Palm Sunday will be celebrated at the 10.45 a.m. worship service at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts.

Rev. Fred Lawson will preach on the topic "The Triumph and Tragedy" of Palm Sunday.

Sunday School, with classes for ages nursery through adult, will begin as usual at 9.30 a.m. There will be a brief discussion about the significance of Palm Sunday.

The choir will be directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, Minister of Music.

On Thursday at 11 a.m. the Covenant Seniors will have a Communion luncheon. A service of Communion will be held around the tables. Those participating are asked to bring a few sandwiches to share. Coffee and dessert will be provided.

On Friday at 7.30 p.m. the Trustee Board will meet in the Fireside Room.

Coming events include a Maundy Thursday Communion service at 7.30 p.m. March 23. The sermon will be— "Suffering in Farewell." The choir will provide special music.

"Easter Sunday there will be no Sunday School and the family worship service will begin at 10 a.m. Easter lillies and tulips for the sanctuary must be ordered before March 19.

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the church office at 479-5728.

Small Palm Crosses To Be Distributed At Bethany Church

Children of Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., this Palm Sunday will be able to relive and remember the Palm Sunday experience when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on a colt.

"Hollyberry," a live colt, will arrive at Bethany following the worship service. The children, with supervision, will be able to ride the colt on the church lawn between the chapel and the sanctuary.

"The New Jerusalem," will be the sermon by the Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, at 10 a.m. The early chapel service will be omitted.

Small palm crosses made by Christians in Tanzania, Africa, will be given to persons entering the sanctuary. Fresh palm slips will be distributed to all worshipers by young people at the close of the service. The palms serve as symbols of Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem when the crowds waved palm branches, shouted "Hosanna" and welcomed him as Messiah-King.

The congregation and the Chancel Choir, will be directed by organist Charles J. Blue, Sr.

Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist, while Lisa C. Andre will be lay scripture reader.

The service will be broadcast live at 10 a.m. over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Children of the Church School will attend the first portion of the worship and take part in an "action reading" of the Palm Sunday story as recorded in Mark 11/1-10. A 40-minute class session will follow.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship time in the Allen Parlor with light refreshments.

During Holy Week there will be a service of the Lord's Supper and Tenebrae on Maundy Thursday, March 23, at 7.30 p.m. in the sanctuary. Good Friday, two 45-minute services at noon from 12.15-1 p.m. and in the evening from 7.30-8.15 p.m. will be held in the chapel.

All services and fellowship functions are open to the community. Additional information may be obtained by calling the church office at 479-7300.

Cold Forces Daffodil Days Postponement To April

Due to sudden freezing conditions earlier this month in Washington State where thousands of daffodils are grown for nationwide distribution by American Cancer Society volunteers, Massachusetts' Daffodil Days will be postponed two weeks to April 3-8.

According to Pauline Sweeney, Daffodils Days Chairperson for the American Cancer Society's Quincy-Milton Unit, this will be the first time in Massachusetts' seven-year Daffodil Days history that fresh daffodils — the first flower of spring and the Society's flower of hope — will not be delivered during the first week of spring.

"I want to assure everyone who has ordered daffodils from the American Cancer Society that they will receive their beautiful blooms, but during the week of April 3 instead of the week of March 20," Sweeney said.

"Our volunteers have been on their phones for days contacting the schools, businesses, hospitals and churches that have ordered daffodils to inform them of the postponement. We are sorry for the inconvenience, but apparently Mother Nature had other plans for us this year," she said.

According to Mrs. Sweeney, the silver lining behind this foul weather cloud is that the deadline for ordering daffodils has been extended through March 22.

"There is still time to order daffodils for the April 3 delivery," she said, "and the public will still be able to purchase individual bouquets during that week at various locations throughout the city."

The Massachusetts Division of the American Cancer Society is expected to raise $710,000 through Daffodil Days this year, making it one of the Society's most important resources. The funds are targeted for service and rehabilitation programs for Massachusetts cancer patients and their families.

Traditionally known as the flower of hope, the daffodil was chosen by the American Cancer Society to represent the progress that is being made against cancer. According to Sweeney, today half of all cancer patients will be cured of their disease.

For more information about local Daffodil Days activities or to order daffodils, call 773-8226.

Penance Service At St. Joseph's March 20

St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point will hold a Penance Service on Monday, March 20, at 7.30 p.m.

The Rev. John V. Dunne, a Columban Father, will give the homily. Extra priests will be available for confession.

Planning ahead can offer peace of mind...

It is only human to put things off. But proper planning for the event of one's death can spare a family many traumatic decisions and financial burdens. By pre-arranging the desires and wishes of one's funeral, burial and expenses can be specified to eliminate confusion, differences of opinion and difficult decisions on the part of family members. To ease this burden, we are making available to you FREE a booklet with all necessary information and forms to assist and guide you. Why not visit us or write for your FREE Pre-arrangement Booklet.

Booklet covers the following subjects:

* Funeral and Interment Preferences
* Vital Statistics and Data
* Survivors Information, Social Security, Insurance, Bank Accounts, Real Estate, Automobile, Safety Deposit Box, Savings Bonds, Stocks and Bonds, Retirement Accounts and Veterans Benefits.
* Pre-Arrangement Information
* Three duplicate copies of a Funeral and Interment Pre-Arrangement Agreement.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Teddy Roosevelt once said: "Show me a man who makes no mistakes, and I will show you man who doesn't do things."

Mistakes ... Everyone "goofs" once in a while. Some people "goof" more than others. They make the same mistakes over and over again and never seem to learn from them. Others learn from them. Others learn from their errors. They grow from their mistakes. They know it doesn't do any good to brood over their mistakes. The past is past. It's time to forge ahead with what is to be done.

Fortunate, indeed, is the person who has learned to take his mistakes as well as his accomplishments. Fortunate, too, is the person who can admit his mistakes with a sense of humor and with wisdom.

Emerson states this thought quite beautifully: "Finish each day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; begin it well and serenely, and with too high a spirit to be combered with your old nonsense."

Liz Fortin Nominated For Vocational Student Award

Liz Fortin, a senior in the Culinary Arts program at Quincy Vocational Technical School, has been nominated for an award as Outstanding Vocational Student in Massachusetts.

Fortin, an honor student who serves as a student representative to the Quincy School Committee, has been accepted for admission at Framingham State College and Johnson and Wales College in Rhode Island.

She was nominated for the award by administrators and faculty at Quincy Vo-Tech and will now compete with other nominated students from throughout the state. Five outstanding students will be chosen by the State Department of Education to be announced in Worcester on Thursday (today).

Fortin, who serves as President of the school's Vocational Industrial Club of America, is also a candidate for a Commonwealth scholarship administered by the Board of Regents of Higher Education.

She was a recent Student of the Month at Quincy Vo-Tech, and is a member of the student union.

Robert Quinn To Receive Red Cross 'Good Neighbor' Award

The South Shore Region of the American Red Cross will present its "Good Neighbor of the Year Award" to Robert J. Quinn at its 11th annual dinner dance Thursday, April 13 at the Lantana in Randolph.

Quinn is the immediate past-chairman of the South Shore Region and a member of the Mass Bay Board of Directors. He is Senior Vice President of the South Shore Bank and annual chairman of the South Shore Red Cross Golf Classic, an event sponsored by the South Shore Bank. Quinn began the Golf Classic three years ago and it is a major fund raiser for the Red Cross.

ROBERT QUINN

"When we speak of charitable work and the giving of oneself to the success of that charitable event, we immediately think of Bob Quinn," said Jeremiah J. Dacey, Vice-Chairman of the South Shore Region American Red Cross.

The evening will begin with a social hour from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. followed by the award presentation, dinner and dancing. The "Soft Touch," a 20-piece orchestra, will perform big band dance music.

Insurance Rate Cut For Experienced Quincy Drivers

Experienced drivers living in Quincy will benefit from significant reductions in auto insurance rates this year according to figures released recently by the state Insurance commissioner, announces Rep. Robert Cerasoli, D-Quincy.

Cerasoli said a driver living in Quincy over the age of 25 with six years of driving experience and no traffic-related offenses, will experience a 25.6 percent cut in his or her compulsory auto insurance coverage. In 1988, said Cerasoli, the average cost for compulsory coverage — minimum coverage required by state law — was $294.2. The 1989 rate will drop to $219.

Average cost for more extensive coverage including such items as collision, bodily injury, fire and theft will decrease 18.8 percent from $879 last year to $714 annually.

Cerasoli noted that Weymouth motorists will also benefit by the new figures with compulsory coverage for the experienced driver over 25 years reduced from 1988's $258 to $193, a reduction of 25.2 percent. The additional coverage package this year dropped from an average $760 in 1988 to $638 for the current year, a 16.1 percent decrease.

Cerasoli said the more than 25 percent auto insurance rates cuts in the Quincy area are among the highest in the Commonwealth, pointing out that both communities have been reassigned lower-rated risk territories benefiting safe, experienced drivers.

"The substantial decrease this year in auto insurance rates for motorists in my district is a good, first step," said Cerasoli. "However, I firmly believe that a concerted effort on the part of the Legislature, as was done in 1988, can result in further decreases next year. I intend to work toward that goal and I urge motorists to do their part by driving safely."

North Jayvees Complete 16-13 Winning Season

Coach Ged Phelan's North Quincy junior varsity basketball team had an outstanding season with a 16-3 record and finished up with impressive victories over Brockton, Milton and Boston College High.

Varsity coach Ted Stevenson, whose team had only a 7-13 record but wound up in style, winning the first Raider Invitational Tournament, has much to look forward to as several of the jayvees had excellent seasons and showed varsity potential.

The North jayvees defeated Boston College High, 65-59, in their final game as Joe McDonald's six-point spurt to open the second half started a 12-1 run which broke the game wide open.

Chris Ballum and Rick Lavery also sparked the third-quarter run. Steve Kavol, shooting 100 percent from three-point range for the entire season, knocked one down late in the second quarter to give the Raiders a three-point lead at halftime.

North defeated a good Milton team (14-5), coached by first-year coach John Phelan, Ged's brother, 68-59. North was led by Desmond Bellott's 21 points and received strong games from Brian Curran and Evan Kiley.

In their previous game the Raiders defeated Brockton for the second time. Pat O'Donahue and Angelo Keranis led the way, combining for 36 points, and Dan McLean also played a strong game.

In a league win over Newton North, John Chou's six fourth-quarter points iced a 44-41 win. Brian O'Malley had 12 rebounds and seven blocked shots.

The highlight of the season was a 70-60 decision over Suburban League junior varsity champion Brookline.

Billy Warren led the way with 12 points, 10 rebounds and six blocked shots.

"Billy was my coach on the floor," said Phelan. "He really is a heads-up player." Dave Cawthorne and Jimmy Bruan played fine games to help North pull away from Brookline at the end.

Phelan had high praise for his team. "These kids worked their tails off all year," he said. "I kept telling them good things would come if they worked hard. This was the most satisfying experience I've had in my six years of coaching. I'd just like to thank the kids for a great season."

DiMattia, Janis Make Flyers Fly

Goalie Ralph DiMattia posted another shutout and Peter Janis scored a hat trick as P.J.'s Flyers blanked South Shore Bearing, 6-0, in Executive Hockey league action Monday night at the Youth Arena.

John Ryan scored twice and Rich Gibbs once. Gibbs had three assists, Ryan two, Bill Shea two and Janis one.

Beacon Sports defeated Grumpy's Pub, 4-1, with Chuck Behenna scoring two goals and Kevin and Mark Jago one each. Fred Cashman and Peter DiBona had two assists apiece and Charlie Watt, Jack Duffy and Kevin Jago one each. Kevin Lewis scored for Grumpy's with assists for Dave Casey and Jim Cooney.

Scip Manganaro had a hat trick and three assists and Mike Flaherty had a hat trick and an assist to lead Adams Sports over Emmott's Electric, 9-3. Paul O'Brien scored twice and Dennis O'Connell once. Fred Cobban, John Peters and Don Fawcett each had an assist. Mark Boulter, Marty Tolson and Paul Venenziano scored for Emmott's with assists for Rick Joyce, Chet Brunstrom, Jack Valle, Boulter and Don Harrington.

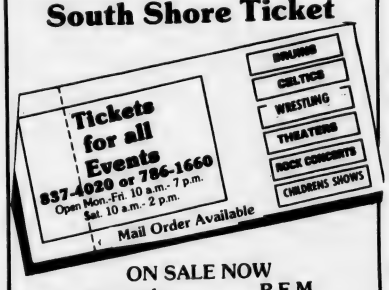
Pee Wee Bs Finish 36-15-1

Quincy's Pee Wee B hockey team, sponsored by A&T Movers, finished an excellent season last weekend with an overall 36-15-1 record when it went to the semifinals of the state championships before bowing to champion Woburn, 5-1.

Goalie Michael Manganaro recorded two shutouts as Quincy rolled over Newburyport, 11-0, and Cape Cod, 15-0, and again was outstanding in an 8-1 win over Wilbraham-Twim Meadows.

Quincy trailed, 2-1, in the second period against Woburn and the apparant tying goal was called back. Quincy couldn't recover and Woburn went on to a 5-1 win. Woburn won the title with a 5-1 win over Framingham.

Mark Smith, the backup goalie, did an excellent job when called upon to spell Manganaro during the season.



The Pee Wee B's, coached by Brian Connolly and Ernie Zimmerman, will play in a tournament in Nova Scotia in April.

Crowley succeeds Charlotte Digaicomo who remains a member of the board.

Bryant L. Carter, Jr. was elected Vice Chairman and Joseph E. Burke, Secretary of the Park and Recreation Board.

Crowley is employed by the Algonquin Gas Transmission Company as supervisor of plant accounting. He attended Quincy Public School and is a graduate of Milton High School, Bentley College and Suffolk University. A veteran of the Korean War he served in the Navy aboard the aircraft carriers USS Mindoro and

HOWARD CROWLEY

USS Leyte. He is married to the former Janet Connor and they are the parents of a son Michael, and three daughters, Donna, Gail and Diane.

He is active in community affairs and has served on the committees of many causes. Two in particular were the Committee to Keep the Wollaston Golf Open as a Recreation Complex and CAAN (Citizens Against Air Noise). He served as president of the Montclair PTA and later assisted the citywide organization of PTA's. An usher at Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy, he has served as head usher for the past 15 years. He is also a long time member of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and is a past Grand Knight and current director of the building association. He is also a member of the Cardinal Cushing Assembly, 4th degree, Knights of Columbus. He is an active member of the Koch Club and has served as director of the Montclair District, with his wife Janet, for the past 20 years.

Crowley has been a Ward 3 Commissioner on the Park and Recreation Board for the past four years. He has served as secretary for two years.

Panther Cheerleaders Place 48th Among 89 In National Championships

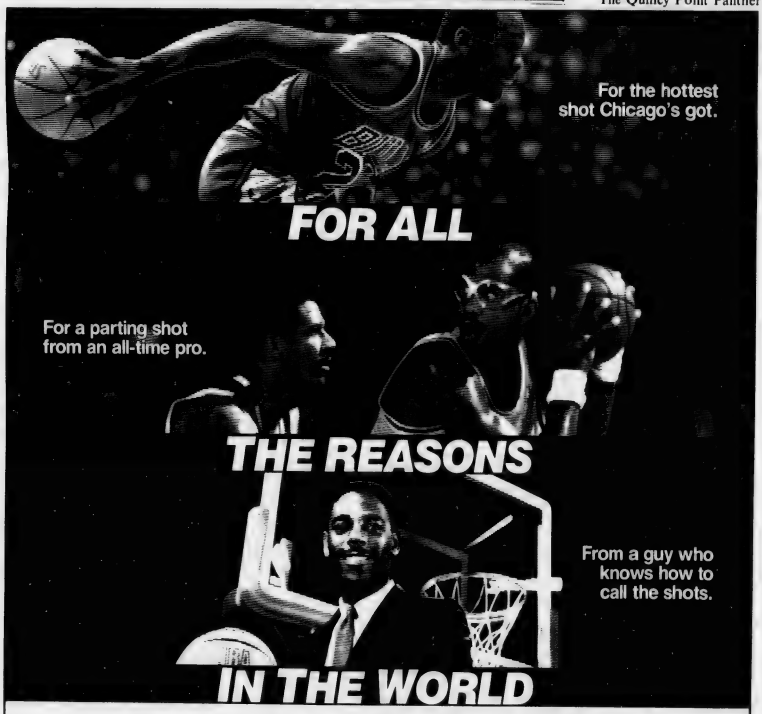
The Quincy Point Panther cheerleaders have received their critique sheet from the National Cheerleader Association and have been informed they finished 48th among 89 junior high groups in the national championships in Dallas, Tex.

There were over 500 teams in five divisions competing for national titles including junior high, high school junior varsity, high school varsity (large and small divisions) and high school co-ed.

The Panthers competed against the best in the country, many of which had been to the finals eight or nine times before and many of the teams have paid coaching and gymnastics staffs and professional choreographers.

They attended a dance with thousands of cheerleaders from across the country and exchanged Quincy Panther 'New England Champs' t-shirts with others as souvenirs.

The Panthers made it to national TV and saw themselves on all three local Dallas channels. The clip went as far as the West Coast where the Panthers' 12-girls pyramid was shown in color.



When they began practice for the nations, they were told about the strengths of the teams from Memphis, Tenn., and Choctah, Okla. These teams are sanctioned by the state as an interscholastic sport and funded with an athletic school budget of thousands of dollars. The strength of the junior high age team goes straight through their high school programs. One community from mid-Texas sent five teams to the finals and all five finished in the top ten in their categories.

The Panthers scored the highest of all competing New England teams. The New England high school teams placed in the 80s and 90s.

After the $10,000 goal was reached, the team received donations from South Shore Bank, Miss Clare Oliverio and the law office of George McMahon.

North Track Teams Finish On High Note

The North Quincy boys and girls' track teams finished out the indoor season on a high note with good showings in the state, eastern and New England championships.

In the states senior captain Robin Guilfoyle became the first North girl to ever place in two events as she raced to sixth place in the 50 and sixth in the shotput. Her time of 6.60 is an electronic time record and is actually superior to the 6.4 hand time set by Mary Kate Kennedy in 1980. Robin is also the only North girl to score in state competition in the 50. Her toss of 31-10 was her best ever by a foot.

Several other North girls were close to scoring, including miler Sherrn Quintiliani (seventy) and Karen Cashman (eighth) in the 1000.

Although no member of the boys scored, junior Kevin Macdougall turned in his best time (35.6) in the 300 and the mile relay team of MacDougall, Ryan Craig, Mike Doherty and Wayne Sit ran their best time of the year (3-50.3).

At the girls' Easterns held at Harvard the 4x800 relay team of Young, Joanne Moriarty, Bridget Toland and Quintiliani qualified for the New England championships by placing in the top six Massachusetts teams (placed fourth). Teams from Maine to Virginia competed.

In the New Englands the girls turned in their fastest time of the year (10-27.7) for fourth in the 4x800 at Brown University. Competing for North were Young (2-35.0), Quintiliani (2-36.5), Toland (2-40.5) and Cashman (2-35.4).

"This is a real shot in the arm for our program," said a happy coach Jeff Hennessy. "They rose to the occasion and a lot of the credit must go to assistant coach Nancy McCarthy, who trained these girls all winter."

Park Board Meeting March 22

The Park-Recreation Board and Park Department officials will conduct the annual managers and coaches meeting on the use of municipal ballfields for the 1989 season Wednesday, March 22.

All leagues must be represented at the meeting in order to assure a fair assessment of the permits that will be issued for the 1989 season.

The meeting will be held at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex Meeting Room, 100 Southern Artery, Merrymount Park at 7.30 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting is to resolve any duplication of requests preceding the Monday, April 3 meeting when Park and Recreation Board members approve applications presented by baseball, softball and youth soccer league teams.

Discussions will be held on the utilization of city fields by adult softball teams and the ongoing problems created for neighboring property owners by indiscriminate parking, drinking of alcoholic beverages, debris and the lack of compliance for the rules and regulations governing the use of public parks, playgrounds and beach areas.

Raymond Cattaneo, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, noted the increasing interest in adult softball, youth soccer programs and the ever increasing number of girl's and women's leagues that have developed over the past five years.

Squirt Bs Make Semifinals

Quincy's Squirt B hockey team, sponsored by Continental Cablevision, ended an outstanding season last weekend when it advanced to the semifinals of the state championships in Springfield.

Quincy, edged by Billerica, 4-3, in the semifinals, finished with an overall 33-11-1 record. It won three straight in the states before bowing to Billerica.

The team never gave up as Chris Grant scored two goals in the third period as Quincy, which out-played and outshot the winners throughout, moved to within one of a tie.

With 36 seconds left in the game goalie Timmy Sheehen, who was a standout, was taken out for the extra skater and Quincy came within inches of tying the game on a low shot by Grant in the final seconds.

Sheehan and Jason Healy shared the goalie duties in games against Natick and Haverhill and combined for shutouts in both games.

Quincy blanked Natick, 3-0, on goals by Gallagher, John Manning and Billy Barron with assists for Jimmy Kelley, Robbie Pirelli and Tommy Moriarty.

Quincy defeated Medford, 5-3, with Grant and Manning scoring two goals each and Joshua Wingate the other. Grant, Barron, Kelley and Shawn McTomney assisted.

Haverhill was the next victim, 7-0, with Manning scoring twice and Gallagher, Grant, Pirelli, Moriarty and McTomney once each.

"This was a real team effort and the kids gave it all they had through four games, playing super hockey and never giving up," said coach Bob Pirelli, who was assisted by Mike McTomney.

LeVangie Earns Third Letter

Marlo LeVangie of Quincy earned her third varsity letter in volleyball and helped her Northeastern University team to another winning season. LeVangie was a co-captain. The Huskies finished at 23-16.

"Marlo has that leadership ability that keeps people working hard," said coach Mark Massey. "The fact that she made all-tournament at four of our tournaments proves she's one of the best defensive players in New England."

She graduated from Quincy High in 1986 and lettered in volleyball, basketball and spring and winter track. She was named the Suburban League's Most Valuable Player in volleyball and was named an all-scholastic.

Mite Bs Dominate Division

Quincy's Mite B hockey team continues to dominate the Mite II Division of the Greater Boston League after winning two big games over the weekend.

Quincy defeated Pembroke, 7-2, at Neponset with Matt Flynn scoring two goals and adding two assists, Brian Gates and Mike Gallagher two goals each and Ryan Barrett one. Matt Hill had three assists and John Laukkanen, Barrett, Gallagher and Chris Carthas one each. Goalie Dennis Allen was outstanding.

Quincy also topped Belmont, 5-1, at St. Sebastian's Rink. Pat Coughlin had two goals and Hill, Gallagher and Pat McGann one each. Billy Griffin had two assists and Carthas, Flynn and Gates one each. Allen had another excellent game in goal.

Zona on RIT Hockey Team

Marisa Zona of Quincy, a product of the Quincy Youth Girls' hockey program, was a member of the Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT) women's hockey team that recently won its first ECAC Division 3 championship.

The Tigers captured the title with a 4-3 victory over St. Lawrence. They made their fourth straight ECAC post-season appearance.

Zona, a freshman defenseman and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Zona Jr., played in all 18 RIT games and had three assists.

She is majoring in technical and liberal studies.

O'Connell will become the fourth fire chief in the last seven years. His predecessors are Chief Edward Barry, Acting and then Permanent Chief Valenti and Gorman.

O'Connell joined the Quincy Fire Department in June, 1973. He was promoted to lieutenant in September, 1978, captain in November, 1984 and deputy chief in January, 1987. He has spent 14 of his 16 years at Fire Headquarters on Quincy Ave. and one year each at Wollaston and North Quincy.

A resident of Stoughton, O'Connell is a fourth generation Quincy firefighter in his family. His father was a lieutenant, his grandfather a captain and his great-grandfather a firefighter.

In all, seven O'Connells have been on the Quincy Fire Department.

O'Connell is a 1980 graduate of Massasoit Community College with an associate's degree in fire science. He is a veteran of the Vietnam War, serving in the Marine Combat Corps with the Fifth Marine Regiment and was wounded in action 1969.

License Board In Tribute To Gorman

The Quincy License Board Tuesday, acknowledged that the meeting at City Hall would be the last one served by Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman as a member of the License Board.

The new Fire Chief, Paul O'Connell, to be sworn in Thursday, will take Gorman's place on the License Board when he assumes the role of Chief.

City Clerk John Gillis said that he had served with Gorman's father before him, and that both were "credits to the City of Quincy."

Police Chief Francis Finn told Gorman "We were honored to have your presence here with us."

Robert Roche Honor Student

Robert Roche achieved academic honors during the middle marking period at Northwood School, Lake Placid, N.Y.

amount of newspaper collected from the 28,000 households in Quincy.

Currently, Quincy pays BFI $91 per ton to haul the city's trash to a landfill in Bridgewater and that figure is expected to go up to $99 per ton next year. Also, it is estimated that Quincy generates 40,000 tons of waste each year.

Officials believe that 10 percent of the total waste, or 4,000 tons, can be saved and recycled. If that happens, $360,000 will be saved in disposal costs this year.

However, it will cost the city $249,500 to have BFI pick up the trash, thus the savings will be about $100,000.

To recycle 4,000 tons, it is estimated that 67 percent of the city's residents will need to participate in the program. Both McCauley and Chretien emphasizd that the city could see higher savings if a higher percentage of residents participate.

"I think we're going to get the participation of the city's residents and I think the percentage of residents participating will increase as the program gets underway," McCauley said.

Chretien announced that an intense effort to educate the public on the details of the program will begin in April. The education push will include a mass mailing, public meetings in each of the city's six wards and advertisements and public service announcements in the Quincy media.

The mayor will also send out his own letter a few days before the May 1 start up date to remind residents about the program.

To help the program be successful, Chretien said he plans to introduce an ordinance at the March 20th City Council meeting which, if approved, would make the program mandatory. He said the ordinance is intended to make residents aware that this is a serious program and that he hopes residents will participate in the program willingly.

"I don't envision bringing out trash police. The ordinance would at least say to the residents of Quincy that the Mayor and the City Council think this is a serious program," Chretien said.

As for expanding the program to include other materials such as leaves, glass and plastics, McCauley and Chretien said they would examine the success of the paper program first.

"We've started the paper and I think that's the logical place to start. We want to proceed slowly and deliberately," the mayor said.

Wine And Beer License Granted To Restaurant

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board last week granted a request from Richard Carriger for a wine and malt license for the Pilgrim Restaurant, 1472 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Carriger, who was before the board with the support of George Riley of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, told the board he has had requests from his customers for wine and beer.

He told the board he has no intention of adding a bar to the establishment, but is upgrading his menu and wants the license to compliment his food.

He also told the board he does not have a generally young crowd but will be very strict on asking for identification. He said alos that he has no present plans to change the sign to advertise the availability of beer and wine.

"I'm not going to push this," he said, "I just wnat it to compliment my menu."

The board granted the license noting that they have had no complaints about the establishment and requested that Carriger speak to Quincy Liquor Inspector Richard Laracy on city regulations.

Christmas Festival Committee To Meet March 22

An initial meeting for the 1989 Quincy Christmas Festival Committee will be held Wednesday, March 22 at 7 p.m. at the Patriot Ledger, 400 Crown Colony Drive, Quincy.

George White, chairman, is including in the agenda a review of the December 1988 parade critique, an update on the budget, and float activity.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall—

- Granted a request from Atty. John S. Marani representing the Quincy Bar Association, for a one day all-alcoholic license for an annual outing and clambake to be held Wednesday, June 14 at the Presidential Golf Club.

- Granted a request from David Smith on behalf of the North Quincy High School Parent Board for a Flea Market/Car Wash permit for Saturday, May 20. The fundraiser will be held on school grounds from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

- Granted a request from Rev. Gary S. Sullivan for a beer and wine permit for the annual St. Anthony Festival to be held Friday June 9 from 6 to 11 p.m. and Saturday, June 10 from noon to 11.30 p.m. at St. John's Church.

- Granted a request from Joseph J. Sullivan from the George Bryan VFW Post, Broad St. for a Poppy Drive to be held May 18-19-20. (Rain dates will be May 25-26-27).

- Granted a request from Harris W. Johnson of Johnson's Filling Station, 700 Hancock St., for a license to store 500 gallons of gasoline above ground and 31,000 gallons of gasoline under ground.

- Granted a request from James P. Nazzaro, of Stop & Shop, 495 Southern Artery, for a common victualer license for the purpose of serving coffee and danish, sandwiches and a salad bar. The store had previously been doing so without a license because Nazzaro was unaware of the need for it, he told the Board.

- Granted a request from Fr. William McCarthy of St. John's Church, for a lodging house license for the building at 28 Phipps St. The building will provide affordable housing for "mature women over 40," Fr. McCarthy said. The board granted the license pending a team inspection by the Health, Fire and Building Inspectors.

Montilio's Opens New Store on Adams St.

A ribbon cutting ceremony recently marked the opening of the newest Montilio's Cake and Pastry store at 638 Adams St., Quincy.

The pastry shop, a replica of the original Montilio's on Chestnut St. in Quincy Center, has spacious parking accommodations. Offices may call 472-6800, place their orders and pick them up within minutes.

There are parking meters at the location.

A full service Montilio's, the shop offers delivery service three times a day.

The first delivery is made at 5.30 a.m. and features fresh donuts, muffins, danish pastry, coffee and juice.

Second delivery at 10 a.m. and third delivery at 4 p.m. features fresh hot breads, rolls and pastry.

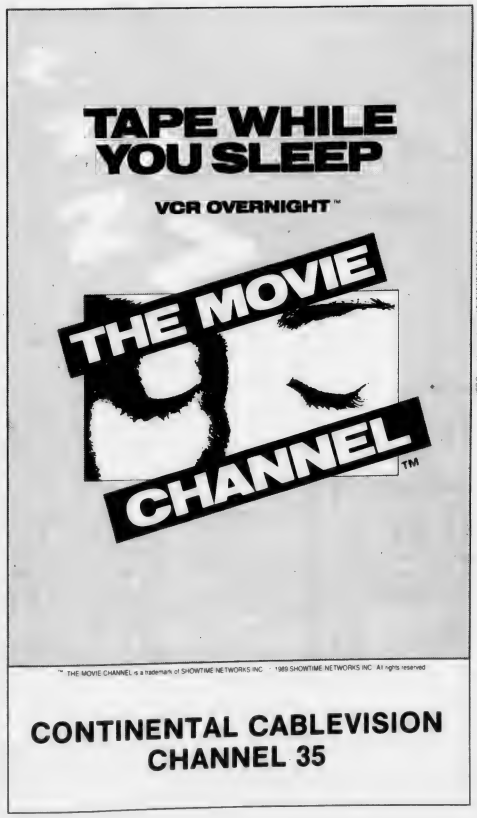
Montilio's is expected to open other express systems in Salem and Concord.

Customers can also view the newest innovation in computers — the "Create a Cake" decorator. Patrons may bring in photographs of children or birthday celebrants and the image is transferred onto the birthday cake.

Holiday designs, company logos and family or college crests may be replicated in one hour.



Repeating A Grade Topic For Merrymount PTO

The Merrymount PTO will meet March 21 at 7.30 p.m. in the school media center.

Mrs. Patricia Crisp, kindergarten teacher, will speak on the subject.

Nominations will be held for 1989-90 PTO officers.

Holbrook Rd. Parking Hearing Continued

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday continued for three months a hearing concerning parking problems on Holbrook Rd., North Quincy.

The problems involve vehicles belonging to Robert V. Whitman, doing business as Trucks of Quincy, 51 Holbrook Rd., and Karl's Auto Body, 65 Holbrook Rd., managed by Robert Donovan.

The hearing was originally heard Feb. 21 and was continued for three weeks during which time the matter was to be corrected.

The board noted Tuesday that Donovan will be moving from the North Quincy location to Granite Ave. in Dorchester and that the move should be completed within 90 days.

Whitman, who appeared before the board, noted he had seen MBTA commuters park their cars in the area and then walk to the station. He told the board he had notified police of that situation and that ticketing by meter maids seemed to have put an end to the problem.

He also told the board he had attended one neighborhood meeting on the matter of the parking.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien told the board "the situation is better than it was at (the time of) the last meeting," but said that he would like to "see what happens when Donovan leaves," indicating that there may be improvement in the situation.

The board continued the hearing for three months as requested by Chretien.

Finnegan Sun Citizen Of Year Award Ceremony On Ch. 26

A one-hour special on the 1988 Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year" ceremony honoring Quincy Public Schools Athletic Director Martin (Marty) Finnegan will be shown in its entirety tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. on Sun Channel 26.

Videotaped at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center March 5, the reception was attended by over 100 people, including Finnegan's family, co-workers and friends and city officials.

Featured speakers were Mayor Francis McCauley and Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth. Senator Paul Harold was master of ceremonies.

Among the highlights of the ceremony were the presentation of the "Citizen of the Year Award" to Finnegan by Bosworth, Finnegan's acceptance remarks, and a singing tribute to Finnegan by three of his grandchildren.

'Youth Under Seige' On Ch. 3

A five part series entitled "Youth Under Seige" is being presented by "Better Living" on Continental Cablevision Channel 3 in Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

WEEK OF: March 16

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You're a creative soul and a loyal friend, in tune with nature and with the feelings of others. Creative expression is the theme of the year; you should make your mark by late '89, early '90.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Thursday-Friday are favorable for reconciliations. Family obligations may expand over the weekend. Romancewise, your hunches may be very strong from Monday through Wednesday.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Friday-Sunday may see you finalizing travel plans. Monday-Wednesday should be generally favorable for property matters. Friends may now lean less heavily on your shoulders.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Thursday-Friday find you making a pitch for a pet project; efforts may be rewarded by Wednesday. Mechanical challenges may be beyond your scope.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Week is favorable for creative projects, especially those involving some sort of interpretation. Co-workers are more congenial. Legal or property matter may require further work.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
After a few small setbacks, a personally important project gets the go-ahead, likely around Tuesday. Family looks to you for leadership. Health and fitness should be high priorities.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Ideas stored away in your memory-bank can be put to effective use at this time. The achievement of family plans becomes increasingly realistic. Romance may enjoy more spontaneity.

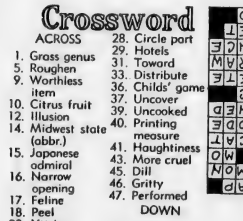
LEO — July 23 - August 22
Thursday-Friday see increases in job status; Monday finds you dealing with new responsibilities. Partner is less willing to compromise. Relative shows a new, more generous side.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Affluent individual may show interest in backing one of your projects, but don't act impulsively. Family member is more cooperative. Don't ignore health needs, no matter how routine.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Thursday-Friday highlight nostalgia; you may be taking a trip to the past. Weekend offers chance for patchups. Partnership arrangements demand review from Monday on.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Arrangements involving shared finances require careful sorting out at this time. Social calendar is quickly filling up; be very careful not to double-book. Skills improvement is on week's agenda.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Week finds you sifting through documents and tending to bookkeeping chores. Don't hesitate to issue reminders, especially to friends who normally are not absent-minded types.



CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Fashion is a theme of a week that sees you updating wardrobe and modifying your style. Rare opportunity allows you to pick the brain of someone you hold in great regard.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage given by ROBERT K. MITCHELL and KATHLEEN I. MITCHELL to Eagle Mortgage Corp. dated May 5, 1988 and recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 7956, Page 34, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing same will be sold at public auction at 2:00 o'clock p.m. on the 4th day of April, 1989 at 1344 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy, Massachusetts, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage.

TO WIT:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts and being shown as Lot 227 on Pilgrim Boulevard, now known as Wm. T. Morissey Boulevard, on "corrected Plan of Merrymount No. 2, made by Ernest W. Branch, C.T.", dated December, 1921, recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 1510, Page 281, and bounded and described as follows:

EASTERLY by land of owners unknown, fifty-eight (58) feet; and

AREA Contains 5800 square feet of land.

For title see deed of Thomas C. Healy, Trustee of the Moreland Realty Trust recorded on November 22, 1971 with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 4788, Page 207.

TERMS OF SALE:

Said premises will be sold and conveyed subject to a mortgage to Quincy Co-operative Bank dated November 18, 1971 in the original principal amount of $31,000.00 and recorded with Norfolk County Registry of deeds in Book 4788, Page 208 and also subject to a mortgage to Shawmut Bank of Boston N.A. dated July 26, 1983 and reocrded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6215, Page 37 and further subject to and with the benefit of all, if any, rights, rights of way, restrictions, easements, covenants, improvements, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens and existing encumbrances of record, if any there be, insofar as the same are in force and applicable, created prior to the said mortgage which is being foreclosed.

A deposit of TEN THOUSAND ($10,000.00) DOLLARS by certified or bank cashier's check - no cash - will be required to be made at the time and place of the sale. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash or by certified check or bank cashier's check at the offices of Shocket & Dockser, One Apple Hill, Suite 225, (Route 9), Natick, Massachusetts, within twenty (20) days after the sale which balance is to be deposited in escrow with the firm of Shocket & Dockser, pending approval of said sale by the Norfolk Superior Court. Deed to be taken within ten (10) days from the date of the approval of said sale by the Norfolk Superior Court.

The successful bidder, other than the mortgagee, shall give the required deposit to Shocket & Dockser, One Apple Hill, Suite 225, Natick, Massachusetts 01760, which deposit shall be retained by the mortgagee if the successful bidder shall refuse to sign this Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate, or if, after signing, the successfull bidder does not perform his or her obligations hereunder. If the deposit is so retained, it shall become the property of the mortgagee as seller under this Agreement, and shall not be applied on the mortgage debt and such retention of the deposit shall not release the successful bidder from his or her obligations hereunder, should the mortgagee decide to pursue the same and or cease to pursue any and all other rights, remedies, and courses from time to time available.

The premises shall be conveyed by the usual foreclosure deed under the statutory power of sale, subject to the foregoing, and, in addition, subject to any and all unpaid taxes, tax titles, tax liens, water and sewer rates and any other municipal assessments or liens.

The sale shall not be deemed complete until the successful bidder shall have made his or her deposit and signed this Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate. The balance of the consideration is to be paid at the offices of Shocket & Dockser, One Apple Hill, Suite 225, Natick, Massachusetts, on or before 10:00 o'clock on the twentieth (20th) day following the sale, provided that such day is one on which the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is open for business, and if not, then on the next day on which such Registry is open for business. Time is of the essence as regards to this Agreement.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the sale.

Most holy apostle St. Jude, faithful servant and friend of Jesus the Church honors and invokes you universally as the patron of hopeless cases, of things most despaired of, pray for me I am so helpless and alone. Make use I implore you to bring visible and speedy help where help is almost despaired of. Come to my assistance in this great need that I may receive the consolation and help of heaven in all my necessities, tribulations and sufferings, particularly — (here make your request) and that I may praise God with you and all the elect forever. I promise O blessed St. Jude to be ever mindful of this great favor to always honor you as my special and powerful patron and to gratefully encourage devotion to you. Amen.

O'Connell Demands Concessions From MWRA

Mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell met last week with Paul Levy, Executive Director of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and told him he will continue to fight for compensation for Quincy for locating the MWRA sludge facility at the former General Dynamics Shipyard.

"I told Mr. Levy that the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has an obligation to compensate the City of Quincy for becoming the site of the sludge plant over the objections of a majority of its' residents," O'Connell said. "Compensation is the least the MWRA can do for Quincy."

O'Connell said he would expect that compensation be in the form of funding to assist in such areas as offsetting the rise in water and sewer rates, education, public safety and traffic control.

Additionally O'Connell discussed the concerns of the Quincy Point area residents. Among those were the need to create buffer zones around the facility, return control of the unused portion of the shipyard to the City of Quincy, and ensure proper control of environmental and pollution issues.

O'Connell said he strongly endorses Congressman Brian Donnelly's actions to force the MWRA to locate its' headquarters adjacent to the sludge plant at the Shipyard.

O'Connell said that if the headquarters is located at the Shipyard the MWRA will be forced to develop a master plan to assure that the area is properly redeveloped and the concerns of the area residents are not forgotten.

Locating the headquarters at the Shipyard will ensure that the residential property values will not decrease.

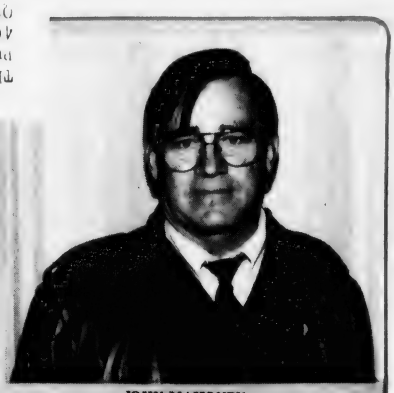
Schools Social Health Coordi-

'Safeguards Needed Before Methadone Allowed Here'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Before a mobile methadone clinic is allowed to come to Quincy, officials should make sure certain safeguards are in place, advises the social health coordinator for Quincy Public Schools.



John (Butch) Mahoney, the Quincy Schools social health coordinator, says these safeguards should address entrance criteria, phases and length of treatment and perhaps most importantly, the way the methadone is administered.

The state proposes to site a mobile methadone clinic in Quincy. Methadone is a synthetic drug used to help wean heroin users from their addiction.

Both Mayor Francis McCauley and city councillors have expressed their concern over the van which would be operated by Habit Management, Inc., a profit-making company.

Mahoney is no stranger to the methadone van concept. Back in 1972, he, along with several other prominent city officials such as Mayor Walter Hannon and Dr. Charles Djerf, set up a "total" drug treatment program in Quincy to help residents addicted to heroin.

Finn Blames McCauley For Police Cuts

Mayor Won't Fund $250,000 Shortfall

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Stressing that the city must finish up this year in the best fiscal shape possible, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday he will not fund a shortfall of $250,000 in the police personal services budget.

"We've got to finish fiscal year 1989 in as good a shape as we can. We have to build up our free cash," McCauley said, adding that the city faces a potential deficit of $6 million next year largely in part because of escalating sewer, water and rubbish hauling costs.

"Money is tightening up. We don't have the money that we used to have to spend," the mayor said, referring to past surpluses. To drive this point home, McCauley said he will meet with Police Chief Francis Finn and new Fire Chief Paul O'Connell and "stress the fact that we have to make do with what we have."

The mayor was responding to a 90-minute City Council Public Safety Committee meeting Monday night. It was highlighted by an explanation by Finn on the current $250,000 shortfall.

With the shortfall, Finn told city councillors Monday night that a public safety crisis does not exist now but added that one looms in the future.

Asked whether a crisis exists now, the mayor replied, "Public safety is not at risk. Serious crime has gone down dramatically in recent years. I don't believe the safety of our citizens is in jeopardy."

At Monday night's meeting attended by approximately 50 citizens including police officers and business people, Finn explained his side to the budget issue and defended his recently adopted policy of cutbacks in police patrols.

Because of the shortfall, Finn was given an ultimatum by McCauley several weeks ago to bring his overtime spending under control. Finn regularly uses officers on overtime to cover for regular officers.

To address the shortfall, Finn instituted a new policy of cutting overtime in half and leaving some beats unpatrolled when the regularly scheduled officer is unavailable.

The cutbacks drew criticism from the 160-member Police Patrolmen's Association. The association solicited a letter to city officials and to the press urging Finn to ask for more money from the mayor or consider retiring.

Since the crisis surfaced, Finn has postponed any public comment until Monday night's meeting. During the meeting, he gave his side to the situation and emphatically announced that he has no intention of retiring in the near future.

Finn, who has been chief for approximately 20 years, said he wants to see the new police station completed and a history of the department finished before he retires.

He also said "I will not go out under a cloud."

Cahill, Nutley Against Mandatory Recycling

The City Council is unanimous in its support for a city-wide recycling program but two councillors are against any ordinance that would make it mandatory.

Introduced by Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien and Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets, a resolution stating the council approves of a paper recycling program scheduled to begin May 1 received unanimous approval.

The recommendation to start the program was made last week by Mayor Francis McCauley and the city's Recycling Committee, which is chaired by Chretien. It is estimated the program could save the city $100,000 in disposal costs and perhaps more with a high percentage of resident participation.

The shortage of landfill capacity has caused solid waste disposal costs to skyrocket in recent years. In Quincy, that figure is now more than $90 per ton.

"It's important that the city council give its stamp of approval," adding that an ordinance to make the program "somewhat mandated" is being considered.

Although they voted for the resolution, Councillors Timothy Cahill and Thomas Nutley went on record against any ordinance calling for a mandatory recycling program. They agreed the program, which will include dwellings with four or less units, should be on a volunteer basis.

Also, as it is currently structured, pickups would be done every other week. To avoid confusion, Nutley suggested that the schedule be more definite, such as the first and third weeks of every month.

Chretien replied that a more structured schedule probably won't be necessary since an intense public education program on the recycling will "probably handle that issue."

No Liquor Sales Noon To 3 P.M. On Good Friday

The Quincy License Board Tuesday ordered all liquor licensees in the city to refrain from selling and serving alcohol between the hours of noon and 3 p.m. on Good Friday.

The motion includes package stores as well as restaurants and bars in the city.

$40,100 Awarded To Fight Narcotics

The Massachusetts Committee on Criminal Justice has awarded $40,100 in federal funds to the City of Quincy to support existing narcotic units in the police department, announces Rep. Michael Morrissey.

This is the second year that Quincy has received such funding. This year, the money will be used to develop intelligence systems and to police specific areas within the city where a high level of drug activity exists.

Last year, funding was used to increase the number of officers committed to drug enforcement and to establish drug hotlines.

"Quincy is very fortunate to have received this funding," Morrissey said. "While the problem of drug abuse grows, funding for the narcotic unit is essential to help combat the problem."

HUD To Recognize Germantown Center

In conjunction with National Community Development Week March 24-31, the Germantown Neighborhood Center will receive a Certificate of National Recognition by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The award is part of HUD's National Recognition Program for Urban Development Excellence. It will be presented Thursday, March 30 at 10 a.m. at the Germantown Center, 333 Palmer St.

On hand to receive the award will be Mayor Francis McCauley, Charlene McDonald, director of the Germantown Center, the Rev. Gary Jones, president of the Germantown Neighborhood Council, and Ruth Norton, board member of the Germantown Neighborhood Council and area resident.

The award will be presented by Robert Brown, program manager of HUD's Office of Community Planning and Development (CPD), and Linda Ellenbogen, CPD representative.

Since December, 1982, the Germantown Neighborhood Center has been in operation through HUD's Community Development Block Grant Program monies received by Quincy.

Robert Gibbons Named Governor's Legislative Director

He had previously served as Deputy Legislative Director since September of 1987.

Gibbons, 36, also worked in the Executive Office of Public Safety. He was Legislative Director for that office from 1983 to 1987 and served as Assistant Secretary of Public Safety from 1986 to 1987.

Gibbons was raised in East Boston and was a graduate of Boston English High School. He received his degree in Government from Suffolk University in 1978.

He has been a member of the Democratic State Committee for the Norfolk District since 1984.

ROBERT GIBBONS

Board Grants Restaurant License

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Mohamoud M. Hassan for a common victualer license at 4 Read St. as held by E-Z Way Coffee Shop.

The board noted that the shop has been closed for approximately two years.

Hassan told the board that he plans to open a small restaurant with seating for 16 to 20 people and also operate a catering service.

According to the zoning by-laws, when an establishment has been closed for two years, it must be re-checked to ensure that it meets current zoning requirements.

The license was granted pending the zoning check, a team inspection by the Health, Fire and Building departments, and a security check by the Police department. The board also noted that zoning approval may be necessary for the catering aspect of the business.

Quincy Woman Killed In Auto Accident

She was pronounced dead at Rhode Island Hospital at 8:30 p.m. several hours after the crash.

Police said the driver of the car, Kathy Thomas, was turning left near the intersection of Route 6 and Michaels Ave. in Swansea when her Suburu collided with a car driven by Robert Burke of Swansea.

McCaughey, who was in the back seat, was thrown through the rear passenger window, police said. She was found eight to ten feet behind the car, police said.

Thomas, of Boston and Terri Lontogne of Rehoboth, who was in the front passenger seat, were treated and released from Charlton Memorial Hospital in Fall River. They sustained head and neck injuries and facial cuts. Burke was not injured in the collision.

Police are investigating the accident and said heavy rains may have contributed.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall.

- Granted a request from Loretta Rizzy representing the North Quincy High School Cheer Leaders, for canning dates on Friday and Saturday, March 24 and 25, and on Friday and Saturday, April 14 and 15. Friday hours will be from 3 to 9 p.m. and Saturday hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- Granted a request from the North Quincy High School Drama Club for canning dates on Friday, April 28 from 4 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, April 29 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.
- Granted a request from Carol A. Block representing the Woodward School, for a one day all-alcoholic license for a Las Vegas Nite to be held Saturday, April 8 from 7 p.m. to midnight. No food will be served.

Con Com Public Hearings March 28

There will be a public meeting of the Quincy Conservation Commission Tuesday, March 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall Annex.

Scheduled are discussions of dumping of fill in a buffer zone at Nut Island by Chris Barnett, MWRA, and of a condominium project on Merrymount Road by John Sullivan of J&J Realty.

Notices of Intent to be heard at the public hearing are by,

Thomas and Lori Rines for construction of a single-family dwelling at 5-11 Gertrude Ave., Quincy.

'Quincy' Must Be Kept In Hospital's Name, Director Told

The word "city" can be dropped but "Quincy" must be kept if the name Quincy City Hospital is to change, several city councillors told the hospital director Monday night.

During a meeting of the council's Public Health and Hospital Committee, director Mark Mundy presented his rationale for a possible name change. After his short presentation, councillors generally agreed that "city" could be dropped but "Quincy" must remain if the name of the hospital is changed.

Regardless of a name change, several councillors also said it is vital to keep the city concept alive at the hospital.

"I don't think this is a major issue but if you want to go into the next century with a new name, that's fine with me," Council President Patricia Toland told Mundy.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets added, "It's very important that we have immediate access to such a very fine hospital."

No new names were discussed.

In explaining his rationale for a possible name change, Mundy referred to a recent opinion survey in the Wall Street Journal. The survey asked the public about their perception of a hospital's level of care when only the name is considered.

According to the poll, 27 percent said hospitals with a religious affiliation provided the best care, 23 percent for independent, non-profit, 12 percent for profit hospitals and only nine percent for hospitals with city or county in the name.

"This is an indeed simplistic graph but it does deal with public perception and perception is an important part of hospitals and health care business," Mundy said.

Sheets asked Mundy if there had been any input by the business community for a possible change. The director replied that one local employer said "just the name is a turnoff."

Another employer with 175 employees told Mundy, "I just couldn't rate Quincy City Hospital but based on the fact that it's a city hospital, I say just avoid it."

Furthermore, Mundy pointed out that only three hospitals in the state have the word city in their name. They are- Boston, Worcester and Quincy. Cambridge Hospital recently dropped the word city.

He added other city hospitals in the state do not use the word "city" in their name.

Quincy is fine but the word city doesn't convey the best image of good health care and service," Mundy said.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro did not fully agree with Mundy's rationale. Although the name has city in it, he said people "still get damn good care there."

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley said he supports a change.

"It's unfortunate but perception is important," he said. "One doesn't want to be elitist but it would be nice to bring the hospital into a new century with a new name."

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien said he wants the hospital's advisory committee and employees surveyed before a change is made.

"At this point in time, I really don't feel one way or the other about changing the name," Chretien said.

Sheets said he will call another meeting of the Hospital Committee in the near future. At that time, it is hoped information about how the employees and advisory board stand on the issues will be available.

City Council Opposes Banning Fishing In Quincy Bay

The City Council has gone on record against a House bill that if passed, would ban lobstering, clam digging and fishing from Quincy Bay.

The council voted 9-0 Monday night in favor of a resolution which opposes any legislation that would deny fishing, lobstering or clam digging from Quincy Bay. The resolution was introduced by Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney.

The resolution was drafted and acted on in response to House Bill 5235 which is currently under consideration by the state legislature. As presently worded, the bill would prohibit the lobstering, digging and fishing in all areas within a radius of 1,000 feet in any direction from the point of sewer discharge and a radius of 2,000 feet from the Nut Island and Deer Island outfalls.

Cheney said this bill would destroy fishing and lobstering in Quincy Bay, thereby denying several hundred Quincy residents from "directly or indirectly" earning a living.

However, he acknowledged that the party responsible for drafting the bill probably meant well.

"Whoever drafted this bill had good intentions but did not realize the fact that fish move around," adding that lobsters can travel 80 miles in three or four days.

For this reason, Cheney said it would be unfair to ban fishing, digging and lobstering in Quincy Bay since fish and other marine life can travel in and out of Quincy waters. He also pointed out that the famous Maine lobsters could be traveling down to Quincy.

Auto Agency Given Permission To Relocate Stored Vehicles

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday had no objections to a proposal by Baystate Volkswagen, Inc., 625 Southern Artery, to relocate vehicles stored in a salvage lot across the street from the dealership to a licensed parking lot on South St., owned by Peter Gangi.

In a March 7 hearing the board had allowed Baystate a period of two weeks to remove the cars from the salvage lot.

Atty. Carl Johnson, representing Baystate, told the board that the parking lot, which had been used by General Dynamics "for a number of years," was licensed with the board for the parking of 100 cars. Johnson said that Gangi had agreed to allow the dealership to use the lot to store vehicles.

The parking lot is zoned Industrial "B", which allows for the use, but the board noted that there is a ten foot buffer zone around the parking lot which must be adhered to. The board also suggested that Ward Two Councillor Ted DeCristofaro be contacted on the matter because the parking lot is in his ward.

NQHS Teachers Deliver Clothing To Students In Haiti

North Quincy High School teachers, Carol Swanson and Diane Daren visited Haiti during the February school vacation to deliver school supplies and clothing to students of the Holy Family Elementary School in that country.

The Holy Family Elementary School was established by Sylvio Hyppolite, a teacher in Cambridge, MA and a native of Haiti, in an effort to fight the 90 percent illiteracy rate in Haiti.

The school has 14 teachers and 400 students.

QHS Wrestling Team Appreciates Coverage

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

Now that the wrestling season has come to a close, the opportunity has presented itself to thank some of the people who made the season enjoyable, as well as successful.

Those who were involved with the Quincy High School Wrestling Team felt that you were part of the team which contributed to the effort. We want you to know that you were appreciated for your specific efforts.

As our major local newspaper, you were very willing to publicize the efforts of the team. Your articles were lengthy and detailed and on several occasions you were able to supply a photographer to cover the story.

We all hope that the smoothness and quality of work shown this year will continue on into the future. Thanks again and we look forward to working with you again next year.

WHAT'S THE RIGHT POLICY FOR YOU?

(Part 2 of 3) Term Insurance

Last week we spoke of a whole life policy with the premiums being paid for the life of insured, and the policy having a cash value buildup. Contrary to this concept is the policy known as term insurance.

As the name implies, this policy is purchased for a term duration. You can contract for a one year term, which means that the premium will go up in cost each year for the life of the contract, or you may contract for a level of premium for a given period, I.E. 5 years. This means that every five years the premium will increase, and unlike whole life, there is no cash value.

Some term policies are known as convertible term, which gives you the right to convert your term insurance to a permanent type of contract.

In certain states, term insurance has to cease at age 70. Please be sure that your coverage is what you need.

For professional advice on all of your insurance needs please contact the experts at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Call us at 471-6200 or stop by our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy.

McCauley Taking Real Estate Course

McCAULEY

But, it doesn't necessarily mean he is going into the real estate business when he leaves office at the end of the year.

"I have always wanted to take this course," he says. "This year I had the time to do it."

He plans to take the state examination for his broker's license after completing the course.

"It doesn't mean that I will go into the real estate business," he says. "Having a broker's license is something that could come in handy, some day."

He is about half-way through the course which he started in January. He has to complete 24 hours of classes before taking the exam.

He goes to class one night a week for two and a half hours.

He shoots down speculation that he might go into the real estate business with his administrative assistant, Arthur Foley when the pair depart City Hall.

"No," he says, "there are no such plans."

He also spikes another rumor that he will head the new Quincy branch of the Boston Five Cent Savings which will be located in Presidents Place now nearing completion on the site of the old Bargain Center.

"There's nothing to that," says McCauley.

"I have no plans for anything right now," he insists. "It's still early for that. I have nine months before leaving office."

Would he like to be out there again campaigning for mayor?

"No," he says. "I went out to get my newspaper early the other morning and I saw the O'Connell (Peter) people unloading campaign signs and I felt good that it wasn't my signs.

"I've been through that, and the beano games, the supermarkets, and all that.

"Actually when I saw them with all those signs I said to myself, there for the grace of God, go I."

□

DARRIN McAULIFFE, who seemed all set to run for the Ward 4 City Council seat has decided not to.

McAuliffe originally had planned to officially announce at a kickoff March 29 at the Sons of Italy.

"Because of personal and family reasons and long-term future career goals I have decided after talking it over with my family not to run this year," he says.

He says he is "most grateful" to those who supported his candidacy and will later make a formal statement.

"Although I have decided not to run this year, I plan to be back as a candidate in two years," he says.

"You'll definitely be hearing from me."

That leaves Tom Fabrizio and Joseph Shea as the two official candidates so far for the Ward 4 seat being vacated by James Sheets to run for mayor.

□

ROBERT HARNAIS is also withdrawing from the Ward 4 City Council race and is throwing his support to Joseph Shea.

Harnais feels he doesn't have sufficient time to campaign effectively because he is studying to take the Mass. Bar exam in July.

Harnais says he wants to thank all those who supported him.

□

THE DEPARTURE of McAuliffe and Harnais turns the spotlight on Keith Westerman as far as whether there will be a primary election for the Ward 4 City Council seat.

WESTERMAN

Westerman has indicated he is running. If he gets in as an official candidate there will be a primary. If he doesn't, there may not be one.

Tom Fabrizio and Shea are the only two official candidates at the moment. All the other potential candidates -- with the exception of Westerman -- have withdrawn.

Three candidates are needed for a primary.

□

KEVIN BURKE says he's still "stongly considering" running for City Council at-large.

K. BURKE

He and his wife, Judy, are the parents of a daughter, Jacquelyn Elizabeth, their first child, born March 5 at Brigham and Women's Hospital. Jacquelyn weighed in at 9 pounds, 1½ ounces.

Burke, who lost a Ward 5 City Council primary nomination by one vote two years ago, had said he would hold off with a decision about running this year until after the baby was born.

He says he, Judy and Jacquelyn are going to have "a family discussion" about whether he should run.

"Seriously, though I am very interested in running," he says. "I see so much happening in the city. I feel I could be a positive influence."

He says he will have to take into consideration his family and growing law practice before making a final decision.

He says he will probably make that decision by the end of the month.

□

SAL GIARRATANI, a political columnist for several Boston weeklies and letter-to-the-editor writer to other newspapers (including The Sun) has made his decision.

GIARRATANI

Giarrantani had been thinking of running for either the School Committee or for the Ward 6 City Council seat occupied by Tom Nutley. He has decided to run for the School Committee.

Giarrantani plans to make an official announcement in April at a meeting of the Quincy Republican City Committee.

Giarrantani, who came to Quincy in 1984 was a community activist in Charlestown. He's active in AFSCME Local 470 in Boston and last year was union coordinator for Vote No on Question 2.

Giarrantani says he considers himself a "common sense political moderate" who has worked in many campaigns for both Democrats and Republicans.

He was a volunteer worker for Frank Bellotti's bid for governor.

Giarrantani notes that although he is a relatively newcomer to Quincy, his mother's family has deep Quincy roots dating back a near half century.

March Special Needs Awareness Month

March has been proclaimed "Special Needs Awareness Month" in Quincy by Mayor Francis McCauley.

To increase the community's sensitivity to and awareness to persons with special needs, the Quincy Commission on Handicapped Affairs is sponsoring an exhibit at the Thomas Crane Public Library now through March 31.

The commission was established for the purpose of coordinating or carrying out programs designed to meet the problems of the handicapped. McCauley said the city "desires to promote opportunities for the handicapped to enable them to use the full range of their potential."

McCauley: Lean Times Ahead For City

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Lean times are ahead for the city of Quincy was the message Mayor Francis McCauley delivered last week during his financial outlook analysis seminar at City Hall.

McCauley reviewed the city's financial situation in fiscal year 1989, financial projection for fiscal 1990 and analyzed next year's budget which begins this July 1. He also discussed state aid, school enrollment, property tax and other revenue collections and the city reserves.

The seminar was attended by approximately 50 people, including city councillors, department personnel, school committee members and private citizens.

In projecting the budget for FY 1990, McCauley said the city could face a shortfall of close to $6 million but added there should be enough revenue in the free cash account to cover the deficit. As of March 16, $6,987,659 was available in surplus revenue.

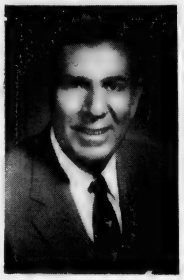
However, the mayor was not as optimistic about the city's finances after 1990. He said escalating water and sewer assessments, rising trash hauling costs, decreasing state aid and the possible disappearance of a free cash surplus could add up to an "intolerable situation" in Quincy.

The mayor estimated the city's budget will amount to $117,802,090 for the next fiscal year. However, he says only $111,880,769 will be available for appropriation, resulting in a shortfall of $5,921,321. But this shortfall should be covered by the city's free cash account.

The good news-bad news scenario was played out a bit more as the mayor announced the budget numbers do not include unforeseen expenses, such as this year's emergency situation at the Central Middle School. He said it is imperative to have some surplus available to handle these situations.

But because of the increasing water and sewer assessments, rising costs in rubbish hauling and decreasing state aid, McCauley said the city might not have this financial cushion much longer.

Another reason for the crunch is that the factors that made Prop 2 and a half work don't carry the same weight anymore. When Prop 2 and a half this was adopted in the early 1980s, it was successful for two reasons, the mayor said.



One, state aid to cities and towns was on the upswing. For example, in 1982, Quincy received a net increase of $3.7 million or 59 percent in state aid over 1981 and in 1983, the city received a net increase of $7.8 million or almost 80 percent over the previous year.

But in recent years, that number has been declining. In 1988, there was an increase of just 3.3 percent, or a little more than $1 million and last year, the increase was $804,000, an increase of 2 percent over the prior year.

In drafting his budget for 1990, McCauley estimated Quincy would receive $38,718,127 in state aid, the same amount received last year. Despite some reports that state aid will be curtailed this year, McCauley is hopeful the city will receive at least the same amount it received last year.

The other reason why Prop 2 and a half worked well in the early 1980s in Quincy was the decline in school enrollment which enabled the school budget to be reduced.

In 1982, enrollment dropped from 12,206 to 10,952 students, a decrease of 1,254 or 10 percent. The school budget for that year decreased $6.5 million, from $33.4 million to just under $27 million.

This year, enrollment was 7,918 while the budget was $35,703,000. Next year, for the first time in at least eight years, an increase is projected in enrollment, with perhaps 166 more students.

The FY 1990 budget for the school year, which was to be discussed at Wednesday's school committee meeting, is estimated to be $38 million, an increase of $2.2 million over last year.

McCauley noted that increases in the school budget over the past five years took into account inflation.

As for water and sewer assessments, McCauley revealed figures showing that the increase in total assessments in fiscal 1990 over 1989 will be about 46 percent.

This year, the total assessment was $5,431,091, of which $1,770,330 was for water and $3,660,761 was sewer. Next year, the total assessment is expected to be $7,965,568, of which $2,386,303 is water and $5,579,265 is sewer.

It is estimated that water and sewer assessments will increase $6,184,810 or 347 percent over the 1986-1990 period.

To offset escalating water and sewer as well as rubbish costs, McCauley said the next mayor or the city council should look into this problem, and perhaps consider adopting a sewer user fee or trash fee. Last year, the mayor proposed a fee but it fell short in the council by one vote.

"I did my thing last year but it was turned down. I doubt anyone will propose a sewer user fee or a trash hauling fee in an election year but I might be surprised."

Where does the city go from here?

McCauley, who will leave office next January, had this advice,

"We have to build in the free cash account. We have to finish this year in as good a shape as we can because we face a million dollar deficit next year."

Because of the potential deficit, free cash needs to be built up in order to meet that deficit.

To help achieve this goal, the city is hoping to collect $1.3 million in delinquet taxes. "The more money that we collect, the more free cash we have," the mayor said.

McCauley, who is conservative with his estimates, said some figures will change, "hopefully for the better."

Numbers that might change include estimated receipts and the amount of state aid.

In discussing the school budget, the mayor was asked whether he thought 27 students in one class is an appropriate class size. He responded that he "doesn't have a hang up with that."

As for the dollar figure for this year's school budget, McCauley said "I would like to see more money in the school budget but we're going to have to deal with the problems across the board."

Celebration Planned For Spanish War Vets

March 23-29
90 Years Ago

Preparations were being made to celebrate the return of Company K of the 5th Massachusetts Regiment which was being mustered out of the Army after duty in the Spanish American War.

The soldiers were to be met at the Depot by a delegation headed by mayor Harrison A. Keith, the Paul Revere Post 88, GAR, and the Francis L. Souther Camp, Sons of Veterans.

A banquet was scheduled for Thursday, April 6, at the Music Hall, with Mr. Remick of The Greenleaf catering and Theophilus King presiding over the "post prandial" festivities.

The banquet for 400 persons, estimated to cost $500, was originally scheduled for Tuesday, April 4, the day after Co. K's return, but the Music Hall was not available.

Final arrangements for the homecoming were being made by the Committee of Public Welfare, assisted by Mayor Keith and George A. Sidelinger, president of the City Council.

Meanwhile, a volunteer in Co. K, stationed in Camp Wetherill, Greenville, S.C., reported to the folks back home by letter.

"The boys are counting the number of remaining days. One called out this morning at reveille that the company had only nine more days and a breakfast."

The volunteer reported that all members of Co. K were in good health but that Pvt. Charles J. Homer of Plymouth's Co. D had died. The 13th victim of typhopneumonia.

MR. FAXON OBJECTS

An angry Henry H. Faxon took pen in hand and wrote to the editor of the Quincy Ledger:

"It was the custom years ago to require tramps, who were lodged in the lockup and supplied with cracker rations, to sweep the sidewalk in front of City Hall and the cemetery.

"I would like to be informed why that practice has been discontinued."

Sense of Class Pride At Quincy Vo-Tech

Two groups of freshmen and senior students are working independently but cooperatively to introduce a sense of class pride at Quincy Vocational Technical School.

Although vandalism is never as constant or as serious at vocational schools throughout the country as it is in general education institutions, three freshmen at Quincy Voc-Tech became so frustrated with the graffiti in the girl's lavatories, that they took on the responsibility of doing a complete paint job.

Seniors also think it important enough to improve the physical appearance of the 21 year old facility and have formed a Student Improvement Group.

Liz Fortin, a senior in the Culinary Arts Program and Eric Judson from the Electrical Shop, two leaders opting for school improvements say they are seeking students in other shops to volunteer time and expertise to repair and improve the appearance of the school.

"It is important that we convey to students that it is their problem when the place looks bad," explained Keith Newcomb, who is majoring in plumbing and is a resident of Hull.

He concedes that it is hard to install school pride in freshmen.

"I think as you get older you do develop a pride in your school," he said. Maybe it is because you begin to realize just what you are getting from the teachers, from the building, from the administration," he added.

Joseph Mazzarella, Director of Quincy Vocational Technical welcomes the new initiative and is encouraging all student involvement.

"Sometimes we have little control over physical plants," he said. "Sometimes deterioration occurs because of short-cuts in construction, or insufficient maintenance over the years." "However, since we are educating young men and women and preparing them for the world of work, it is also part of their training that they contribute to the appearance of their surroundings."

"Kids think it is powerful to break windows, but it is obnoxious," said Richard Smith, who emphasized the importance of seniors bringing juniors into the improvement activity so that the work can continue next year.

Meanwhile, Christine Bullis, Maureen Gallagher and Theresa Brady, all enrolled in Culinary Arts, have painted two bathrooms and are conducting a campaign to keep them clean.

"I think it is time we created a general awareness about a clean building," concluded 11th grader Maureen Gallagher.

David Pugliesi's Name To Be Added To Vietnam War Memorial

The name of the late David Pugliesi, a Vietnam veteran and a native of Quincy, has been added to the Vietnam Veteran Memorial Clock Tower in Marina Bay, Squantum.

A special dedication ceremony in his honor will be held Wednesday, March 29 at 4 p.m. as part of the annual Vietnam Veterans Day ceremonies.

Pugliesi, a member of the 199th Infantry, was wounded by sniper fire March 3, 1969 when his company was in the field during the Tet Offensive. He was awarded the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star with Valor.

Pugliesi, a parapelegic from his wounds, returned to Quincy from Vietnam to live with his parents, Salvatore and Effie Pugliesi of 37 Mass Ave.

He worked briefly for the Veterans Administration in Boston, was a member of the VFW, American Legion, and the Paralyzed Veterans Association.

He died in August of 1987. In July of 1988, the Pugliesi family was informed by the Pentagon that their son's name had been accepted for inclusion on the National Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C.

The date for this dedication has not been scheduled as yet. The process has been aided by Sen. John Kerry and his office.

How To Piece Together An IRA Based On The Tax Laws.

If you're married and your combined adjusted gross income is less than $40,000, your IRA contribution is fully tax-deductible.

Even after you begin withdrawing from your IRA, your account will continue to earn interest, tax deferred, until the account is depleted.

If you receive a qualifying pension distribution, you can defer the taxes by investing the sum in an IRA.

If you're single and your adjusted gross income is less than $25,000, your IRA contribution is fully tax-deductible.

Contrary to popular belief, you don't need $2,000 to open an IRA account. In fact, you can open up an IRA account at Quincy Savings Bank with as little as $10!

An IRA's accumulated interest is sheltered from taxation until you begin making withdrawals after age 59½.

A lot of people think that the tax laws prevent them from deducting IRAs on their taxes. They couldn't be more wrong! In fact, most taxpayers are still eligible to write off all or part of their IRA contributions as a tax deduction. At Quincy Savings Bank, we can show you how to put together an IRA that will allow your retirement fund to grow quickly, and in turn, shelter it from taxation. So if you're interested in making the most of your retirement fund, stop by your nearest Quincy Savings Bank office. And get a piece of the action.

Preble Hits School Budget Projection

The budget was presented to School Committee members at their last meeting and during a public hearing last week.

According to Preble, Mayor Francis X. McCauley has stated that the current $38 million dollar school budget will not pass by his desk in the current form. He said the mayor will trim almost $400,000 dollars out of the budget.

"The first question that I have to ask the mayor is why do we have a school committee? The mayor seems to run things pretty well on his own.

"He tells the superintendent how much to spend, and if the superintendent says that we need more the mayor cuts the money out," Preble added.

"In my opinion, the budget is cut to the bare minimum at this time. I cannot see how the mayor can cut anymore out of the budget.

"The schools currently have students meeting in hallways and cafeterias for classes and if the cuts go through the system could lose 12 teaching positions," he said.

"I am not suggesting cuts in other departments, but we must take a look at the way we spend money in the current spending picture." Preble pointed out that areas which could be cut include $15,618 in consultants, $40,600 in in-state travel and $220,000 in staff overtime.

"Let's look at these areas before we start to cut out teaching positions," he added.

"I challenge the superintendent to cut his own budget to the bare minimum before one teacher is let go. If elected to the school committee not one teacher will walk before all other areas have been cut to the minimum," he said.

"The students that we have in the school system today are the future of the city. Let's preserve our most precious resource and not let money stand in our way."

Tom Fabrizio Candidate For Ward 4 Council Seat

Tom Fabrizio, a social worker with the State Department of Social Services in Quincy, has announced his candidacy for Ward 4 city councillor.

Richard W. Corner of Gardiner Rd., West Quincy, introduced Fabrizio to those attending the announcement by commending him on his commitment to public service.

At the Campaign Kickoff reception at Morrisette Legion Post, Fabrizio, 33, of Reardon Street West Quincy, told close to 300 attending that he wants to expand his commitment to public service.

In addition to his state position, Fabrizio works part time in the communications section of the Quincy Police Department and was formerly employed with the Norfolk County district attorney's office.

For more than nine years he has been working with judges, attorneys, probation departments, police departments, school administrators and educators, as well as with municipal officials — experience that is valuable for a city councillor, he said.

"I know I can do a good job. There was a great turnout at the kickoff and the campaign received a great deal of new support," he said.

"The first question a candidate is asked when he makes the decision to run for office is why he or she chooses to run." "I made my decision for simple, yet I believe important reasons. I care about this city, I have an investment in its future, and I want to make a contribution for a better community. I believe my personal as well as professional experiences have prepared me well for civic responsibility and community leadership."

"There are concerns which face our community. The next councillor must ensure that our community never deteriorates. He must ensure that the streets are kept clean, that the roads are plowed and that our park and recreation facilities are always ones that we can be proud of.

TOM FABRIZIO

"Our children deserve the best in education that we can provide, and we must never turn away from the neighborhood school concept."

He added, "Development has its place in any city, but it must never be allowed to change the character of a neighborhood and it must never be done over the will of the people."

"We need to prioritize our spending and get the most from our tax dollars. We must insist in the best in city services to provide us with a clean environment, great educational system, and safe streets and be supportive of those who provide us with these services."

"In addressing local concerns Fabrizio said, "We must never be dictated to again and therefore I believe that the city should have a more active role in deciding what the compensation should be to the taxpayer for having the sludge plant in Quincy.

"We need to find and implement measures to correct the flooding problems for our neighbors by O'Rourke Field and other locations, and we must ensure finally that the quarries in Quincy are filled in as they have been the site of too many tragedies for too long."

Fabrizio is married to the former Kathy Graham of Quincy. They are the parents of two daughters.

Fabrizio attended the old Gridley Bryant School, Sterling Junior High, Quincy High School and Northeastern University. He is a past recipient of an official commendation from the Chief of Police, Quincy. In November of 1988 Fabrizio received an award from the Commissioner of the Department of Social Services citing him for "outstanding service" to the children and families of the Quincy area.

"This election," Fabrizio said, "is more than electing a candidate. I want this campaign to motivate more people to be more involved in the betterment of this community."

"The task before us is to elect the next councillor to represent Ward 4. The business for electing the next councillor for the voters should include deciding on a candidate of character, dedication, caring, accessibility, and the willingness to talk with people rather than at them."

"I believe that I am that candidate because those are my ideals and beliefs. I would give to this community my honest, hopeful, and heartfelt service, and with your help, be an effective voice for the members of this community."

The Committee to Elect Tom Fabrizio can be reached at 471-2302. Ruth M. Kjoss of 17 Emerald St., Quincy is treasurer.

Holy Week And Easter Services At Bethany Church

Maundy Thursday, Good Friday and Easter Sunday services will be held at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

A special Maundy Thursday service will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7.30 p.m. in Bethany's sanctuary.

The first portion of the worship will be the observance of Holy Communion, since Maundy Thursday commemorates Christ's institution of the Last Supper in the Upper Room.

The associate minister, Rev. Joel F. Huntington will give the meditation on "The Passover Lamb".

The senior minister, Rev. J. William Arnold, will conduct the liturgy and members of the diaconate, Vivan Miller, James Ross, and Nicholas Spear will serve the Communion.

Charles J. Blue, Sr., at the organ console, will direct the Chancel Choir. Carol Massey will be soprano soloist.

The second portion of the service will be the fourth century Office of Tenebrae, which portrays the events leading to Christ's arrest, trial and crucifixion, as recounted in selected scripture passages. The Tenebrae readers, representing the disciples will be Edith Arslan, Irene Belcher, Wendell Cosgrove, Lena Foster, Harry Massey, Jr., Corinne Mikami, Darryl Mikami and Kinya Mikami.

As each reading is completed a candle is extinguished until everything is in complete darkness, symbolizing the flight of Christ's followers into the night, deserting him and leaving him alone in his hour of trial. The service closes in silence.

On Good Friday there will be two identical 45-minute devotional services in remembrance of the death and burial of Jesus. The services will be held in Bethany's chapel at 12.15 p.m., and at 7.30 in the evening.

The services will include a litany "Confessions at the Tomb" and readings of the passion story from the Gospels. The cross will be draped in black and a crown of thorns plant will be on the altar.

Soloist at the noon service will be H. Winslow Bettinson. At the evening service the soloist will be Carol R. Massey.

Rev. Arnold will preach at both hours on Jesus' words, "Weep For Yourselves." Rev. Huntington will serve as liturgist for the evening service, but at noon he and other Bethany members will be at the Peace Vigil held annually on the Boston Common.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ will be celebrated Easter Sunday at 10 a.m. in Bethany's sanctuary. This service will be broadcast live over WJDA, 1300 kc.

There will be three preludes for string quartet and organ, beginning ten minutes before the hour. The augmented Chancel Choir will be directed by organist Charles J. Blue, Sr. The children's Cherub Choir will be directed by Marsha Archer and Sandra Jones.

"The Breathless Ones" will be the sermon topic of Rev. Arnold. Lay scripture reader will be H. Winslow Bettinson. A responsive "Act of Joyful Adoration" will be led by Rev. Huntington.

Some 140 Easter lilies will fill the chancel as symbols of Christ's resurrection and as memorials. The lilies will be taken to persons confined at home, in hospitals, or in nursing homes.

Easter morning will begin with a service on Wollaston Beach at 7 a.m. conducted by four Quincy United Church of Christ congregations.

At 8.30 a.m. an Easter breakfast will be served in Bethany's social hall for church members, friends and guests.

The breakfast is sponsored by the Christian Education Committee under the leadership of Heather McLain. Men of the church will prepare the meal and the youth fellowship will be the servers. Last year over 200 persons came to the breakfast all sitting down to eat at the same time as a church "family."

Church classes will not be held on Easter so that children can attend the breakfast and the worship service together with their families. At 11.15 a.m. to conclude the morning's events there will be an Easter Egg hunt on the church lawn for all children 3rd grade and younger. This event is sponsored by the Bethany Mother's Club.

A fellowship hour will take place in the Allen Parlor at 11 o'clock following the worship service.

All of the events at Bethany are open to the community. For more information call 479-7300.

Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Easter Service At Point Congregational

Maundy Thursday, Good Friday and Easter morning services will be held at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

On Thursday, the traditional service of worship at 730 p.m. will be an adaptation of an early fourth century office to which has been added a solemn observance of Holy Communion or Eucharist.

One of the pastors will deliver a brief meditation titled "The Magnificent Defeat." Soloists Iris Tanner and Donna Baione will sing a duet.

The church will conduct a "Vigil of Good Friday" Friday at 12 noon and continuing to 3 p.m. in the Baharian Chapel of the church. All church members, friends and visitors are encouraged to participate iun encouraged to participate in the vigil for as much of the three hours as possible, maintaining the vigil during the hours that Christ hung on the Cross. The Pastors, the Rev. Fred and Carol Atwood-Lyon, will be joined by the Rev. Viriginia Child of newton Centre and students of Andover Newton Theological School-Ted Pullano and Laura Stein-all of whom will present short dramatic readings on "The Way of the Cross" by henri Gheon, each reading portrays one of the fourteen Stations of the Cross. Special music selections will be sung by soloists Iris Tanner, Donna Baione, James Hill and Jeffrey Sposato. Throughout the three-hour vigil, church members, friends and visitors are free to enter and leave the chapel when and as they wish.

On Easter Sunday, there will be an "Early Easter Morning Beach Service" at 7 a.m. at Wollaston Beach, near the yacht clubs. This annual service will once again be sponsored by Quincy Point Congregational Church, Bethany Congregational Church, Union Congregational Church of Wollaston and Memorial Congregational Church of North Quincy and conducted by the clergy of these churches. In the event of inclement weather, the service will be conducted at Union Congregational Church, Beach St. and Rawson Rd. where a light Easter breakfast will be served following the Easter service.

The congregation will gather in the sanctuary of the church in celebration of the resurrection of Jesus Christ on Easter Sunday at 10 a.m. Following the service, members of the Diaconate will deliver Easter lilies to church members and friends confined to hospitals, nursing homes and at home. New members will be received into the church and welcomed by the congregation. One of the Pastors will deliver the last in a series of Lenten sermons on "The Sayings of Jesus".

Easter music directed by Dr. Herman Weiss, will include selections by the Chancel Choir and solos by Kimberly Blaney and Jeffrey Sposato and a brass quintet.

On Easter morning, all church school children are asked to worship with their families in the sanctuary. Infant care will be provided in the crib room as ususal, so that paents of very young children may attend Sunday services. Church school classes will resume Sunday, April 2 at 10 a.m. Parents wishing to register their infants, children and young people for cradle roll through grade 12 may do so by calling the church office Monday through Friday 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. or by speaking with Church School Superintendent Glenn McGhee on Sunday mornings.

The church is located at 444 Washington St. where there is off-street parking.

4 Churches Celebrate Easter On Wollaston Beach

On Easter Sunday at 7 a.m., members and friends of four Quincy United Church of Christ congregations will celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ on Wollaston Beach.

This Easter morning beach service will include a brass quintet, Easter hymns, readings from the Gospels of Luke and John, and a sharing together of bread and fish.

The sponsoring churches are- Bethany Congregational, Memorial Congregational of Atlantic, Quincy Point Congregational, and Union Congregational of Wollaston.

This Easter celebration was well attended last year and again will take place on the area of beach to the right of the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs. On Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon youth and adults from the four churches will be cleaning up the beach in preparation for Easter Morning. The waste management company, "Clean Harbors," will provide gloves, plastic bags, and support for this effort.

The heart of this beach celebration will be the modified communion service of bread and fish based on the story in the Gospel where Jesus, after the resurrection, shares in a meal of bread and fish with his disciples early one morning.

This early morning service will last about 30 minutes and everyone in the community is invited to come and share in this joyous greeting of Easter morning!

Clergy participants will be- The Revs. Fred and Carol Atwood-Lyon from Quincy Point Congregational, the Rev. Zaven Dohanian of Union Congregational of Wollaston, the Revs. J. William Arnold and Joel Huntington from Bethany Congregational, and the Rev. Arthur Curtis from Memorial Congregational of Atlantic.

In case of rain the service will take place at the same time at Union Congregational Church, Beach St. and Rawson Rd., Wollaston. In addition a continental breakfast will be served at Union Church for all those in attendance who would like to share in a few moments of fellowship.

Speech Needs Awareness Exhibit At Main Library

The Quincy Mayor's Commission on Handicapped Affairs, in recognition of March as Special Needs Awareness Month, is sponsoring an information exhibit at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

The exhibit, which will be on display through March 31, is a collection of various pamphlets and materials directed to all segments of the handicapped community and the community in general. It includes information for the visually and hearing impaired as well as literature on accessiblity and transportation.

Also available are applications for various services offered to the handicapped community, such as the MBTA's Ride program. For members of the business community there is information regarding tax breaks to those making their businesses handicapped accessible.

In addition to the exhibit, the Thomas Crane Public Library will display samples from its collection of Large Print books and copies of its "Talking Books."

On Wednesday, at 12 noon Helen Daley of Quincy will demonstrate the use of a braille typewriter. Additional events are scheduled for the following week.

The Mayor's Commission on Handicapped Affairs was established in June, 1984. The purpose of the Commission is to take reasonable action to insure that no otherwise qualified handicapped individual shall, solely by reason of a handicap, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination from any program or activitiy within the City of Quincy.

The Commission is charged with researching local problems of the handicapped and coordinating the activities of other local groups organized for similar purposes.

On paper a lot of cars look like Saabs. Not surprising, since a lot of them were inspired by Saab. But Saab packs 16 valves, dual overhead cams, turbocharging, front-wheel drive, rack and pinion steering and the rest of it into a road-going package that performs and handles like nothing else. And few of the imitators have the room and safety features you get in a Saab. Don't buy the wrong car. Come test drive the real thing.

House Backs Locating MWRA Offices At Shipyard

A House amendment to the FY '90 budget that directs the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to relocate its executive offices at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy received the strong support of legislators last week, winning approval 113 to 31.

The action, included as an outside section to the budget, received the strong support of Rep. Robert Cerasoli, D-Quincy and other members of the Quincy area legislative delegation, after it was moved by Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, D-Quincy. Approval came minutes before 4 a.m. Wednesday, the final act of the House, before adjourning.

"I believe this amendment is appropriate," said Cerasoli. "Based on recent publicized statements made by officials, it is imperative that those state legislators who have the South Shore, and for that matter, the Commonwealth's interests at heart, must act decisively and swiftly. This was done in a forum of public opinion and provided the first state-wide concensus on an issue that will affect all taxpayers, and specifically, the ratepayers within the Authority's 61-member communities."

Among those voting in favor of the amendment were Reps. Robert Ambler, D-Weymouth, Suzanne Bump, D-Braintree, Stephen Tobin, D-Quincy, and Frank Hynes, D-Marshfield.

The Authority presently has six sites under consideration to relocate its office headquarters which carries with it a multi-million dollar payroll and a professional staff of more than 900 personnel. It is now leasing space at the Charlestown Navy Yard with an expiration date in June, 1991.

Quincy Woman Appointed Postmaster

The U.S. Postal Service announces the appointment of Elaine C. McArdle of Quincy as Postmaster of Bellingham.

The Northeast Regional Management Selection Board nominated McArdle for this postmastership and the appointment was made in accordance with the merit selection procedures of the Postal Reorganization Act.

McArdle began her postal career in 1970 as a clerk in the Boston Post Office and in 1982 was promoted to supervisor of mails and delivery. Since that time, she has worked in numerous special assignments and positions of increasing responsibility including officer-in-charge at the Greenbush, East Walpole, Medfied and Norwell Post Offices, as well as manager at the Back Bay Annex and at the Stoneham, Chambridge "A" and John F. Kennedy Post Offices. Prior to her promotion to Postmaster, McArdle was Manager of the Dorchester Post Office.

McArdle is a cum laude graduate of the University of Massachusetts where she earned a bachelor of arts degree in social psychology/sociology. She is a member of the Sociological Review and Alpha Kappa Delta Honor Society.

She will be sworn in Friday, April 7 at a ceremony at the Bellingham Town Hall Annex.

New Logo Signs For Quincy Historic Trail

The Quincy Historic Trail will soon be getting a new look.

On Monday night, the City Council approved an appropriation order of $5,000 which will go towards new signs along the Historic Trail. The appropriation was recommended by Mayor Francis McCauley.

The signs will feature the prize-winning logo submitted last summer by Nick Panarelli of Quincy in the Quincy Historic Trail Logo Contest. The contest, which drew several dozen entries, was sponsored by the Quincy Tourism Association.

The logo is a "Q" with a tri-corner minuteman's hat on the top of the letter.

Councillor Timothy Cahill, chairman of the council's Tourism Committee, said it is hoped the new signs will be erected during this year's tourist season.

Underwater Team Needs Funds To Purchase Truck

The 30-year old truck, which can no longer be driven, serves only to store the equipment it once carried to an emergency. Since there are no government funds available to replace the truck, team members are appealing to the community for contributions.

Contributions, which are tax deductible, may be sent to-

The team is known for its assistance in many water emergencies such as a drowning in a quarry or a lake. However, the team's work does not end at the waterline.

In fact, the Quincy team is one of the largest and busiest teams in the country, providing the manpower for crowd control, coastal evacuations, stolen property, underwater recoveries and fundraising events.

In addition, the team is also instrumental in developing search and recovery techniques used nationally and has aidee in the development of professional dive teams throughout North America.

For more information, contact John Blackadar at 472-6118, ext. 241.

Rabies Clinic April 1

The city's annual rabies clinic will be held Saturday, April 1 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Public Works Garage, 55 Sea St., near the police station, rain or shine.

The cost is $5 for a dog or cat. Immunization should be done every three years on animals three months of age or older.

Dog licenses will be available for new licenses and renewals. Cost is $4 for males and spayed females, and $7 for unspayed females.

Owners should bring current rabies certificates and spayed certificates.

A $10 late fee will be charged on all licenses not renewed by May 1.

Owners should remember that a license tag is a dog's only means of identification.

For more information, contact Dog Officer Phyllis Berlucchi at 773-6297 or the City Clerk's Office at 773-1380.

Math, Computer Video Library at NQHS

Ron Erikson, head of the North Quincy High School Math Department, is in the process of building a video library of math and computer lessons to be used as review material by students.

All of the key lessons in math and computer classes are being taped. Erikson hopes to have a complete library by the year 1991.

Eating Wisely For Lower Cholesterol

By NANCY W. STOLFA
Manager/Counselor
Diet Center of Quincy

We are all well aware that high blood cholesterol is a problem.

Since 1961, the American Heart Association has recommended a low fat, low cholesterol diet for everyone. In recent years, we've learned that cholesterol is actually a waxy, fat-like substance (produced mostly in the liver) that circulates in the blood. We've learned that cholesterol comes in two types-one bad for you, low-density lipoproteins and one which is good, high-density lipoproteins. But did you know that our body produces all the cholesterol it needs all by itself.

The cholesterol we consume in our food only serves to increase our cholesterol. So it's no wonder that a low fat, low cholesterol diet is good for everyone.

An important guideline is to keep your total fat consumption to one-fourth or less of your total calories. A good way to do this is to stick with protein which have five grams or less of fat per serving like chicken or turkey with the skin removed, very lean cuts of beef and lamb, and all varieties of fish and shellfish.

Another useful guideline is to choose unsaturated fats over the saturated type. This would be low fat or skim dairy products instead of the whole milk ones and polyunsaturated oils like safflower, sunflower or corn oil instead of palm oil, lard or fat.

The last guideline, and the one which has gotten the most publicity lately, is increasing your intake of soluable fiber. Yes, that's oat bran. Oat bran is an excellent addition to your diet, when it's not coupled with a sugar-laden ingredient. This is when you should take the smart advice "Read The Label." High sugar, salt or fat content will tell you to pass up that item. Be aware that there are many good sources of soluable fiber besides oat bran. There are wheat bran, legumes, all the high pectin fruits like apples, oranges, grapefruit, and vegetables like squash and cauliflower.

Following a menu of these foods would be very good for your cholesterol level and would still give you a nice variety of enjoyable meals. Enjoy and be healthy.

Try One Of These Fat Buster Tips

By BARBARA STORPER, M.S., R.D. and the Massachusetts Nutrition Resource Center

Celebrate National Nutrition Month. Try one of these fat buster tips each day to cut the fat in your diet.

- For a treat, instead of ice cream, scoop up "light" ice cream, frozen yogurt, ice milk, sherbet or sorbet.
- Use half as much salad dressing, mayonnaise, butter, margarine, cream cheese, and cooking oils as you normally do.
- Cut the fat in dairy. Choose skim or low fat milk instead of whole milk and save from 30 to 50 calories a glass.
- Today, whenever you eat, take time to chew your food slowly. It takes about 20 minutes for your brain to know your stomach is full-so give it time and you'll wind up being satisfied with less food.
- Eating fast food today? Skip the specialty burgers and the fried chicken or fish sandwiches. Plain burgers are lower in fat. Order one with a side salad and use no more than a tablespoon of the dressing. Or, go for the salad bar.
- Time for pizza? Skip the pepperoni and sausage and go for the veggies.
- Be a health food advocate. If there's a vending machine in your work place, check it out for healthful choices. Put pressure on the management to restock with such possibilities as fresh fruit, packets of trail mix, peanuts, raisins, yougurt, puddings, plain popcorn, unsalted prezels, sunflower seeds, fruit juice bars, and fruit juice.
- Bag it. Make yourself a wonderful lunch the night before. Pack up a container of leftovers from dinner, or a lean roast beef, tuna fish, chicken, turkey sandwich and mustard and lettuce and tomato. Add a fruit, some juice, and some popcorn or pretzels.
- Going out for dinner? Be assertive. Ask for broiled, baked, steamed or poached instead of fried entrees. Get your sauces and dressings on the side and be discreet.
- Enjoy a baked potato with a teaspoon of butter or margarine or sour cream or yogurt instead of frieds or chips.
- Boost your carbs, carbohydrates that is, with whole grains, fresh fruits and vegetables. This will help you cut down on higher fat foods such as cheeses or meats.
- Tonight, make your favorite meal or meat loaf, hamburgers, meatballs, etc. with ground turkey instead of chopped meat and save on fat.
- Having company? Try cottage cheese whipped smooth in the blender, or yogurt as a base for party dips instead of sour cream.
- Bake up a storm but choose recipes that use less than half a cup (one bar) or shortening per batch. Substitute liquid vegetable oil for shortening or butter.
- Buy tuna packed in water.
- Go ethnic with meals which emphasize vegetables, grains and beans such as Chinese stir fry or Mexican tacos.

Controlled Obesity Effectively By Acupuncture

Over 50 per cent of Americans today are overweight by the time they reach their early 40's.

According to a recent study done in Orange, Calif., there are many reasons for obesity. Among them are insatiable appetites, cravings for sugar and junk foods, water retention (edema) slow metabolism, emotional disturbance, and constipation.

Obesity is controlled very effectively by the use of acupuncture. Acupuncture treatment helps to decrease appetites and cravings for sweets and junk foods. It improves energy and increases the function of the immune system. There are no side effects from the use of acupuncture treatments. Patients often report that they feel much calmer and satisfied with less food after a treatment. Average weight loss is approximately three pounds per week.

Acupuncture treatments are recommended once per week. The average amount of treatments is between five and eight treatments.

All eating disorders resulting in obesity can be addressed by acupuncture. The treatment is totally painless, and the results are long lasting.

The World Health Organization of the United States recognizes 47 diseases that can be successfully treated by acupuncture.

Obesity is definitely included on this list.

What's New In Tanning?

By GUY BOGNANNO

Personalized Image is a high tech, tanning and fitness center located in Milton in historic Lower Mills.

Personalized Image was created to be unlike any other tanning or fitness center in the country.

Personalized Image is a fully computerized, with our newly developed skin type analysis which can only be found at P.I. and our other location Fabulous Tan in North quincy. This is done free of charge with a purchase of a tanning membership.

The skin type analysis is a program that tells each member (1) Their skin type (2) What equipment, and for how long each visit should be. This is very important, not every body tans the same. This program will help you get the most out of our state of the art tanning equipment which includes triple facial floatation beds, ruva beds w/floatation, supermax booth, and featuring the noval facial and the supernova 8000 high speed tanning units. This combination of equipment cannot be found anywhere thats right anywhere!

Personalized Images fitness programs are also very unique. They cater to you the customer, they set up a personalized computerized workout program as well as a body fat reduction system. Most Americans are weight conscious, Personalized Image doesn't like excess fat or bulk.

Also, most Americans aren't bodybuilders and need supervision to keep in shape.

Personalized Image works with you every time you work out unlike most fitness centers. This concept is very big in New York and California, this helps to motivate you and also assist in your progress and development. Personalized Image is very conscious of your progress, we do a professional body comp. analysis every two months.

This report gives you your body fat percentage, your lean muscle mass percentage, your basal metabolic rate also present body measurements and your goals and how close your at reaching them. Since you can take home each report made for you at the center, you'll be able to see how much you have improved from using Personalized Images on a regular basis.

If other clubs, programs and diets have let you down in the past, you are due for a fresh change. Get some real results today at Personalized Image, 1 Eliot St., Milton.

HYPERTENSION AND ALCOHOL: Years ago, in spite of a lack of evidence to support it, many doctors felt that a drink a day might be helpful in relaxing people who had high blood pressure and that this, in turn, might lower the blood pressure. However, as far back as 1977, evidence started coming in to disprove this reasoning. There are findings that show that "relaxing" the drinker has no benefit on blood pressure, and that it appears drinking generally tends to make an already established case of hypertension worse, and that in some cases, drinking can be the primary cause of the hypertension. Researchers now have proof that reducing drinking or giving up alcohol altogether leads to lowered blood pressure levels.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Your Telephone

Be suspicious of people who call for a date. If they tell you, "Your cousin Bill suggested I call you," check with cousin Bill.

Check the company that offers you a job if you have never heard of it before. Your library has directories that will give you a good deal of information. Everyone gets some telephone calls that are "wrong numbers" and many people will hang up abruptly if they realize they have dialed in error.

However, if you get such calls periodically, be particularly alert. Someone may be waiting for a no answer to make sure you are not at home to interrupt a burglary. If you should receive two or three wrong numbers in a few days or over the course of a given week, tell the telephone company that you want your number changed. Let the police know it is happening too. It is possible that you may just have a number similar to a big company or local institution.

If a caller asks for information, do not give him anything useful. Do not say, for example, that you live alone or that the man-of-the-house is away. If the phone rings with someone who says he has a wrong number, do not give him your number. Simply ask what number he is calling and reply, "I am sorry, that is not this number."

Sometimes a pencil or a ring tapped on the mouthpiece may suggest to the caller that the conversation is being taped. It will make a dangerous caller cautious – at the very least. Report all nuisance or obscene calls to the telephone company. Any regular pattern deserves their attention. They have means to trace such calls, with your permission, and they will institute legal action once the party is identified.

Be particulary wary of people asking for information for a survey or regarding anything personal. If you feel it is legitimate, ask for their number and say you will call back. Then you can check for the names of the organization or the individual in the phone book or with information. This is particularly true if the caller claims authority from a government agency or a large well-known organization. It is wise to check.

Obscene Or Nuisance Calls

Most nuisance calls are made by children and teenagers. Hang up as soon as you are aware of the nature of the call. If the calls continue contact the police and local telephone company representatives. Such calls are against the law. Sometimes the caller is someone in your place of work trying to get even for some unknown insult or injury.

One deterrent beyond getting the calls traced is to keep a whistle near your phone. Blow the whistle into the mouthpiece. It has a devastating effect on the caller's ears.

Sports

Timberlake Finishes Outstanding B.U. Career

Quincy's Jeff Timberlake finished an outstanding career at Boston University when the Terriers (21-9) came within one point and one minute of defeating Siena and making the NCAA championship tournament.

Timberlake set a career assist record that will be hard to beat. He finished with 778 career assists, topping the previous mark by 97. He set a single-season mark with 238 assists and his 7.9 average led the North Atlantic Conference and ranked among the top five nationally.

Timberlake also graduates 15th on the school's all-time scoring list with 1066 points and became just the second player in school history to score 1000 points and hand out more than 500 assists. He missed duplicating his 300 (points), 200 (assists) and 100 (rebounds) feat of last year by a single rebound. He became the first player in school history to manage those numbers.

The senior co-captain and former Boston College High all-scholastic was a first-team all-North Atlantic Conference selection and made the NAC all-tournament team. He averaged 14.7 points in three tournament games and handed out a tournament record 14 assists in the game against Niagra.

Middle School Basketball Underway

The Quincy Middle School basketball program got underway last Saturday with Atlantic, Broad Meadows, Central and Sterling all fielding fine teams.

Co-Captains Alyssa Gillman (eight points) and Jen Santry (16 points) turned in strong games, Nicole Mullen dominated the boards and Nicole Shaughnessy and Colleen Gallagher played well. For Central Regina Murphy, Kristie Richmond and Maureen Conley played fine games.

The Central boys defeated Sterling, 30-20, led by Mike Kavanaugh, Luke Sheets, Chris Dupil and Tony Lichardi. Noel DiBona had 12 points and Matt Dwyer seven for Sterling.

Sterling won the junior varsity game, 16-5, led by Jamie Beauchamp and Keith Martinson.

Atlantic boys and girls defeated Broad Meadows.

Games are played Saturday mornings from 10 o'clock to noon at North Quincy High. This Saturday Central faces Broad Meadows and Sterling meets Atlantic.

Girls Hockey Lose To Billerica

The Quincy Youth girls' hockey team made a fine showing in the recent state tournament which was won by the Billerica Indians, who will represent Massachusetts in the national tournament March 31-April 2.

Quincy lost to the Canton Chargers, 4-0, in its opening game but came back to edge the Brockton Rebels, 2-1, with Stephanie O'Sullivan scoring both goals and Pauline Skehan having an assist.

Maloney, Collins Win Thayer Awards

The winter sports awards were recently presented at Thayer Academy.

Stephen Maloney of Quincy, son of Dr. and Mrs. Philip Maloney, received the boys' basketball team's coaches' award and Matthew Collins of Quincy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Collins, was named to the jayvee hockey all-league team.

Point Panthers Honored At Awards Night

The Quincy Point Panther football team held its annual Awards Night recently at the Fore River Clubhouse with more than 200 family members, players and cheerleaders in attendance.

Special awards were presented to players and the cheerleaders were honored for qualifying for the national finals in Dallas, Tex., in December

The following varsity awards were presented:

David Jolley, who led the team in scoring, the Coaches Award selected by the coaching staff as the most coachable player.

Mike Sugrue, Most Improved Player.

Tom Courtney, 12th Player Award.

Andy Smith, Coach Vinnie Barrett Memorial Award as "Panther of the Year." This trophy is given annually to the player who best represents the organization both on and off the field.

Six Panthers, Steve Carterman, Noel DiBona, Jason Simon, Smith, Lomanno and Jolley, were named to the league all-star team.

The following junior varsity awards were presented:

Keith Martinson, Players Award.

Jonathan Gangi, Coaches Award.

Iam McNulty, Most Improved Player.

Keith Triandafolis, 12th Player Award.

the highlight of the evening was the recognition of the varsity cheerleaders, led by Capt. Lynn Feeley and Co-Capt. Maureen Wood.

The 14-member competition team was the first junior high age squad to win the New England title and represent the six states in the National Cheerleaders Association championships in Dallas. The girls were given copies of the Quincy City Council commendation they had received prior to their trip. They were presented first place ribbons for defending their Eastern Mass. crown.

At the national finals the girls received a national championship patch, tote bag, socks, pins, key chains and sweatshirts.

Maureen Mancuso was presented the Coaches Trophy as the 'most dedicated cheerleader' and Amy Murphy received the Most Spirited Award voted on by her teammates.

Coaches Patti and Kathy Myers received gifts from the girls, while the football players presented gifts to the coaches, Bill Myers, Tom Donovan and Mike Dunlea. Anita Curran was presented a flower arrangement as parent advisor to the cheerleaders and the mascots, Laura Feeley, Elizabeth Dunlea, and Morgan Peterson received pins.

Bradley Steps Down As ENC Coach, Remains Athletic Director

President Stephen Nease announces the resignation of Carroll Bradley as men's basketball coach at Eastern Nazarene College. Bradley will continue as athletic director.

Bradley said he had reached the decision prior to the beginning of the season, but only recently finalized the matter with the president.

An alumnus of ENC, Springfield College, and Boston University, Bradley began his career at ENC in 1953 as athletic director, professor of physical education, dean of men, director of intra-mural athletics, and coach of men's basketball and baseball. After 17 years at ENC, Bradley accepted a position with the Quincy Public Schools in 1970. He then served as coach and athletic director at Mount Vernon Nazarene College in Ohio, followed by four years with the public school system in Cincinnati, Ohio. In 1982 he returned to ENC as athletic director.

In 1985, upon the resignation of the basketball coach, Bradley came out of coaching retirement to fill in until a new coach could be named. That "interim" assignment has now stretched into four years, and Bradley said he felt the time had come to end the arrangement.

In making the announcement, Dr. Nease indicated that a search committee will be making a review of applicants for the vacant position. It is hoped that a decision can be made sometime this spring so that the new coach can relate to present team members and participate in player recruitment for the coming season.

Bradley had posted an enviable record of 230 wins and 169 losses during his years of basketball coaching. His identification with the athletic program at ENC has been such that the athletic field was named in his honor in the 1960's. To the coach and his wife Doris, team members have been both players and friends who often enjoyed food and fellowship in the Bradley home. Their son Ron is currently assistant basketball coach at the University of Maryland.

This season, ENC has completed the process of moving to NCAA Division III while maintaining its ties to NAIA. ENC has been operating its programs under the guidelines of Division III during the past four years. Those guidelines prohibit pure athletic scholarships. That policy, along with a number of injuries and ineligibilities have made this a season of difficult competition, but Bradley expressed admiration for the strength and competitiveness of this year's squad, especially in light of their taking on some of the stiffest competition in the New England area.

Looking back over Bradley's years of coaching, Dr. Nease remarked, "The name of Carroll Bradley has been synonymous with ENC sports since 'Brad' excelled in both basketball and baseball during his student days. As coach of the Crusader basketball team, he has built a program which over the past quarter century has been outstanding among Christian Liberal Arts colleges.

When Coach Bradley returned to ENC as athletic director several years ago, he had no plans to coach; however, four years ago in a time of need we asked him to fill in temporarily, and his tenure of coaching has extended with distinction until now. As this season began, he shared with me that he felt this should probably be his last season as coach.

We are especially glad that Carroll Bradley will continue as ENC's athletic director; for even as he stands for the best in college sports, he is determined that ENC's sports program be consistent with our commitments as a Christ-centered Liberal Arts College. As we search for our new basketball coach, we pledge to seek a person who will continue to uphold these ideals."

COMING APRIL 2ND!

McCauley Won't Fund $250,000 Shortfall

During the 90 minutes, Finn explained his budget "practice" and the reasons why there is a shortfall. He and the council also discussed possible ways to meet the present shortfall and how to avoid a similar situation next year which perhaps could be worse financially.

The mayor has informed Finn that FY 1990 overtime funding will be cut by $250,000 over this fiscal year because of the tight financial outlook. Next year's amount is for $270,000 compared to $320,000 this year.

McCauley added $150,000 will be cut from the fire budget and $400,000 from the school department.

Already, $700,000 has been spent on police overtime this year.

Finn explained that "it has always been a 'past practice' of city administrators, dating back to the beginning of my tenure as chief, to underfund the police budget. Every year starts out with the hope that there will not be a rash of sickness or injury requiring expenditure or overtime, or that there will not be any strikes, major crimes, or other occurrences requiring police overtime.

"Unfortunately, these hopes in July turn into problems by springtime, since every year we run short of overtime funds. In some years, vacancies in the ranks provide additional funding for overtime. In other years, money is transferred from other city accounts to supplement the budget," the chief said.

This was the case two years ago when the mayor and the council provided the department with $350,000 in the year-end transfer.

"If I was informed last spring that this 'past practice' was to be discontinued, I would certainly have made arrangements to come within budget. Plans made last spring would have been less drastic than those which I am forced to make in February," the chief said.

Finn also pointed out that there are increasing demands in the area of expanded services. This year, those services which include parades, civil rights meetings and fire watches, have amounted to $15,861.

The chief and the city council discussed some of the solutions to solve the overtime problem. They included revamping the one-man police car patrol system and eliminating some of the department's special officers. These officers would return to regular patrol beats and their absence would be filled by other city personnel such as school department employees, it was suggested.

Finn and the council are quite concerned about the cutbacks since the spring and summer traditionally bring more outdoor activity. They said adequate police presence is essential to the public safety of Quincy citizens.

Asked whether a crisis exists now, Finn replied, "There isn't an extreme crisis now but we could be in a very deteriorating situation (in the future). "I think citizens are protected not as much as I'd like but I think they are protected."

As a short-term solution, it was suggested that the mayor allocate money to cover the deficit while for the long run, a new staffing policy might be the answer.

On Tuesday, McCauley said he will not give the police department more money. As for a change in the one-car system, the mayor said the present system is good but "the question now is, is it too rich for our blood?"

Monday night, Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney and Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley requested that the mayor fund the shortfall while Finn draft a new staffing policy.

"I think we should (appropriate the money). I don't think we should wait," Cheney said. Nutley added, "With the summer coming up, I feel we should pay now and plan later. We have to make sure this city is ready for summer."

Nutley also asked Finn to present a full itemized list of the department's $11 budget breaking down all expenses so that the council has a better understanding of where the money goes.

Presently, the department is designed to have 21 officers on each shift, including 13 one-man cars, five men on walking beats and two at the station on dispatch.

In a letter to the Council dated this March 6, Finn said in reference to the present one-man car system, "While this is all not written in stone, it is the optimum of reasonable economic design in the interest of public safety, both for the citizens and the officers involved and should be kept at this level.

"I have always made it clear that I felt it would be more costly," since the system results in more overtime. The overtime rates are currently time and a half with double time on holidays.

Finn also said he believes the 2-man system "was a very good system."

Responding to Finn's statement that the one-man policy was implemented with the council's approval, Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro said, "The City Council never approved one-man cars. We did have a long discussion on it but was implemented without council approval.

"We did not approve it and I personally was against it," he said.

DeCristofaro was also concerned about the number of beat patrols in the city and strongly requested that Quincy Point should be given a beat officer. "We want a beat man and we're supposed to have one. We need one and the people deserve it."

Councillor Stephen McGrath agreed with DeCristofaro.

"We've got to live within our means but the coverage has to be out there. There should be no cuts in public safety coverage but perhaps changes in policy should be implemented."

In assessing the problem, Nutley said layoffs could result unless police spending is brought under control. He also said he favors more officers and less overtime.

"In the long run, that will save the Quincy Police Department money," Nutley added.

Finn responded that an overtime budget of $270,000 next year could force him to revamp the staffing system.

"If we are going to live within our means then at least I'm hearing it good and loud. We'll probably have to set up a new system," the chief said, adding that the department's priorities of safety to officers, the public and then perpetrators in that order would remain.

Ward 4 Council James Sheets asked Finn to present any new policy changes to the council. "It's important to know some of these changes up front if indeed there are going to be changes," Sheets said.

"We will be back with our thoughts," the chief replied.

Finn was asked by Councillor Timothy Cahill why this year is different from previous years in terms of police finances and the difficulty of getting additional money from McCauley.

"The mayor has stated he wants to leave a surplus to the next mayor. He knows it's going to be harder in the future."

Cahill also asked Finn whether he thought he had the respect and control of his officers.

"Yes, I feel that way," adding that some officers have asked him to stay on as chief. "I don't think there is a chief in the state that's in better control of his staff."

Safeguards Needed Before Methadone Clinic Allowed Here

Called Survival, Inc. the program consisted of four components which dealt with the prevention, detection and treatment of heroin addiction. They were, an out-patient treatment, in-house treatment, a hotline manned by trained volunteers and a methadone clinic.

The program, which was the forerunner of today's regional Survival program, operated from 1972 and 1973 on a non-profit basis. The program was funded by several sources, including the National Institute of Mental health and the Department of Public Health.

For two years, a methadone clinic operated inside a van located behind the Quincy Police Station. Back then, Mahoney recalled, the heroin problem was "pretty bad" in Quincy and for that matter, the entire country largely because of the Vietnam War.

During the program's existence, Mahoney estimates that 400 people were serviced, of which 40 to 60 were methadone clients.

A licensed social worker, Mahoney has devoted much of his life to helping those who abuse drugs. A graduate of American International College, he has a masters degree in counseling and has done graduate work in psychology at Yale University's School of Medicine.

He has taught and coached at schools in Boston, Scituate and Quincy and currently is a member of the South Shore Council on Alcoholism and Survival Board of Directors.

Despite his extensive background, Mahoney hasn't formed a full opinion on whether he supports another methadone clinic in Quincy. He doesn't know more than what he reads in the papers.

Why? Because surprisingly, no one has consulted him or asked him about the clinic he helped operate 17 years ago.

"No one has asked me to review the new proposal. No one in a decision-making capacity has called me," he says.

"I have to chuckle when I read in the papers that people say they don't want a methadone clinic in Quincy. Well, we had it."

Still, if one asks him, he will recall the days of the city's first methadone clinic and voice his concerns for a second one.

The methadone clinic of the early 1970's was run very tight. A supply of methadone, worth $450,000, was protected by an armed guard and locked up in a safe. The van was connected to the police station.

"If there was any tampering, an alarm would go off," Mahoney recalls.

Also, admittance into the program was granted only after close scrutiny. Only people age 21 to 40 were accepted. No one with a history of mixed drug abuse or alcohol abuse was allowed in.

Clients also had to be hooked on heroin for a minimum of four years and had to be free of medical complications and conditions such as diabetes and epilepsy.

"These people would be using other drugs and we didn't know how the methadone would affect these other drugs," Mahoney points out.

Psychotic patients were not accepted, either.

As for treatment, three phases were set up—

- In-patient treatment for three weeks which was intended to stabilize the client. This sometimes took six weeks.
- Out-patient treatment which involved providing methadone in the morning on a daily basis.
- Counseling, both individual and group.

During the second and third phases, there was urine analysis testing. Mahoney explained that the samples were taken daily but there was only random testing because of the cost factor.

But, if a counselor suspected the client was "chipping" (using heroin on the side) then the urine would be tested daily. Mahoney recalled the time when he suspected one young male client was chipping.

"He always was confident that his urine was clean. He came back one time and asked how his urine was.

"I said it was fine except that you're pregnant. He was bringing in his girlfriend's sample," Mahoney explained. the patient was immediately discharged.

To combat their cleverness (Mahoney said the average IQ of heroin addicts then was 125) patients were required to go into a private bathroom and use specially marked and sealed bottles. The bathrooms were closely guarded.

"You're not dealing with dumb people. These people are very, very clever" Mahoney says, adding that addicts have to be very creative to support their $100 to $200 a day habit.

Besides trickery, there were other reasons for discharge. They included being arrested, using alcohol, medical reasons, behavioral reasons and problems in general such as marital of personal. Clients could also leave voluntarily.

Without getting into the debate whether methadone is good or bad, Mahoney says "There have been many methadone clinics in the U.S. and the world that have been ripoffs. There has to be a lot of safeguards.

"If it's going to be a haven for heroin addicts, I'm obviously not supportive of it."

But, he points out, "If it's going to help one citizen become a productive person, then I think it's worth it," adding that there have been some success stories.

It's essentially a question of theory versus practice and because the new clinic would be operated by state, and not Quincy officials, Mahoney has several concerns.

"I'm not knocking their program but I would hope that there would be safeguards in place. You could make it a more effective program if you built in those safeguards."

One of the concerns Mahoney has is the overseeing of the day to day operation of the van. "Once we've said okay (to allowing it in Quincy) who's going to monitor it? What you see and what you get are two different things."

So what would Mahoney like to see? For one thing, he said a new clinic should "at least have the things" the van of the 1970s had. And more.

"Hopefully, they have learned more since that time," he says.

Other concerns Mahoney quickly brings up deal with entrance criteria, urine analysis testing and administering of the van.

"What is the criteria for accepting a person into the methadone program? Are they going to use my criteria? How will the urine analysis be done?"

He is also concerned about treatment timeliness and counseling.

"How do you tie in the phases? Will (clients) be given a target date for being drug free?"

Perhaps his biggest concern is allowing an outside, profit making agency to operate the van.

"When an outside agency is allowed to administer (the clinic), you lose control. Seventeen years ago, it was run by the city — officials, school personnel, doctors and professional people.

"We were all concerned people and we would all watch it. Then, it was a private, non-profit program controlled by Quincy leaders, administered by Quincy people. It was dissolved by Quincy residents.

"Now, it's a state-run program with people all over the region.

"The new clinic would be profit-making. If (Habit Management) is really concerned about helping people, why are they profit?

"I'm not saying profit organizations can't help but I have concerns about how it's carried out. I think a lot of questions have to be asked."

One thing Mahoney is certain is that today's drug culture is unlike that of the early 1970s. He says the heroin problem today is not worse than the one 17 years ago. However, today there seems to be a higher incidence of multiple drug use.

"Today, we're into multi-drug abuse. They drink it, smoke it and inject it," Mahoney says.

According to Mahoney, one of the factors that has led to multiple drug use is Prop 2 and half...

"When Prop 2 and half was approved, we lost two thirds of our music, art and physical education teachers. These are the three areas where our children get natural highs.

"We should be looking into positive ways to get people high," he says.

Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

Measuring automobile performance: It's not just a matter of acceleration

It used to be that "performance" was measured in terms of straight-line acceleration. "Zero to sixty" and the "quarter mile" were the standard measures of performance.

Today, however, performance has come to mean much more. Now, it includes not only acceleration, but fuel economy and handling—how well a car handles in curves and corners.

Handling used to be determined by the roughness of the ride. "The harder the ride, the better the handling," was the common adage.

But, with the increasing demand for high performance cars, and the increasing competition of foreign vehicles that ran circles around U.S. car models, car companies shifted their attention toward developing suspensions which offered a smooth, comfortable ride without sacrificing handling or "control."

"People want the best of both worlds," says Dick Guldstrand, president of California-based Guldstrand Engineering, a suspension and ride control consulting firm which does development work for the auto companies.

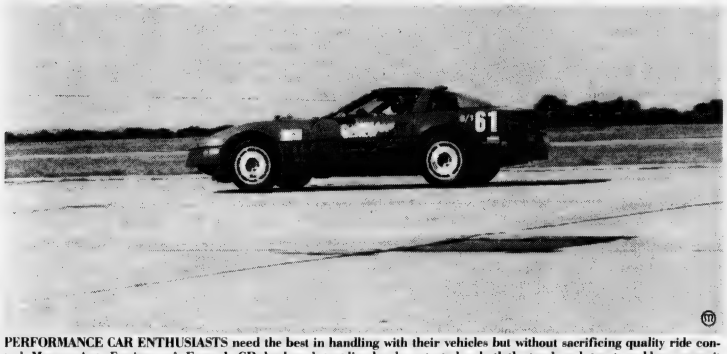
"The public is demanding cars from the U.S. automakers that handle like a Corvette or Porsche, but have the ride of a Cadillac," Guldstrand says.

"Even luxury car owners want this, which is one reason why they're buying BMWs and Mercedes in record numbers. In the new world of car suspensions, a car that wallows around is unacceptable."

As a result, shock absorber manufacturers have turned their attention toward developing high performance lines of shocks and struts both for the auto companies and for the multi-million dollar automotive aftermarket business.

Monroe Auto Equipment Co., for example, invested two years and several million dollars in the design and development of its Formula GP line of gas-charged shocks and struts.

The units were designed for day-to-day driving, yet project engineers say this product will outperform any comparable shock in high performance use.



With a wide range of applications for both domestic and foreign cars, Monroe officials see this product as the one which will capture that performance segment of the automotive aftermarket for shocks and struts. It might even find some original equipment applications as well.

Guldstrand, who helped develop the Formula GP line, sees the units as the perfect product for those who want sports car handling without sacrificing large car comfort.

"Because of certain valving (adjustment) capabilities, you get real good ride quality without giving up handling," Guldstrand said.

As car companies increase the manufacturing of performance vehicles in the coming years, aftermarket companies will be battling to retain their portion of the market.

Products like the Formula GP line, which offer performance enthusiasts the handling capabilities they want, while retaining good ride control, are what are likely to keep a company such as Monroe competitive in the automotive aftermarket in the future.

PERFORMANCE CAR ENTHUSIASTS need the best in handling with their vehicles but without sacrificing quality ride control. Monroe Auto Equipment's Formula GP shock and strut line has been tested on both the track and street, and has proven it gives the performance car owner that exceptional handling and control while offering superb ride quality.

Keep in mind...

Warranties on auto parts enhance value of a repair

The birds are chirping, the trees are budding, and the ice and snow are melting. The time is right to get your car ready for the spring and summer seasons.

Snow and ice can hide potential service problems, so be sure to inspect your car before starting that 1,000-mile vacation trip drive.

Obviously, a spring/summer service check should include charging the air conditioning if necessary, and flushing and refilling the radiator.

But what about the not-so-obvious? Winter's cold is hard on engine parts; a tune-up may be in order. Driving on snow and ice also make a check of your steering and suspension parts a must.

Whether your car needs a repair or you are just getting seasonal preventive maintenance service, you usually shop for the best place to have the work done.

And while you are shopping for the right service station, be sure also to shop for the best parts possible for your repairs.

It's unlikely that you can tell the difference between various automotive parts visually. But, one characteristic of a part that will give you a clue to its value is a warranty.

Check and see if the parts you need for a repair are covered by a warranty from the manufacturer. Find out how extensive that warranty is.

The representative of one automotive replacement parts manufacturer, Joseph McCloskey, vice president for Dana Corporation, says: "Our customers tell us they want the best service using the best parts. They want assurance that they are covered for as long as they own their car."

Dana,-a supplier of Perfect Circle engine and chassis parts and Victor gaskets and oil seals, offers a lifetime limited warranty on all of their automotive replacement parts.

Their warranty ensures free replacement of a part which becomes defective or worn out at any time, for as long as you own your car.

Dana's warranty covers internal engine components such as Perfect Circle pistons, piston rings, valves, bearings, timing chains and oil pumps. External engine parts covered include motor mounts, and fuel and water pumps.

Also covered are Perfect Circle constant-velocity (C-V) joints, U-joints, springs, bushings, ball joints and other chassis parts. This wide-reaching warranty even covers Victor gaskets and oil seals, unheard-of in this market before.

Another feature to be aware of when comparing part warranties is how easy is it to use. Most automotive replacement part warranties involve bringing the original sales receipt and the warranty certificate to a participating service dealer. Labor charges to install the new part are not commonly covered.

Dana's McCloskey continues: "We want our end-user customers to know that any Perfect Circle or Victor part he or she buys, anywhere in the country, will be the last he or she will ever have to purchase, no matter how many miles the car has been driven."

With the rising costs of automotive repairs today, due to the increased complexity of the work, it's a good feeling knowing that the parts used for your repairs are covered by a warranty. You'll never have to worry about paying for those parts again.

So, be sure to ask for parts with warranties and compare warranty coverage, whenever you have automotive service/repair work done, no matter what the season.

Robert E. Cady, 48
Lab Technician

A memorial service for Robert E. Cady, 48, of Quincy, a lab technician 12 years for Boris Master Color Service in Boston and a recent karate black belt winner, will be held today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, 523 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Mr. Cady died March 16 at home after a long battle with cancer.

Because of his illness, his karate class members and teacher came to his home in November to present him with the belt and a certificate from the karate master in Okinawa. He was affiliated with the Uechirya Karate Association.

He began karate lessons in Boston 20 years ago and pursued the activity off and on over the years. A few years ago, he got seriously involved again.

He enjoyed watching Bruce Lee movies and movies from the 1930s.

After graduating from Quincy High School, he entered the Navy and became an aerial photographer. He was stationed primarily in the United States.

Mr. Cady worked for the former Boris Studio in Boston as a wedding photographer before switching to lab work for Boris Master Color Services.

Working on his lawn and in his vegetable garden were two of his favorite pastimes. He also liked listening to classical music and taking photographs.

Born in Boston, he lived there before moving to Quincy several years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Anne W. (Brookhart) Cady, a son, Robert Cady, and a daughter, Heather Cady, both of Quincy.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

EASTER TRULY BRINGS WITH IT SYMBOLS OF REBIRTH. Here are some of those symbols which we all recognize as part of our Easter celebration. Perhaps you would want to share them with your children to help them understand the significance of the symbolism of this beautiful season of resurrection and new life ...

EASTER EGGS: Ancient Egyptians believed the universe was created from an enormous egg. From ancient times eggs have been symbols of fertility and have been planted along with seeds to insure a good harvest. LILIES: The Spring flowers represent the new life that is happening all around us. Nature is awakening from the death of winter, and it celebrates by bringing into bloom some of its most beautiful flowers. NEW CLOTHES: Many people wear new clothes at Easter to symbolize the new life that they have received with the Risen Christ ... and the EASTER BUNNY: How did he ever get into Easter: Well, the Easter Bunny is a Christ-symbol. He is the giver of gifts, the bearer of new life, for this is the time of year when rabbits give birth to their young in the wild. Jesus Christ, by his rising from the dead, now gives us a gift of new life with Him and through Him, and in Him in heaven.

May this Easter, wherever you worship, bring all of you and your families genuine Christian happiness. A JOYOUS EASTER TO ALL!

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will present the third concert of its 35th season Friday, April 7 at 8 p.m. in the North Quincy High School Auditorium, under the leadership of Francisco Noya, music director and conductor.

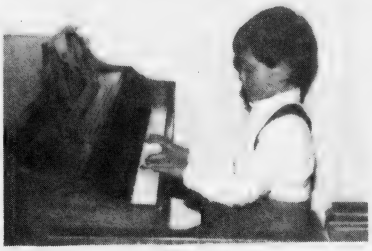
Erik Gustafson, a student at North Quincy High School, and winner of the 1989 Quincy Savings Bank scholarship competition will be piano soloist.

The program will be "Overture to Der Freischutz" by Weber, "Piano Concerto in d minor" by Bach and "Symphony No. 8 in G major" by Dvorak.

Tickets, available at the door, are $6 for adults and $5 for senior citizens and students.

There is ample free parking, and the auditorium is wheelchair accessible.

For more information, call 479-2408 or 328-5347.



5-Year Old Pianist Receives Scholarship

Five year old Patrick Coughlin of Quincy, who began playing piano at age 3-1/2, was recently awarded a scholarship from his piano teacher, Dr. Clara Carlmichael at a competition she held in her Quincy studio.

In addition to Patrick seven children, age 8 to 10, were chosen from 100 students to participate in the competition. They played Beethoven's "Fur Elise." Patrick was awarded the highest honor of a $100 scholarship.

In 1988, at the age of four, Patrick performed at the Winterfest at the Snug Harbor School's early childhood program, playing Beethoven's "Ode to Joy."

Aside from the piano, Patrick's other interests are typical of a five year old. He likes dinosaurs and has a collection of toy reptiles.

India Photo Exhibit On QJC Video Magazine

A photo exhibit on India by photographer Deborah Buckley will be featured on this week's edition of the Quincy Junior College Video Magazine tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m. on Channel 3 in Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

Other segments on the show include the recent Blood Mobile sponsored by the Student Government Association and a live bird display featured in last year's Environmental Fair.

WEEK OF: March 23

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
A leadership position, a role you assume naturally, thrusts you into the limelight sometime during the next three months. The key now, and through the year ahead, is to share that limelight graciously. Important educational decision is highlighted late in '89.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Thursday and Friday focus on financial interests, while Monday - Wednesday may see you earn a bonus of a non-monetary nature. Friend seeks opportunity to make amends.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Controlling emotions can help you put family difficulty in proper perspective. Interviews held this week may prove most favorable. Romance scene is a comedy of errors.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Seperate tasks into those of a mandatory and non-essential nature, then proceed with the former. An old, old friend may contact you sometime after the weekend.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Business, pleasure, and travel all mix well during a week that is both productive and entertaining. One caution: communications tie-up may mean messages are not getting through.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
A surplus of energy should be channeled in a positive direction: the week is potentially one of the year's most productive. A new neighbor may prove a valued friend.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Replies issued at this time require careful wording. This is a good week for expressing pet peeves. Modest financial windfall may come your way after the weekend.

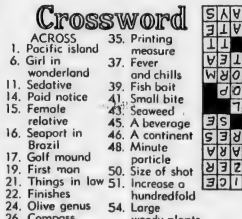
LEO — July 23 - August 22
Standards are becoming higher and may indirectly lead to a job advancement. Home improvements are now spotlighted; you find that comparison shopping can truly pay off.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
You thrive in the role of confidant, but it's now time to follow your own advice, especially in the sphere of personal relationships. Health and fitness programs are spotlighted.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Avoid taking short cuts, especially on the job front. News of a celebration may catch you off guard. Partner is slowly preparing to make a commitment. Family proves supportive.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Family members show a willingness to back your plans. Educational interests, especially those involving research, are spotlighted. Budgeting is essential at this time.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Projects involving nature are spotlighted at this time, whether or not you've ever had a green thumb. This is also a good time for learning about investments.



CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Praise comes from an unexpected source but provides you with the self-confidence needed to launch a pet project. Volunteer assignments may be more demanding than you expected.

Medical Associates Purchases Condo Suite At Crown Colony

Relocating to Crown Colony from 21 School St., Medical Associates' space is on the third floor of the 64,000 square foot medical building. Occupancy is expected for mid-May.

Founded in 1972 by Dr. Gerald Rosenblatt, Medical Associates of Quincy is a medical partnership of six internists with specialties in cardiology, rheumatology and gastroentrology. Dr. Rosenblatt, a cardiologist, trained at Quincy City Hospital, Medical Associates is the major internist group associated with that hospital. The internist group is also associated with both South Shore and Carney Hospitals.

"We are very pleased with the new space," says Roger Randall, administrator for the medical group. "Crown Colony Medical is a beautiful building, providing excellent parking for our patients. We were particularly attracted to the building because of its excellent location, within minutes of the Quincy/Adams MBTA Station.

Crown Colony Medical Office Condominium is located at 500 Congress St. within the Crown Colony Office Hotel complex at the intersection of Routes 3 and 128. The three story building is 85 percent committed.

Other Medical professionals taking space in the building include Ear, Nose and Throat, Audiology Associates, Inc., Central Diagnostics Laboratory, Heart Care Medical Center, Inc., Quincy Sports & Industrial Clinic, Quincy Radiology, and South Shore Dialysis Center.

"We are proud to welcome Medical Associates to our building, says Jonathan Kay, partner at HK Properties.

"They are a well respected leader among physicians in the South Shore area and a great addition to our professional roster."

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage given by ROBERT K. MITCHELL and KATHLEEN I. MITCHELL to Eagle Mortgage Corp. dated May 5, 1988 and recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 7956, Page 34, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing same will be sold at public auction at 2:00 o'clock p.m. on the 4th day of April, 1989 at 1344 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy, Massachusetts, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage.

TO WIT:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts and being shown as Lot 227 on Pilgrim Boulevard, now known as Wm. T. Morissey Boulevard, on "corrected Plan of Merrymount No. 2, made by Ernest W. Branch, C.T.", dated December, 1921, recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 1510, Page 281, and bounded and described as follows:

WESTERLY by Quincy Shore Drive, formerly Pilgrim Boulevard, fifty-eight (58) feet.

NORTHERLY by Lot 228, as shown on said plan, one hundred (100) feet;

EASTERLY by land of owners unknown, fifty-eight (58) feet; and

AREA Contains 5800 square feet of land.

For title see deed of Thomas C. Healy, Trustee of the Moreland Realty Trust recorded on November 22, 1971 with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 4788, Page 207.

TERMS OF SALE:

Said premises will be sold and conveyed subject to a mortgage to Quincy Co-operative Bank dated November 18, 1971 in the original principal amount of $31,000.00 and recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 4788, Page 208 and also subject to a mortgage to Shawmut Bank of Boston N.A. dated July 26, 1983 and reocrded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6215, Page 37 and further subject to and with the benefit of all, if any, rights, rights of way, restrictions, easements, covenants, improvements, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens and existing encumbrances of record, if any there be, insofar as the same are in force and applicable, created prior to the said mortgage which is being foreclosed.

A deposit of TEN THOUSAND ($10,000.00) DOLLARS by certified or bank cashier's check - no cash - will be required to be made at the time and place of the sale. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash or by certified check or bank cashier's check at the offices of Shocket & Dockser, One Apple Hill, Suite 225, (Route 9), Natick, Massachusetts, within twenty (20) days after the sale which balance is to be deposited in escrow with the firm of Shocket & Dockser, pending approval of said sale by the Norfolk Superior Court. Deed to be taken within ten (10) days from the date of the approval of said sale by the Norfolk Superior Court.

The successful bidder, other than the mortgagee, shall give the required deposit to Shocket & Dockser, One Apple Hill, Suite 225, Natick, Massachusetts 01760, which deposit shall be retained by the mortgagee if the successful bidder shall refuse to sign this Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate, or if, after signing, the successfull bidder does not perform his or her obligations hereunder. If the deposit is so retained, it shall become the property of the mortgagee as seller under this Agreement, and shall not be applied on the mortgage debt and such retention of the deposit shall not release the successful bidder from his or her obligations hereunder, should the mortgagee decide to pursue the same and/or cease to pursue any and all other rights, remedies, and courses from time to time available.

The premises shall be conveyed by the usual foreclosure deed under the statutory power of sale, subject to the foregoing, and, in addition, subject to any and all unpaid taxes, tax titles, tax liens, water and sewer rates and any other municipal assessments or liens.

The sale shall not be deemed complete until the successful bidder shall have made his or her deposit and signed this Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate. The balance of the consideration is to be paid at the offices of Shocket & Dockser, One Apple Hill, Suite 225, Natick, Massachusetts, on or before 10:00 o'clock on the twentieth (20th) day following the sale, provided that such day is one on which the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is open for business, and if not, then on the next day on which such Registry is open for business. Time is of the essence as regards to this Agreement.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the sale.

O'Connell Proposes Architectural Review Board

Mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell proposed today that Quincy adopt an architectural review board.

O'Connell, in a statement said- "We must protect the historic beauty of Quincy."

"Development in this city should respond to architectural guidelines established by our community and not merely the views of the private sector."

"One of the first priorities of an O'Connell administration will be to prepare and submit an ordinance calling for the establishment of an architectural review board. Quincy should have written guidelines available for anyone proposing a major development and those guidelines should apply to our city government also."

"An architectural review board should not delay development proposals but should help produce more attractive buildings," said O'Connell.

"All major cities work closely with developers from the beginning of any project to help insure that community architectural objectives are met. We should do the same."

"Buildings in the downtown should reflect the historical character of our city and proposals should enhance the historic nature of the center. Our beautiful churches such as The First Parish Church and the Bethany Church and buildings like The Thomas Crane Library are the core of Quincy's architectural heritage.

"We should use them as a frame of reference for growth in the future."

Central Expected To Reopen April 3

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

After five months of repair and additional work totaling close to three quarters of a million dollars, the Central Middle School appears to be ready to reopen Monday, April 3.

Mayor Francis McCauley, School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, officials from the city's building department as well as representatives from the firms who did the repair work will tour the school today (Thursday) at 8.30 a.m.

"We want to make sure everything is in place," said McCauley who has held regular meetings on the repair process.

The decision to reopen the school April 3 was approved unanimously by the School Committee at a recent meeting. The recommendation was made by Ricci.

The school was forced to close last October after it was discovered that a beam located above the auditorium supporting the school's roof had shifted. This made the 93-year old structure unsafe.

As a result, some 476 Central students were divided up by class and sent to three different schools, North Quincy High School, Broad Meadows Middle School and Squantum Elementary School.

Ricci's recommendation calls for the entire student body to be allowed into the school April 3 but the auditorium to remain closed until the fall.

The repair work was done in two phases and consisted of temporary and permanent repairs. The work included stabilizing the roof and removing the auditorium's ceiling and balcony.

The work was done by Dorel Steel and Gale Engineering.

McCauley estimates the work, which includes other work that was to be done to the school, will amount to $753,065, all of which came out of the city's UDAG account.

Flynn To Meet With City Officials On State Aid Crisis

Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn will discuss the plight of state aid and its potential impact on Quincy next year at a press conference today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall.

Flynn has been visiting cities and towns in an effort to draw attention to the state aid crisis. Quincy officials expected to attend the conference include Mayor Francis McCauley, city councillors, school committee members, union officials, School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci and other department heads.

By holding these meetings, Flynn hopes the state legislature will better understand the plight cities and towns are experiencing with the possibility of level-funded or reduced state aid. McCauley said Flynn is trying to convey the message that "not only is level funding not acceptable, we should be getting an increase because we are providing basic municipal services."

Furthermore, Flynn is telling the officials that all municipalities, not just Boston, could be impacted by the state budget crisis.

"This is a state-wide problem. All the municipalities are in the same boat. We're trying to work together," McCauley said.

The state budget has passed the House and now awaits action by the Senate.

As passed by the House, the budget essentially calls for level-funded state aid, McCauley said. However, the Mass. Municipal Association is saying there is a $80 to $100 million state shortfall which could cripple state aid in fiscal 1990.

Asked which is more credible, McCauley said "I would tend to believe the exhaustive study on (the state budget)."

However, the mayor said he is optimistic that Quincy will receive $38,718,127 in state aid for fiscal 1990, the same amount it received last year.

If Quincy's aid is level-funded, the city will face a shortfall of $6 million, McCauley pointed out. The shortfall should be covered by the city's free cash account, he added.

Flynn's visiting and press conference will occur four days before McCauley submits his fiscal 1990 budget to the City Council.

The mayor said he will submit a budget of $117,802,090 to the Council at its meeting Monday, April 3.

The council has 45 days to review it and act on it.

It is expected that Councillor Stephen McGrath, chairman of the Finance Committee, will request that the budget be referred to his committee for analysis. He will then meet with department heads just as the mayor has done.

McCauley pointed out that the council has the power to cut the budget, not add to it.

As for the state's budget problems, McCauley said he does not support new taxes and instead believes the legislature should eliminate certain jobs on the state payroll.

Lastly, the mayor said it is important to remember that the state budget issue is far from being over. "We don't expect final approval until June," he said.

License Sought For Non-Alcoholic Dances

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday heard an informal request from Jack Donahue, executive director of Project Feelings and Heavenly High Ministries, the Quincy-based drug and alcohol abuse prevention organization, to hold non-alcoholic dances at Montello's Function Hall, 53 Mass Ave. on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Donahue had been granted a license to hold the dances at Chevy's on Parkingway, but told the board there was a demand to expand the program to weekend hours and that he needed another establishment for the purpose.

All proceeds from the dances will benefit the organization, he told the board.

Donahue requested the hours of 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Fridays and Saturdays and from 7 p.m. to midnight on Sundays.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro suggested that the hours be cut to midnight due to neighboring residents in the area.

Donahue said he would change the hours to 7 p.m. to midnight on all three nights.

DeCristofaro said that Project Feelings is "a very, very good project and I support it," but stressed that parking not be allowed on Mass Ave. because the street is "very narrow."

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell agreed that parking must not be allowed on Mass Ave. because emergency aparatus must be able to get through the street.

The board told Donahue he must file a formal application for the license request and appear before the board officially at that time.

Early Summer

According to a spokesman for the National Weather Service, the temperature in Boston at 2 p.m. Tuesday was 79 degrees, eclipsing the previous record of 77 degrees set in 1946.

The weather service does not keep records for Quincy.

Rabies Clinic Saturday

The city's annual rabies clinic will be held Saturday, April 1 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Public Works Garage, 55 Sea St., near the police station, rain or shine.

The cost is $5 for a dog or cat. Immunization should be done every three years on animals three months of age or older.

Dog licenses will be available for new licenses and renewals. Cost is $4 for males and spayed females, and $7 for unspayed females.

Owners should bring current rabies certificates and spayed certificates.

A $10 late fee will be charged on all licenses not renewed by May 1.

Owners should remember that a license tag is a dog's only means of identification.

For more information, contact Dog Officer Phyllis Berlucchi at 773-6297 or the City Clerk's Office at 773-1380.

300 Quincy Names On Unclaimed Money List

More than 300 Quincy residents are among 29,000 people and businesses that are due more than $30 million from abandoned accounts, announces State Treasurer Robert Crane.

Under the state's Unclaimed Money Law, bank accounts, insurance proceeds, checks, stock certificates and the like that have gone untouched for at least five years are deemed to be abandoned. All such accounts must be reported to the treasury, which then attempts to notify the rightful owners or legal heirs.

Last year, more than half of the $25 million in reported abandoned accounts were returned.

The law requires that until claimed, all funds be kept in the state's General Fund.

Quincy Shooting Called Attempted Murder-Suicide

A 44-year old Quincy man shot and seriously wounded his roommate, then fatally wounded himself in the Wollaston Beach condominium Monday night, according to Quincy Police.

Charles T. Gardner died shortly after the 7 p.m. shooting at Quincy Hospital, Police Captain David Rowell said.

According to Rowell, Gardner shot himself once in the head. He was found lying on his back on his bed with a .38 calibre handgun on his chest, Rowell said.

Gardner's roommate, Guy D. Campbell, 26, was found in a hallway outside the third-floor apartment with a gunshot wound in his cheek, Rowell said.

Campbell was listed in serious condition at Massachusetts General Hospital Tuesday afternoon. He was transferred there after being taken to Quincy City Hospital Monday night.

Authorities were alerted to the incident when three neighbors called police on the 911 emergency line to report that a man had been shot at the Ocean Cove condominium complex at 677 Quincy Shore Dr.

Sgt. Robert Crowley and Patrolman William Horick found Campbell on the hallway floor opposite the door to his apartment. They found Gardner in apartment 313, still alive but bleeding from the head, Rowell said.

Rowell said the case is being treated as an attempted murder-suicide, adding that Gardner apparently did the shooting. He said Gardner lost his job recently and may have been depressed.

Police said two shots were fired from the handgun found with Gardner. He had a permit for the gun, Rowell said.

According to the captain, Campbell may not have realized that he had been shot. When Crowley found him, Campbell complained that his head hurt, Rowell said.

Gardner's brother, who lives in Maine, was notified of the death Monday night, Rowell said. Gardner was a native of Canada.

Campbell lived in Revere before moving to Quincy, Rowell said.

Neither drugs nor alcohol appears to have been involved in the shooting.

Job Fair To Be Held April 29

The South Shore Job Fair '89 will be held Saturday, April 29 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at State Street South in North Quincy.

The fair is being sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's Personnel Managers Group. They are seeking booth exhibitors from professional fields including banking, finance, insurance and medical.

Booths are available on a first-come, first-served basis. Cost is $350 for members and $425 for non-members on a waiting list basis.

MWRA Sludge Impact Hearing

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority will hold a public information meeting on its Draft Environmental Impact Report on the long-term residuals (sludge) management plan in Quincy Tuesday, April 11 at 7 p.m. at the Broadmeadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd., Quincy.

The long-term residuals management project involves the siting of permanent sludge processing facilities at the Fore River shipyard. The facility, to be operational by the end of 1995, will allow the MWRA to convert sludge from the new Deer Island treatment plant into compost and fertilizer pellets.

MWRA staff will be available to review the status and key elements of the DEIR. Quincy residents are encouraged to attend the meeting to learn about and comment on the plan.

A transcript of the meeting will be submitted to the Massachusetts Environmental Policy Act Unit (MEPA). Any written comments should be sent by April 28 to MEPA at the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, 100 Cambridge St., Cambridge, MA 02202.

Quality Education

Your first thought may be its only important to the children, their parents and the educators. Yes, it is important to them because they are creating tommorrow's future. But it is equally important to every citizen because it maintains and enhances the "Quality of Life" within a city. Why because a great school system attracts quality citizens to live there. It has also been known to increase the paroperty value of homes in its city's boundaries.

By providing quality education to the youth of today you are creating 1st class citizens for the future. Citizens who will respect their neighbors and the neighborhood they live in. You will also be saving money in the long run. Consider this -- Do the cities and towns that spend the necessary money to provide a quality school system find many of their students dropping out or reverting to crime or do most of those graduates go on to contribute in some way to enhance society.

A quality school system attracts more good teachers. It provides full-time nurses to assist in teaching the ever changing health education needs in today's society, plus caring for the sick or injured and screening of children to identify and protect others against communicable diseases.

A quality school system provides new and innovative programs that are necessary for students of the 1980's and 1990's to learn about the world they live in and how to cope with the job market and life in general. It provides proper maintenance and upkeep of its buildings. In today's schools we are faced with many diverse classroom students that are being housed in the same room but have many different needs such as bilinguai, advanced, remedial, special needs and so on. A pupil-teacher ratio of about 20 per class is necessary to service the needs of all those different kinds of students.

Schools also provide a community resource avenue for all citizens including senior citizens, clubs and organizations that can either hold functions at, vote or participate in a variety of activities. A quality school system will simply enhance the "Quality of Life" in Quincy. Help make education one of Quincy's top priorities. Call or write your School Committee and City Councillors. Tell them you care and want more money for the school system. Tell Mayor McCauley a surplus is nice to have but not at the expense of underfunding important city services such as our school system. This is important not only to our present school children but also the students of the past and the future. We were all once students. Let's give the youth of today an even better opportunity than we had. Help us fight for quality education. Your support is needed and does count!!

We Need Action Not Words

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

It was brought to my attention recently that once again, we in Squantum stand to lose Bravo 4779 car.

In my 36 years as a resident of Squantum, every time the yearly budget is made out, we residents lose our area car. We are called a low crime rate area. That is whv we lose out.

Since the end of last summer, we would be lucky to see a cruiser in Squantum.

As a result, houses get egged, lawn furniture wrecked or stolen, stores get ransacked and employees are afraid to leave. Also, the Squantum School is spray painted, shingles are ripped off and windows are broken.

Homeowners are afraid to leave their property. Fire alarm boxes are pulled for no reason at all. Dumpsters and barrels are set on fire.

Before the gas tanks were removed at the Fitzbrook Automotive, Inc., 771 E. Squantum St., kids were stealing money left and right as well as keys. (Keys were later returned). Also, cars, home windows and street lights were spray painted.

Where was our protection? There is protection everywhere but in Squantum.

I recently called City Hall about police protection in Squantum and I was told this section of the city is a "low crime area" and the police department was going to look into it. Look into it are the famous last words.

The police response time is very inadequate. We only see cruisers when they check in and out.

I know we residents of Squantum don't need to hear "We'll check into it." We need action.

I have already started a petition for more police coverage in Squantum. So far, there are about 125 names on it and I hope many more Squantum residents sign it.

Why? Because I am afraid to walk the streets of Squantum between dusk and dawn. Because I myself have been threatened.

Let's clean up Squantum and make it a safe place again.

McGrath: 'Where I Stand!'

Steve McGrath says he has a simple message for this year's mayoral campaign and he will deliver it personally door-to-door.

You might entitle it: "This Is Where I Stand."

McGRATH

He's for:

Improving the city's school buildings with capital outlay money.

He's against:

A sludge facility at the Quincy shipyard.

A Proposition 2½ override.

He's already out delivering the message to which he will add as the campaign goes on. Since early March he has knocked on more than 500 doors, starting in Merrymount and hopscotching through neighborhoods in Adams Shore, Squantum, North Quincy, Wollaston.

And this week he will be in Quincy Point.

He plans to continue campaigning door-to-door and hopes to reach just about every house before the Sept. 12 primary.

"We'll cover the city -- that's the goal," he says.

He even knocks on doors where he finds a car in the driveway with a bumper sticker of one of the other three mayoral candidates on it.

"As long as I'm in the neighborhood I figure I might as well stop by and say hello," he smiles.

He also notes there are more Asians registered as voters this year than when he ran two years ago for city councillor at-large.

"There were very few then," he says. "But there's a lot now."

There is a language barrier, he finds. But it is overcome when there is someone in the house who speaks English.

He says he is getting "a very good response at the door" wherever he has been. What's on the people's minds at the moment?

He has found parents who are concerned about class sizes in the public schools. They are against large classes. They want a good teacher-pupil ratio.

"And there is a lot of talk about sludge," he notes. He hadn't gotten to Quincy Point yet.

"Sludge is definitely a major issue." says McGrath. "The City should continue to take a stance against the sludge facility being located here. Even if the MWRA locates its headquarters at the shipyard, it won't lessen my opposition to the sludge facility being located there. I am in favor of the headquarters going there -- but not the sludge facility.

McGrath says he has a good organization -- even better than two years ago when he came out of Ward 5 to top the city council at-large field.

"We have a good nucleus from two years ago," he says. "And we have picked up some excellent new people."

He says the enthusiasm is so great that sometimes some of the people have to be restrained a little.

"We have a campaign plan," he explains. "And we don't want them to get ahead of the plan."

KELLY

Former City Councillor Leo Kelly who was McGrath's campaign chairman two years ago is back in that role again this year.

Kelly had thought of running for councillor at-large this year but decided to rejoin McGrath instead.

"I'm glad he did," says McGrath. "Leo is very savvy politically."

Opposing a Proposition 2½ override, McGrath says: "We should live within our budget." "We have tightened our budget and the state should tighten its budget. If it did, there would be funds available to assist the cities and towns in the essential services of police, fire, schools and trash collection."

He also thinks there should be federal funds available to help the taxpayers with the cost of the Boston Harbor cleanup.

In addition to knocking on doors, the McGrath organization is lining up coffee hours..

McGrath is optimistic about nailing down one of the two nominations in the Sept. 12 preliminary election.

"No one is going to work harder," he vows.

He says there will be more on his "Where I Stand" message in the weeks ahead.

PEGGY NIGRO, who some weeks ago said she would not seek re-election to the School Committee this year, has been under pressure by many to change her mind.

NIGRO

But she isn't going to.

"Positively not," she says. "I will not be a candidate this year."

She wants to spend more time with her family.

□

AT AGE 38 new Fire Chief Paul O'Connell could head that department for as long as 27 years if he stayed on until age 65.

O'CONNELL

But O'Connell, right now anyway, doesn't plan to stay that long.

"Seventeen years would be more like it, he says.

"I think I would like to step down at age 55 and turn it over to someone else," he says.

He's not interested in career longevity records or marks.

First Chance Head Start Accepting Applications

The First Chance Head Start Program is accepting applications for next year's program for children living in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hull for its federally funded pre-school program.

The program is free to 3 and 4 year old children whose families meet the federal income guidelines. Children with special needs are accepted.

Those wishing applications should call 848-8142 as soon as possible. Any questions will be answered.

QJC Library Dedicated In 'Good Friend' Frank Anselmo's Honor

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Frank Anselmo, who began his education political career in the so-called autumn of life, reaped a big and bountiful harvest last week.

Anselmo, 90, who was first elected to the Quincy School Committee in 1961 at age 62, was repaid for his commitment to education last Thursday when Quincy Junior College's new library was dedicated in his honor.

Prior to the plaque unveiling, an array of city officials, faculty and friends praised Anselmo for being a leader and supporter of education in Quincy.

When it was his turn to speak, Anselmo was overwhelmed by the honor.

"Please don't let my head get so swelled that I won't be able to live with myself," he said.

"I appreciate your generosity of spirit. For the rest of my short life, I'll never forget it."

Then, he added humbly, "I consider myself a little piece of driftwood in the stream of humanity."

The consensus at the dedication was that Anselmo is much more than that.

Mayor Francis McCauley, who has served on the School Committee as chairman since 1982, said Anselmo has done an excellent job.

"You always know where Frank stands," the mayor said.

Noting that the School Committee oversees the operation of QJC, McCauley said, "Frank has been a strong and vocal supporter of Quincy Junior College (since its inception in 1958). He has not only spoken out on issues and been a supporter, he has literally put his money where his mouth was."

To date, Anselmo has given $22,500 in scholarship money. The amount is the most the college has received from anyone in its 31-year history.

The most recent donation came one day before the dedication, at Wednesday night's School Committee meeting. Anselmo handed the mayor a check for $2,500 without saying a word.

"A lot of the success Quincy Junior College has had is because of people like Frank Anselmo," the mayor said.

A native of Italy, Anselmo was sent to Boston by his father when he was 14 to live with an aunt because of the educational opportunities there. While attending Boston University, he set several world records in marksmanship with a .22-calibre rifle.

A veteran of World War I and World War II, he is a retired Quincy post office superintendent.

Since his election to the School Committee, Anselmo has strived to maintain quality education in Quincy schools.

Quincy Junior College President O. Clayton Johnson, who served as master of ceremonies, said Anselmo has been a leader, supporter and friend of the college.

"At age 90, Mr. Anselmo has indeed seen the good and tough times but always he has tried to see the best. And this has led him to becoming an involved participant in the totality of our society," Johnson said.

City Council President Patricia Toland, a former school committee member, presented Anselmo with a Council commendation for his "long and dedicated service to the Quincy Public Schools, his generosity to the cause of education and his compassion and humanity on behalf of the students" of all Quincy schools.

"Frank has really been a true advocate for children and a true advocate for education. He believes in the American dream. He made it come true for himself," Toland said.

"He is truly a person we can describe as a good and faithful servant to the City of Quincy and Quincy Public Schools," she added.

School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci congratulated Anselmo on behalf of the school administration.

Noting that Anselmo is the oldest school committee member in the country, Ricci said, "(Frank) brings to the Quincy schools a history which is not in our history books," adding that Anselmo played a major role in the construction of Quincy Vocational-Technical School and QJC's new building.

"I know if we had to name a school or a place or an important facility after someone, it should be Frank Anselmo. (The library) is very fitting," Ricci said.

Ricci also remarked that it was Anselmo who convinced him that Quincy Junior College should remain independent and not merge with the state community college system.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets, who is Chairman of the Division of Social and Public Services and teaches government at QJC, brought greetings from the faculty.

Referring to Anselmo's immigration to the United States 76 years ago, Sheets said he came to America "poor in this world's goods but he came rich in dedication and determination as well as his devotion to help others.

"Frank is a kind and a gentle man. A giving and caring man. But a tough and a tenacious man in pursuit of justice and in pursuit of what he believes to be right," Sheets said.

"Frank, your mark will always be on Quincy Junior College and on the lives of all of us. The faculty, the staff we thank you for your kindness and your generosity but I guess more than anything else, we simply thank you for being you," he said.

Others who praised and thanked Anselmo were State Senator Paul Harold, former school committee member Charles Sweeny, student government association President Gary Greene and college librarian Sandra Neal.

Also on hand for the dedication were Anselmo's son, Rene, of Greenwich, Conn., two daughters, Barbara Willett of Sherborn and Phaedra Thomas of Leominister, and three granddaughters.

WHAT'S THE RIGHT POLICY FOR YOU?
(Part 3 of 3) ENDOWMENTS

Part one spoke of the whole life policy, with its premiums being paid for life, and term premiums for a period such as 1 year, 5 year or whatever the contract offers. Unlike these policies, the endowments pay the face amount, plus accumulations to the insured at a specified time, i.e. endowment at 18, or at age 65.

This contract charges a higher premium than the whole life or the term. Although it gives the least amount of death protection, it is designed to return a larger cash value.

Recently a different type of policy has been offered to the public. This policy is known as "universal life." Many companies have the same contract, but call it by a different title. Universal life has a death benefit and a cash value that will grow, depending on what the economics are during the life of your policy.

Make sure you get a thorough education from your agent, so that you can make a decision that will fit your needs.

If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Please visit our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy or give us a call at 471-6200.

Pay Raises For 2,400 City Employees

Mar. 30-Apr. 5
34 Years Ago

All of Quincy's approximately 2,400 full time city employees, except the Mayor, city councillors and the city manager, were to get pay raises, according to an interpretation of a Council order by Auditor Alexander Smith.

Included were pay hikes for the fire and police chiefs, from $6,300 to $6,800; the city clerk, from $5,200 to $5,700; the city solicitor, from $7,500 to $8,000; the hospital director, from $10,000 to $10,200; and the city auditor, from $8,500 to $8,700.

GRANITE REVIVAL EYED

Antonio Ruscitto of 60 Alton Rd., South Quincy, woner of A. Ruscitto and Sons, Inc., monument manufacturers, purchased the S. Swingle, Inc., quarries in West Quincy and announced plans to revive the city's oldest industry.

The purchase included the Elcock, Wigwam and Berry quarries in addition to Mannex Quarry, better known as Swingle's Quarry, which was said to be the deepest quarry hole in the world at 345 feet. They had been closed since January.

MWRA Donates Shipyard Riveters' Gun To Historical Society

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has donated a 90-year-old riveters' gun used in shipbuilding at the Fore River Shipyard to the Quincy Historical Society.

Sold for $1, the riveters' gun and related equipment will be part of Quincy Historical Society's maritime exhibit on shipbuilding, the transition from wood to steel.

"By today's standards, the equipment was of nominal value and virtually obsolete. It does however have great historical value," said MWRA Executive Director Paul Levy.

"We are pleased to help the Quincy Historical Society preserve a portion of their local history," Levy said.

The authority donated one riveting gun, one steel reamer, one backup tool and one steel storage box. Since the MWRA is prevented from donating property, the gun and equipment were sold for their steel scrap value, $1.

Elliot Hoffman, director of the Quincy Historical Society, said, "This is a wonderful acquisition for our exhibit. It is important that we remember our local history.

"We look forward to working with the MWRA in the future."

After 47 Year Gap

A Reunion In Ireland Every Two Years For Linehan Sisters

By JANE ARENA

After 47 years without seeing her sisters, Bridget (Linehan) Mahoney, of Quincy, now looks forward to a reunion in her native Blarney, Ireland every two years.

The next trip is planned for this summer.

Her son, John "Butch" Mahoney, Social Health Coordinator for Quincy Public Schools, makes sure that his family on both sides of the Atlantic keeps in touch with each other. While he was growing up, after all, he never knew any of his relatives outside his immediate family.

Both his mother and his father, the late "Danno" Mahoney, emigrated from Blarney in 1926, the only two members of their families to do so.

Danno left two brothers, Dennis and Timothy, in Ireland, and Bridget left three sisters, Mary, Kathy and Eileen. That was the last they'd see each other for 47 years.

After settling in America and raising six children, Bridget and Danno never had the chance to go back to Blarney. Living through the Depression, World War II and the Korean War, Butch explains, "there was never really time to think about it." But Butch thought about it. And, in 1973, he did something about it. He went to Blarney in search of his roots.

He was able to locate both of his uncles, all three of his aunts, and a whole slew of cousins he had never met before. But, he says, he was treated like family right from the start.

Butch then brought his parents to Blarney for a family reunion which had been 47 years in the waiting.

He had bridged quite a gap.

Soon after the reunion, Danno died. Both his brothers died a short time later. Bridget and her sisters, though, are still going strong. In fact, Mary, the eldest, celebrated her 90th birthday March 25.

Butch now brings his mother over to Ireland every two years.

The rest of his family, his brothers and sister and his own son, have also made frequent visits. And, it works the other way too...Relatives from the O'Flynn family, the Duggan family the Nagle family and the Mahoney family, all relatives, have made visits to Quincy and stayed with Butch.

"The bottom line is they're family," Butch says, "and we treat them as such."

There will never again be a long gap between family reunions.

"It's amazing how similar the Mahoney's in Ireland are to the Mahoney's in America," Butch says. "We have the same interests, they're into sports." (Danno played for the North Quincy Associates softball team from 1939 to 1941).

Although Butch is planning his next trip with his mother for this summer, he's sorry that they weren't able to share in his Aunt Mary's 90th birthday party.

"There'll be a big party," he says, "and everyone will go to the local Inn where we always meet the clan, and they'll sing songs and tell stories...everybody's always singing songs and telling stories."

And, thanks to Butch, those songs and stories can be heard on both sides of the Atlantic.

Church News

'Whom Do We Obey?' Wollaston Congregational Topic

"Whom Do We Obey?" will be the sermon by Rev. Elden Zuern Sunday, April 2, at the 10 a.m. worship at Wollaston Congregational Church, Lincoln and Winthrop Aves.

Nursery care is available for infants and pre-schoolers. Church School classes for grades 1-12 follow the children's sermon.

All attending are invited to the traditional Fellowship Hour following the 10 a.m. service, where light refreshments are served by various church committee members.

Monday, April 3, the Executive Committee will meet at 7.30 p.m. in the social Hall. On Wednesday, April 5, Trustees will hold their monthly meeting at 7.30 p.m.

Saturday, April 1, at 7 p.m. the Youth Fellowship will hold a chaperoned dance in the social hall.

More information may be obtained by calling the church office at 773-7432.

'To Believe In Christ' Sermon Title At Bethany

There will be two worship services Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, located at Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

The chapel service will be held at 9 a.m. and the sanctuary service at 10 a.m.

This being the first Sunday of the month the Sacrament of Holy Communion will be shared by the congregation.

The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will conduct the liturgy and preach the sermon, entitled "To Believe In Christ". The sermon will be a call to deeper believe and experience of the risen Christ. Marion Lockwood will be the lay Scripture reader in the chapel and Tora Fernald Huntington will read in the sanctuary. The communion commentary for the radio only will be given by Irene Belcher.

The Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for children through eighth grade. Excellent nursery care for babies is also provided. Our Church School Coordinator, Pamela Curran, will be present to supervise the care of our infants and children.

The worship service will be broadcast over WJDA 1300kc. at 10 a.m. In addition a cassette tape of the service can be obtained for $2 by contacting the church office.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. Individuals and families from the community are welcome to share in the worship, learning, and fellowship of Bethany Church.

For more information about any of Bethany's ministries or activities call the church office at 479-7300.

'From The Lord's Supper' Covenant Congregational Sermon

At the 10 45 a.m. worship service of Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., the Diaconate will serve Communion.

Rev. Fred Lawson will preach on "As I go from the Lord's Supper."

Sunday School will begin at 9 30 a.m.

A nursery is available for children age five and under. The attendant is Sarah Nelson. For children up to age 12 there is junior church.

Choir rehearsal will be Wednesday 7 p.m. The World Missions offering envelopes can be turned in on Sunday.

The choir will be directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, Minister of Music. Luisa Dano will be soprano soloist.

The First District Covenant Women's luncheon and meeting will be held on Saturday, April 8 and a farewell reception Sunday, April 23 for Rev. Lawson, who is retiring after 40 years in the ministry.

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the church office at 479-5728.

'Abortion Rights, Reverence For Life' Sermon Topic At United First Parish

This Sunday, in anticipation of the March for Women's Equality and Women's Lives April 9 in Washington, D.C., Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, will deliver a sermon titled "Abortion, Rights, and Reverence for Life" at United First Parish Church (Unitarian).

Six church members are planning to attend the march.

The sermon will be delivered during the 10.30 a.m. Sunday service. Visitors are welcome and are invited to attend the social hour immediately following the service.

Norman Corey, music director, will play organ works by Pachelbel, Dupuis, Rheinberger, Boyce and Scheidt. Zoe Bohl and Stephanie Post will usher.

Historic First Parish, "Church of the Presidents," established in 1639, will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. The tombs of the two presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, are in the church with those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine. Abigail was outspoken in her concern for women's rights.

"Remember the Ladies," she wrote him at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia in 1776. She reminded John that "Men of Sense in all Ages abhor those customs which treat us as the vassals of your Sex."

The church is located on Hancock St. in Quincy Center (opposite City Hall). Church School and child care are provided. Call 773-1290 for information.

100-Year-Old Opens Easter Service At Squantum First Church

The traditional Easter service at the First Church of Squantum opened with an Easter greeting by Katie Crossman, a church member who will be 100 years old later this month.

Others who spoke during the service were Stewart Scott, Sarah Mildram, Susan Scott, Evelyn Ahearn, Sandy Ahearn and Steve Williams.

Cynthia Stanton and Craig Zaehring read the scriptures. Naomi Belsinger and the children of the church assisted the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, in telling the congregation that Jesus came back from the dead.

Dr. Langevin preached on the subject, "The Presence of Jesus."

Music was by Mary Ruth Scott playing the piano and Mindi Hurdi playing the flute. The Chancel Choir was accompanied by Mary Ruth Scott, organ and Janet Williamson, piano.

Cliff and Shirley Mason were the greeters, Harry Holmes and Tore Wallin, the ushers. Pat Sorensen and Pat Olson hosted the Fellowship Hour. Pat Olson was also in charge of arranging the Easter flowers in the sanctuary.

Earlier in the morning, many in the congregation gathered at Moswetuset Hummock for an Easter Sunrise service. Patti Hurd gave the opening prayer and other parts were taken by Lori Ogilvie, Marci Hurd, Sarah Mildram, Susan Scott, Mindi Hurd and Deborah Stohlberg. Guitarists Mary Ruth Scott and Andy Ogilvie provided the music. Dr. Langevin preached on the subject, "Getting to Easter." The Easter breakfast at the church after that service was hosted by Ellen Ogilvie and Patti Hurd.

On Maundy Thursday, the congregation gathered in Fellowship Hall around an enormous U-shaped table such as it is likely that Jesus and his disciples used. After a pot roast dinner, the worshippers stayed right at the table to participate in the Lord's Supper just as Jesus' disciples had done at the Last Supper.

This Sunday the service will begin at 10.30 a.m. Sunday School and nursery meet during the service.

Quincy Residents In Walk For Hunger

A number of Quincy residents will be among the more than 30,000 New Englanders who will gather on Boston Common on Sunday, May 7, to celebrate Project Bread's 20th anniversary of The Walk for Hunger.

The Quincy Community Action Center, Mt. Moriah Emergency Food Program and Brockton Coalition for the Homeless in Massachusetts will receive funds for local food pantries, soup kitchens and shelter feeding programs.

"Hunger is a hidden epidemic," explained Quincy Community Action Center Director Mary Brelsford. "We see working families come through the doors everyday who are trying to make ends meet, but who just cannot. The Walk for Hunger enables us to help these individuals by providing food during their difficult times."

Local and national leaders joining the 20th annual Walk for Hunger on May 7 will include Massachusetts Governor Michael Dukakis, Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn, Cardinal Bernard Law and U.S. Senator John Kerry.

The Walk for Hunger begins between 7 and 9 a.m. on Boston Common by Charles St., and winds 20 miles through Boston, Brookline, Newton, and Cambridge before returing to the Common. The 20th anniversary celebration includes special opening and closing ceremonies, and entertainment along The Walk.

Individuals interested in walking or sponsoring a walker may call Project Bread at 723-5000.

License Granted For Fish, Meat Market

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from David Chu, of the Cathay Pacific Restaurant, for a Common Victualer License as held by the 50/50 Diner at 618-632 Washington St.

Chu told the board he plans to open a fish and meat market at the site and also have one table with four chairs for patrons wishing to stay for a cup of coffee or a sandwich. Aside from this, he said, it will be a take-out deli-type operation and a raw fish and meat market.

The board noted the building has been vacant for a long period of time.

Chu told the board he plans extensive renovations for the building, including a new kitchen area and new kitchen equipment which will meet current city regulations. He estimates that he will spend $350,000 on the kitchen renovations alone.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro said he is "happy that the building is going to be used for something again," but stressed that he is concerned about neighboring residents in the rear of the establishment.

"Those residents in the back must be shielded from aromas coming from the restaurant," he said.

The board also told Chu the dumpster area must be kept clean and odor-free and stipulated in the license agreement that the dumpster must be equipped with a compacter.

DeCristofaro also said the street on the side of the site, Washington Court, must not be used as a short-cut by patrons or employees of the establishment. He told the board that the road was closed when the diner went in originally and that a stipulation must be made to keep it closed now.

"That is a very busy area," he said.

Chu told the board delivery trucks may need to have access to Washington Ct. but that he would block the road off to all but delivery traffic. The board agreed that a chain across the road would suffice.

Board Chairman John Gillis went on record commending the Quincy Police Department for keeping the vacant building free of vandalism.

"The Police Department did a good job in the Quincy Point area," he said.

The board granted the license, with stipulations, pending a team inspection of plans by the health, fire and building inspectors.

Gregory P. Toland, 20

Son Of City Council President

A funeral Mass for Gregory P. Toland, 20, of Quincy, the son of Quincy City Council President Patricia M. (Nagle) Toland and a student at Westfield State College, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. in St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Mr. Toland died unexpectedly at Westfield State College Sunday.

A junior mass communications student, he was active in drama productions at the college and was the producer and director of the spring musical, Joseph and His Technicolor Dreamcoat.

Dr. Sarah Light, vice president for student affairs at the college, said Mr. Toland was a very likeable young man and a very good student.

He was a 1986 graduate of North Quincy High School. While a student at NQHS, he was a diver on the swimming team and a member of the Concert Choir, Drama Club and Pride Committee.

After graduation, he formed the North Quincy High School Alumni Theater Group and served as president.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by his father,

GREGORY TOLAND

John Toland Jr., two brothers, John Toland III and Brendan P. Toland, both of Quincy, a sister, Elizabeth V. Toland of Quincy, many aunts and uncles and a great-aunt, Margaret M. O'Connor.

Burial will be in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Visiting hours were scheduled for Wednesday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. at the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Donations may be made to the North Quincy High School Alumni Theatre Group, the Musical Theatre Group of Westfield State College or to charity.

Richard T. Sweeney

Quincy Funeral Director

A pro-Burial Mass was celebrated Monday at St. John the Baptist Church for Richard T. Sweeney, 63, cofounder and president of Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals in Quincy.

This followed a blessing said Saturday at St. John the Baptist Church. Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Mr. Sweeney died March 21 at Massachusetts General Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in Quincy Point, Mr. Sweeney attended St. John's Parochial School, graduated from Quincy High School, and the New England Institute of Funeral Directors in 1948, after completing three years in the Coast Guard, two in the Pacific, during World War II.

Mr. Sweeney and his late brother, Francis M. Sweeney, opened the Independence Avenue, Quincy, funeral home in 1949. Richard T. Sweeney Jr. and Jeffrey F. Sweeney, his sons, are both funeral directors there today. Mr. Sweeney lived in Braintree for 30 years before moving to Hingham three years ago.

Known as a generous man, he made many gifts to help the needy, particularly through Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor of St. John the Baptist Church.

Mr. Sweeney was a past recording secretary of the Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, of which he was a 35-year member. He was also a fourth-degree knight, a member of the Richard Cardinal Cushing Assembly.

A member of the Massachusetts Funeral Directors Association, he was honored in December for 40 years service as a licensed funeral director. He was a member also of the National Funeral Directors Association.

He was a member of the Quincy Legion Post, the George F. Bryan Veterans of

RICHARD T. SWEENEY

Foreign Wars Post, the Quincy Kiwanis Club, Quincy Elks Lodge, the board of directors of the Family Counseling and Guidance Centers, Inc., the Braintree and Quincy Historical Societies, and the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. He was a former corporator of the Quincy Savings Bank.

Mr. Sweeney's survivors include his wife, Margaret A. (Lent) Sweeney two sons, Richard T. Sweeney, Jr., and Jeffrey Sweeney, both of Quincy three daughters, Elizabeth K. Barry of Braintree, Martha A. Sweeney of Weymouth and Kathryn R. Sweeney of Hingham a sister, Elizabeth deVarennes of Quincy a brother, Gerard S. Sweeney of Milton, and six grandchildren, Sabrina A. Sweeney, Laura M. Sweeney, Francis M. Sweeney and Richard T. Sweeney III, all of Quincy and Elizabeth L. Barry and Caroline M. Barry, both of Braintree. He was the brother of the late Robert F. Sweeney and Francis M. Sweeney.

Donations may be made in his name to St. John the Baptist Church, 21 Gay St., Quincy 02169 or to the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute, 750 Washington St., Boston 02111.

Robert 'Bones' Greenhalgh

Former Basketball, Baseball Star

Robert Greenhalgh, Jr., 79, who was an outstanding local basketball and baseball player in the 1920's and 1930's, died March 22 in San Diego, Calif.

Mr. Greenhalgh was affectionately known as "Bones" to his teammates and fans because of his slender build.

Dave Lubarsky, local sports historian, remembers Mr. Greenhalgh as "one of the greatest basketball players at Quincy High School and at the old Quincy YMCA."

"He was a great shooter and could hit from all angles," Lubarsky said.

Mr. Greenhalgh was only about five foot seven in his basketball days when players averaged no more than eight points a game.

"But in six straight games in the 1927-28 season, he scored 89 points, more than the players on all the six opposing teams could score all together," Lubarsky recalls.

On that Quincy High School team, one of the schools greatest ever, which Lubarsky says was Hobie Robinson, Charlie Gabriel, Gilbert (Crum) Crofts and Fred Comparato. The latter, is the surviving starting member of that team and is living in Florida.

Mr. Greenhalgh played the outfield for the Weymouth Pals, one of the top semi-pro baseball teams in the area but is better known for basketball.

Mr. Greenhalgh later starred for the Fore River baseball team, which won the South Shore League title in a seven-game series, on Oct. 9, 1938, at Kincaide Park.

Fore River won the final game, 5-1, over Brookside C.C., with Greenhalgh having three hits, scoring a run and making a spectacular catch in left field in the eighth inning to save at least two runs.

The game was played shortly after the 1938 hurricane and a large tree had been uprooted. If the tree hadn't blown down, he couldn't have made the catch.

Fran Desmond pitched three of the four wins and other teammates were Ed Bowles, Fran Courtney, Jay Desmond, Nick Malvesti, Ebby Wright, Bus Grocett and Joe Shapiro.

On July 6, 1939, Mr. Greenhalgh played on the South Shore League all-stars team which lost to the Boston Bees (the Boston Braves had temporarily changed their name), 11-2, in the dedication of Adams Field.

Mr. Greenhalgh was an officer at the First National Bank of Boston, retiring in 1972 after 45 years service.

He was a Navy veteran of World War II.

He was a former member of the Marshfield Country Club, and Whispering Pines Country Club in Del Mar, Calif. He was a member of Orphans Hope F&M Lodge in Weymouth.

He is survived by his wife, Mary (Patrolia) Greenhalgh, a daughter, Shirley Cornfoot of San Jose, Calif., two sons, James C. Greenhalgh of Plymouth and Robert M. Greenhalgh of Ormond Beach, Fl., a sister, Agnes Pelan of Pasgagoula, Ms., eight grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held March 24 at Clairemont Mortuary in San Diego. Entombment was in Cypress View Mausoleum in San Diego.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Jimmy Fund.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SUPPORT THE GIRLS SCOUTS

We have a soft spot in our heart for any program which works with and benefits children. Anything which will allow children to learn and grow and enjoy themselves is good and needs all the support we can give it ... The latest, but by no means, the newest, project helping children is the annual drive to sell Girl Scout cookies. Each year the bulk of the funding for area councils of girl scout troops is derived from the sale of these delicious morsels. So, not only do you get cookies at a reasonable price, but your money goes to help support one of the most worthwhile and productive programs in the United States.

As has been stated, the members of the organization point with justifiable pride to their chief accomplishment; that of having transformed women's aspirations of yesterday into today's concrete realities. The impact of Girls Scouting on the lives of the present generation will be felt through the rest of the eighties and beyond.

So, when the Girl Scouts knock on your door, be generous. Remember, you are not just buying a box of cookies, you are contributing to the growth of girls throughout the United States ...

Antoinette J. DeAngelis, 77
Family Owns Hough Neck Carousel

A funeral Mass for Antoinette J. (Femino) DeAngelis, 77, of Houghs Neck, a retired nurses' aide at Lemuel Shattuck Hospital in Jamaica Plain, who was associated with the former family business, the Houghs Neck Carousel, was celebrated Wednesday at Most Blessed Sacrament Church.

Mrs. DeAngelis died March 25 in the Braintree Manor Nursing Home after a lengthy illness.

The carousel was operated by her family for many years. It closed in 1954 and is now being restored by family members.

Born in Boston, she lived in Hyde Park before moving to Houghs Neck 40 years ago.

Wife of the late Domenic DeAngelis, she is survived by four sons, Domenic DeAngelis of Abington, and Joseph DeAngelis, Gerald DeAngelis and John DeAngelis, all of Quincy, three daughters, Clementina Brill of Quincy, Genevieve Smith of Westwood and Ann DeCoste of Brockton, three brothers, Peter Femino of Florida, Harry Femino of Roslindale and Domenic Femino of Hyde Park, and seven grandchildren. She was the sister of the late Frances Frangiso.

Burial was in St. Michael's Cemetery, Roslindale.

Funeral arrangements were by the Joseph Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Lucretia Volpini, 60

A blessing for Lucretia (Calapa) Volpini, 60, of Quincy, was given Saturday at Sacred Heart Church. A pro-burial Mass was celebrated at the church on Monday. Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Volpini, a resident of Quincy for 35 years, died March 23 at Quincy City Hospital.

She was born in Boston and was a graduate of Medford High School.

Wife of the late Louis Volpini, she is survived by a son, Carl Volpini of Pembroke, three daughters, Sandra Pickard of Weymouth, Linda Carney of Quincy, and Lucille Volpini of Brockton, a brother Anthony Calapa of Quincy, a sister, Lilla Malzone of Quincy, and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Joseph Alfano, 71

A blessing for Joseph Alfano, 71, of Quincy, was held Saturday at St. Mary's Church. Burial was in Hall Cemetery, West Quincy.

Mr. Alfano, a retired assistant engineer for the Metropolitan District Commission, died March 23 at Quincy City Hospital after a long illness.

He was also retired as a foreman in the former Tubular Rivet and Stud Company of North Quincy.

Son of the late Gennaro and Louise (Costible) Alfano, he is survived by four sisters, Mildred Alfano, and Annette Scholamiero, both of Quincy, Salva Swan of Sandwich and Edith Gourley of Texas, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were by the Joseph Sweeney Funeral Home, 326 Copeland St.

Eleanor J. Thompson, 70

She is survived by her husband, Charles M. Thompson, a son, Daniel C. Thompson of Abington, three daughters, Doreen J. Summa of Chelsea, Doris Chippendale of Quincy and Helen G. Thompson of Quincy, three sisters, Alice Hagg of Quincy, Loretta Anderson of Long Beach, Calif., and Edna Church of Medford, and six grandchildren.

A funeral service for Eleanor J. (Johnson) Thompson, 70, of Quincy, was conducted March 23 at 1 p.m. at the Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home by the Rev. Gerald Fisk, pastor of the Central Baptist Church.

Mrs. Thompson died March 19 at the Rest Haven Nursing Home, Braintree, after a long illness.

Born in Medford, she had lived in Weymouth before moving to Quincy 35 years ago.

Winifred N. Piniak, 63

A funeral Mass for Winifred N. (Taylor) Piniak, 63, of Quincy, who was employed in the inspection quality control department at Gillette Co., in Boston 26 years before retiring in 1984, was celebrated Tuesday in Sacred Heart Church.

Realtors Collect 75 Coats For DOVE

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors recently collected 75 coats for DOVE and the Southwest Community Center, both of Quincy, who in turn will donate the coats to the homeless.

Realtors were asked to donate coats from their homes which were no longer being worn. The coats were either brought to the weekly Multiple Listing Service meeting or dropped off at the Board office located at 10 Crescent St., Quincy.

President Roy Cheverie said he was pleased with the success of the drive and the enthusiasm of the Board members.

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors has more than 500 members from Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hull.

Tips On Making Your Home Secure

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

In the last six months...

Did you leave the front door or garage door unlocked while you made a quick trip to the grocery store?

Was it too much trouble to check the meter reader's identification before letting him in?

Did you forget to tell a neighbor that you were going away for the weekend?

If you answered "YES" to any of these questions, you are making it easier for a thief to work in your community.

What Can You Do?

Good locks, simple precautions, neighborly alertness and common sense can help prevent most property crimes.

Get together with your neighbors to keep an eye on each other's homes. Half of all burglaries occur during the day when alert neighbors could spot the thieves and call the police.

Many neighborhoods have started "Neighborhood Watch Programs." These programs encourage neighbors to become the eyes and ears of the police, and to report anything suspicious to the police immediately.

Locks, Doors, & Windows

- Install good deadbolt locks in your doors, not the springlatch type with the key in the knob. Always lock your home when you leave, even if it's only for a short period of time. (About 50 percent of all burglars get in through unlocked doors or windows).
- Avoid door locks that can be manipulated by breaking glass or door panels to reach inside.
- Lock double-hung windows by "pinning" them with an eight penny nail. You can do this by drilling a hole at a downward angle in each top corner of the inside sash, and part way through the outside sash. When you install the eight penny nail the window is secured but can be opened quickly in case of an emergency.

Outside

- Trim back all shrubbery that hides doors or windows. Cut back tree limbs that could help a thief climb into a second story window.
- Make sure all porches, entrances, and yards are well-lighted. In spite of todays high energy costs it only costs about a nickel or so to burn a 30 watt light bulb for twelve hours. That's cheap security. But remember to turn the light off during the daylight hours. Leaving lights on during the day is an unmistakeable tip off that no one is home to turn them off.

Key Sense

Do not hide house keys in mailboxes, planters or under doormats. These are the first places a thief will look. Instead, give a duplicate key to a trusted friend or neighbor, in case you lock yourself out.

- Do not put any personal identification on key rings.
- If you lose the keys to your home or move make sure you change your locks immediately.

Neighborhood Watch

If you would like to start a Neighborhood Watch Program in your area, please call me at 479-1212 ext. 344. If we all work together we surely can "Take A Bite Out Of Crime."

Thinking about a new front door?

Here's why we recommend the HARVEY INSULATED STEEL DOOR SYSTEM

Strong The door slab is wrapped with heavy steel to provide protection against both forced entry and New England weather. It will never warp or crack like wood.

Warm The 1 3/4" thick core of polystyrene provides an R-value of 7.5 to keep cold out, heat in.

Secure Heavy duty hardware resists tampering and break-ins. Optional deadbolts and peepsites add an extra measure of security.

Beautiful With dozens of styles in six factory-applied colors, we can satisfy design preferences from New England Traditional to Contemporary – sidelites, too! Plus, they look just like wood; stop by our showroom and see.

We also sell and install:
Replacement Windows
Storm Windows
Picture Windows
Mulled Combinations
Bays and Bows
Insulated Steel Doors
Storm Doors
Garage Doors
Awnings and Canopies

The Value of Experience...

We install superior products with expert craftsmanship to offer you high value, not high prices. Over the past 30 years, thousands of South Shore families have relied on us for their windows and doors.

Buy with confidence and peace of mind - we've earned our reputation for quality and we stand behind everything we sell.

Shaughnessy, Calabro Standouts At Curry

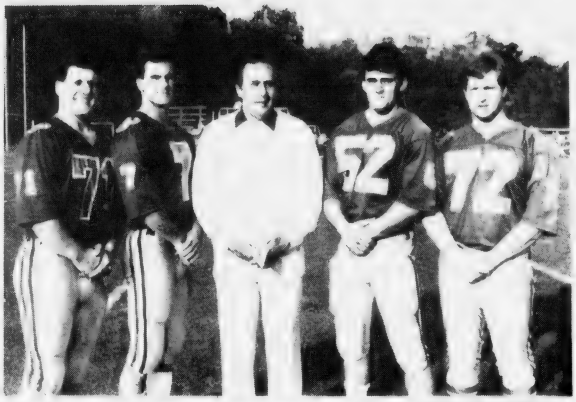
With the help of the twosome, the Colonels posted a 5-4 record under sixth-year head coach John "Duffy" Doherty.

Shaughnessy, a junior quarterback who transferred from UMass-Amherst, will be one of the Colonel's captains next year. The 6-2, 210-pounder threw for more than 1200 yards and nine touchdowns while rushing for another 304. He sparked the locals to three straight wins over UMass-Boston, Fitchburg State and Maine Maritime late in the season.



Calabro, a 6-2, 230-pound lineman, closed out a fine career while being a solid contributor from his offensive guard slot. With his help, the Colonels averaged better than 290 yards total offense per game and 21 points per outing.

Curry also had one of the nation's top defenses and held its opponents to 90 yards rushing per game.

Shaughnessy earned All-New England Football Conference honors (second team) as well as being named the Top Offensive Player at the team's breakup banquet. He will be one of the Colonel's top returners in 1989.

Also on the 1988 squad were North Quincy's Al DiBella, the team's Most Valuable Player, and North's Jim Feeley.

Former Quincy High assistant coach Peter Chella is a Curry assistant coach.

Vo-Tech Car Wash Saturday

The Quincy Vocational Technical School will hold a car wash on Saturday at the Department of Public Works, Sea St., from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the school's Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) for an upcoming competition to be held in Boston. A donation of $3 per car will be asked.

Victoria Baker Promoted

Victoria Fenske Baker of Quincy has been promoted to senior accountant in the Boston office of Coopers & Lybrand, the international accounting and consulting firm.

Baker joined the firm in 1986 after receiving a BBA in accounting from the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Quincy Legion Plans Baseball Ad Book

In an effort to keep the Quincy Legion baseball program alive, the team is again putting out an ad book which will be distributed at all home games during June and July.

The books are passed out free of charge to primarily Quincy and South Shore residents who attend the games and the book supports 90 percent of the cost to run the baseball program.

The coaches and players are all from Quincy and without the ad book it probably would not be possible to field a team. It has been the support of local merchants and residents that has made the program a success.

"With this kind of support both financially and by increased attendance, we were able to have one of our most successful seasons in recent years last summer," said Eddie Spring who, with Dick Laracy, coaches the team. "We hope to keep this program continuing at the level our fans and supporters have helped us to bring it to. I know as a coach this program has helped a lot of kids to become outstanding adults and a credit to their community."

Those interested in placing an ad are asked to send a business card or letter head for the desired ad and send checks made payable to Quincy Legion Baseball to Eddie Spring, 30 Ridgeway Drive, Quincy 02169.

Youth Fitness Program At YMCA

The South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., will sponsor a Youth Fitness and Nutrition Program to be held from April 4 through June 15 on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from 3 to 4 p.m.

The program is open for girls and boys between 9 and 13 years of age.

Included in the program are supervised strength training on Nautilus equipment, supervised endurance training on computerized biocycles, weekly slide presentations, and before and after assessments of blood cholesterol and body composition.

Class size is limited to 12 participants and early registration is suggested. Call the YMCA at 479-8500, ext. 133.

Martha And Julie Inspirations For Disabled

By TONY FERULLO

Born with spina bifida, Julie has spent most of her young life in a wheelchair. She doesn't know what it's like to ride a bike, kick a ball, or play a game of tag - things the majority of children her age take for granted.

"About a year ago, I noticed Julie becoming very depressed and nervous," said her mother, Ann Brown. "She wasn't acting herself, both at home and in school."

Julie's personality quickly took a turn for the better upon meeting her savior, 25-year-old Martha Donaghue, who became a quadriplegic seven years ago after suffering an athletic injury during her senior year as captain of the gymnastics team at North Quincy High School.

Martha and Julie became best of friends through Partners for Disabled Youth (PDY), Inc., a Boston-based, non-profit organization which arranges one-to-one relationships between adolescents and children with disabilities and adults who have similar disabilities."

"Martha and Julie hit it off right away," said Maureen Gallagher, program specialist at PDY, one of 11 new agencies to receive membership into the United Way of Massachusetts Bay family this year. "Martha is a perfect example of someone that Julie should follow.

"All of us here are very excited about being a new United Way affiliate. The United Way will enable us to grow, and most importantly, help a lot of children who really need this care."

Martha first called PDY after watching a television public service announcement promoting the human service organization. It's ironic that she and Julie were featured in a similar PDY spot recently on WBZ-TV, Channel 4.

"Even before my accident, I always wanted to be like a 'Big Sister' to someone," said Martha. "I think it's important for people to volunteer their time to help others who really need it."

Although memories of the accident could still bring tears to her eyes, Martha is not one to dwell on the past. She is an extremely confident person who lives each day to the fullest.

"Sure, it's a traumatic thing being paralyzed at 17, but I didn't let it stop me from living," said Martha, who comes from a close-knit family which includes five brothers and two sisters. brothers and two sisters. "I keep a positive attitude and I have high hopes for the future."

"I still go after the things I believe in, and I tell Julie all the time to do the same. I tell her that she can do so much with her life even though she's in a wheelchair."

Added Ann Brown, "Julie has made a big improvement since being around Martha. Seeing what Martha can do, being out and independent, is very good for a little child to see. It gives her confidence that she can do it."

Martha and Brown, a first grade student at the Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School in Quincy, usually spend every other weekend shopping at a mall, going to the movies, or driving around in the van Martha bought with the money raised (over $10,000) by the people of Quincy shortly after her accident.

"One of my favorite things is to go over Martha's house and bake chocolate chip cookies," said Julie who has two younger sisters.

"The only trouble with that is that Julie eats them as fast as she makes them," laughed Martha. Martha is a 1987 summa cum laude graduate of Boston University, who works as an actuarial assistant at John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company in Boston.

How do you dance in a wheelchair?

"I just go like this," she said, moving her arms from side to side, "to the beat of the music."

Martha's positive attitude seems to have rubbed off on Julie, who takes swimming and ballet lessons, and even sang a song by herself during one recital last year.

"The spotlight was on her the whole time and she didn't mind it at all," said Ann Brown, whose brother, Michael Monahan, 30, of Norwell, became a quadriplegic 16 years ago after injuring himself while playing high school football.

"Her performance showed a lot of courage, and made her feel like she really accomplished something."

The relationship shared by martha and Julie is filled with both love and appreciation. Their story is just one of many heart-warming tales that make PDY such a special organization.

"They (PDY) offer such a unique service by providing positive role models for youths and are physically challenged," said Pat Swansey-Taitt, Director of the Health and Rehabilitation Division at the United Way of Massachusetts Bay. "They create so many opportunities for people who are disabled where they didn't exist before."

When asked what she admires most about Julie, Martha answered quickly.

"The biggest thing is how Julie is trying to do things on her own," said Martha. "She's learning that she can achieve some of her goals as long as she stays with it."

Julie had nothing but words of praise for her friend.

"Martha is like a big sister to me," said Julie. "I want to be just like her when I grow up."

MARTHA DONAGHUE and Julie Brown have become the best of friends through Partners For Disabled Youth and an inspiration to others.

Final Concert Of Season At First Parish Church April 9

The last of this season's "Church of the Presidents" concerts at United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy, will be held Sunday, April 9 at 3 p.m.

Michele Pinet, a freelance harpist in the Boston area, will give a program with pianist Karen Saurer. The program will consist of works by Handel, Albeniz, Prokofieff, Tournier, Debussy, Caplet and Salzedo.

Pinet received her master's degree in music from the New England Conservatory of Music. She was the featured soloist in a performance of Debussy's Danses for Harp with the Longwood Symphony at Jordan Hall, New England Conservatory, last February and at King's Chapel in Boston.

She received honorable mention in the 1988 Arlington Philharmonic Society Young Artist Competition. A private teacher, she is currently principal harp of the New England Philharmonic and the Longwood Symphony.

Saurer specializes in vocal and instrumental accompaniment. She has performed with the New Orchestra of Boston, at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria and has appeared on WQXR Young Artists' Showcase and WBGH Chamberworks.

Donation for the performance is $5 for seniors and $4 for students. Tickets may be purchased at the door or may be reserved by calling 773-1290.

A reception will follow the concert.

Continental Presents $12,273 Check To City

The payment represents the cable company's local franchise fee for 1988.

Farquhar also reported on the progress made by Continental Cablevision last year on community television, programming, customer service and technical operations.

"We're pleased to report continued customer growth, improvements in the amount and diversity of local and cable network programming, progress in better serving our customers, and technical improvements to our cable system," he said.

The local franchise fee, set by state statute, is based on the number of cable subscribers on the company's books as of Dec. 31 of the previous year.

Farquhar also announced the recent addition of Turner Network Television (TNT) on Channel 40 which accesses the Turner-owned film library of MGM studios, the launch of The Metro Marketplace (Channel 20) and the Classified Marketplace (Channel 19) as well as the availability of stereo audio on most of the broadcast channels along with VH-1, MTV, WTBS, Request TV, HBO, Showtime, Cinemax, Disney, The Movie Channel, Lifetime and TNT.

Stereo reception would require either a stereo TV set or stereo VCR.

"The company is committed to providing the latest in programming and technological innovations as they continue to develop," Farquhar said.

Continental Cablevision is the nation's third largest operator and completed its merger with American Cablesystems in early 1988.

Volunteer Month Proclamation Supports Protection Legislation

The proclamation is in response to the volunteer Protection Act, a bill recently referred to the Committees on the Judiciary and Ways and Means, that if approved, would encourage states to enact legislation to grant immunity from personal civil liability under certain circumstances to volunteers working on behalf of non-profit organizations and governmental entities.

To receive protection, the volunteer must have been acting within the scope of his duties to the organization, in good faith, and not in a willful or wanton manner.

Filed by Congressman John Porter of Illinois, there are 245 co-sponsors of the bill, including Rep. Brian Donnelly (D-Mass) whose district includes Quincy.

There are approximately 110 million volunteers across the United States who "give of themselves freely and ask very little in return and need the support from everyone for the passage of HR 911," McCauley said, adding "Quincy needs its volunteers who are here for us."

The ceremony was attended by about a dozen area volunteers including Civil Defense Deputy Director and Auxiliary Police Chief Tony Siciliano. Siciliano is spearheading the local effort to see that HR 911 is passed.

He has sent mailings on the bill to federal, state and local officials such as President George Bush, Senators Ted Kennedy and John Kerry, Congressman Donnelly as well as Sen. Paul Harold Representatives Robert Cerasoli, Michael Morrissey and Arthur S. Tobin.

Information packets have also been sent to all civil defense directors throughout the state, news organizations, mayoral and city council candidates in Quincy and officials with the state department of Public Safety.

Volunteers who attended the proclamation ceremony included Dorothy Nickerson, Anita Burke, Frank Kearns, Grace Deitsch, Robert Taylor, Natalie Ells, Jacqueline Gardner, Meryl Smith, Peggy Crehan and Louis DiMattio.

Commenting on the quest for protection from liability, Siciliano told President Bush. "As volunteers, we have fought long and we have fought hard. We have asked for very little in return.

"What we do ask for and desperately need is protection from liability."

To help organize the local volunteers, a dance will be held Saturday, April 22 from 7 p.m. to midnight at the George F. Bryan Post, 24 Broad St., Quincy.

All volunteers are invited to attend the dance and show support for the Volunteer Protection Act.

Admission is free and refreshments (no alcohol) will be served.

MAYOR FRANCIS X. McCAULEY and Tony Siciliano, chief of Quincy's auxiliary police, discuss the volunteer protection bill which is currently in Congress. Behind them is a sign declaring April "Volunteer Month" in Quincy.

Harnais Issues Statement On Decision Not To Run For Ward 4 Council Seat

Robert Harnais issued a statement this week to residents of Ward 4 explaining why he decided not to seek the City Council seat in that ward.

Harnais said the main reason he will not be a candidate is that he is preparing to take the Massachusetts Bar exam and would not be able to devote 100 percent to campaigning for office.

He also said that he will support Joseph Shea for the Ward 4 seat.

His statement...

"Ward Four is at a crucial point in time, where we need to elect a person who has faith in our community, and can meet the needs of our neighborhoods. That is why I have seriously and strongly discussed and considered my candidacy for councilor of our ward, for I know that I can meet the needs of Ward Four.

"However, I am graduating from the New England School of Law in May, and have come to the conclusion that the demands for preparing for the bar exam are such that I would not be able to devote the 100 percent to the campaign that it would deserve.

"Ward Four is now and will be my home in the future and I will remain active to fight for what I feel is best for our community. Therefore, I will put what limited time and resources I have behind a candidate that I think will do his best for Ward Four. A councillor that has knowledge of the issues and will address them. A councilor that, like myself, is running solely for the benefit of Ward Four that will not use this seat as a vehicle for other ambitions and will have an open door for the people.

"That is why I will direct my efforts to elect Joseph Shea councillor for Ward Four.

"At this time, I would like to thank my campaign manager, Michael Bellotti, and my committee as well as all the people that have shown support toward my candidacy."

Historical Society Membership Week

Mayor Francis McCauley has proclaimed April 3-7 "Quincy Historical Society Membership Week."

Founded in 1893 to promote history with an emphasis on Quincy history and to use the rich cultural heritage for the benefit of all people, the Quincy Historical Society provides a meeting ground for people with a common interest in history.

Many young people have been inspired by programs initiated by the Quincy Historical Society, McCauley said.

The Society is dedicated to preserving and using the materials and artifcts related to our heritage for the benefit of present and future generations. Moreover, the Quincy Historical Society acknowledges its obligation to represent and serve the historical interests of all of Quincy and the communities and people who constitute the historic city.

'A Pleasant Surprise'
'No Sex Please' Good Community Theater

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy Dinner Theatre's production of "No Sex Please, We're British," is a pleasant surprise.

One wouldn't suspect that community theater could be so good.

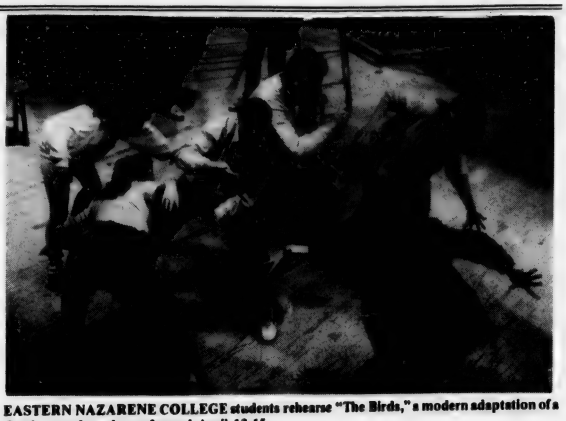
The company had great material to work with from the start. The play, an hysterical English comedy written by Anthony Marriot and Alistair Foot, is excellent stuff. But good material played incorrectly makes for bat theater, and happily, this is not the case here. THis is is not the case here. This is very well played.

The show runs like an English sit-com (generally far superior to any current American sit-com). For anyone who thought that John Cleese's "Fawlty Towers" series was among the funniest half hours on television, this play is for you.

The plot revolves around an ever-increasing comedy of errors involving the mistaken delivery of pornographic material to a staid English bank manager (played excellently here by Christopher Pettigrew) and his new wife (played by Lisa Holzemer).

The wife thinks she's ordered glassware and cuttlery from the Scandanavian Import Company, but, instead, receives a large parcel of naughty photographs. But as luck would have it, the parcel arrives on the same day as her upper-crusty mother-in-law and only days before a visit by the bank inspector.

In a riotous effort to get rid of the photos, the couple engage the very unwilling help of Brian Runnicles, a jittery English bank clerk, who's so perpetually nervous that the mere mention of the word "knickers" would make him blush, never mind photos involving three people and a trampoline!



The part of Runnicles is played brilliantly by Skip Maloney, who is the real star of the show. The man has a true gift for slapstick and his every mannerism for the part was perfect, right down to his knocking knees. Maloney got applause at each and every exit, and it was well deserved.

Through a sometimes predictable, but always enjoyable series of mishaps, mistakes and misconceptions, they are next delivered a package of blue movies (with titles including "Tinkerbell and Peter Pansy,") and then a gross and a half of dirty books. Finally the company sends over two English tarts – and not the sort you have with tea!

Also shining in the cast are Gordon Teague as the insomniac bank inspector and Molly Hochkeppel as the mother-in-law. (Ten to one she, Pettigrew and Maloney have spent some time in England, their accents were right on target).

Though some of the more subtle humor in the play fell flat in the midst of the slapstick and silliness, it was, overall, a very funny and very enjoyable evening.

The play will be presented again this weekend at Masonic Temple, 1170 Hancock St., Friday and Saturday. Dinner is at 7 p.m. and the show at 8 30 p.m. Tickets are $22.50.

EASTERN NAZARENE COLLEGE students rehearse "The Birds," a modern adaptation of a Greek comedy to be performed April 13-15.

'The Birds' At ENC In April

The Communications Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College will present a modern-day adaptation of Aristophanes' comedy, "The Birds," April 13-15 at 7 p.m. in the O'Connell Auditorium of the Cove Fine Arts Building, 23 East Elm St., Wollaston.

Director, Jeffrey D. Frame, of the Communications Arts faculty, has adapted the ancient Greek comedy to a modern-day farce set in New York City's Central Park.

The costumes, elaborate metallic garb for the modern gods, and colorful attire for the exotic bird chorus, were designed by Margie Ballard.

Tickets for the performance are $3. For further information call 773-6350.

N.Q. Knights To Present 'Dixieland Review'

The North Quincy Knights of Columbus will present a minstrel-variety show, "Dixieland Revue 89," Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and on Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Broadmeadows School.

The show is directed by Bill Cahill and choreographed by Lois Perry. Musical Director is Gordon McConarty.

Howie Crowley is general chairman for the show and is assisted by the Ad Committee, Jack Gallagher, Peter Anastas, and Bob Ierardi. The ticket committee is Art Keefe, Bob Clifford and Bob Fitzgerald and they will handle all reservations.

Master of Ceremonies for the show will be Grand Knight, Rick Moran.

Tickets are $5 and may be purchased from any member of the cast, and are also available at the Council Hall or at the door.

Wollaston School Students To Present 'Willie Wonka'

The Wollaston School fifth grade and school chorus will present a production of "Willie Wonka" on April 12 and 13 at 7.30 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

The program is directed by Susan Engam and musical director Mary Ruth Scott.

Tickets are $2 and the performance is open to the public. For further information call 786-8791.

NQHS Student Piano Soloist AT QSO Concert

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will present the third concert of its 35th season Friday, April 7 at 8 p.m. in the North Quincy High School Auditorium, under the leadership of Francisco Noya, music director and conductor.

Erik Gustafson, a junior at North Quincy High School, and winner of the 1989 Quincy Savings Bank scholarship competition will be piano soloist.

Gustafson has been studying the piano since he was 13. He participated in the Killington Music Festivals in 1987 and 1988 and performed works for solo piano and played in chamber ensembles in the Young Artist Series.

This year, Gustafson was selected to be included in Who's Who in Music.

Locally, he has performed at North Quincy High School, Eastern Nazarene College, the Neighborhood Club, Fontbonne Academy and the Falcone Piano Gallery in Boston.

Gustafson is a member of the North Quincy high swim team, concert choir, and the Jazz and Madrigan Ensembles. In addition to his participation in the Southeast District Choral Festivals, he has been selected to the United States Youth Chorale for its European tour this summer.

The April 7th program will be "overture to Der Freischutz" by Weber, "Piano Concerto in d minor" by Bach and "Symphony No. 8 in G major" by Dvorak.

Tickets, available at the door, are $6 for adults and $5 for senior citizens and students. There is ample free parking and the auditorium is wheelchair accessible.

For more information, call 479-2408 or 328-5347.

Doll House Show April 2

The Fourth Annual Doll House and Miniature Show sponsored by the Woodward School Alumnae Association will be held Sunday, April 2, at The Woodward School, 1102 Hancock St., Quincy, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Proceeds will benefit the scholarship fund.

The "Magic of Miniatures" Show will include doll house exhibits, doll houses, miniatures and other related items for sale, hourly drawings, doll house raffle and snack bar.

Admission is $2.50 for adults, and $1.50 for children under 12 and Senior Citizens.

Those interested in more information may call the school at 773-5610.

Open House Sunday At Quincy Art Assn.

The Quincy Art Association will hold an Open House Sunday, April 2, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Art Center, 25 High School Ave. to introduce its Spring Training Sessions.

There will be an opportunity to meet the instructors and view their work before signing up for a course. There is a choice of several local artists, including Helen Shaw, Frank Gerulskis, Jean Sawyer Railton, Douglas Orr, Lee McBurnie, Edwina Caci, Margaret Tittemore and Virginia Avery.

Courses begin April 17 and continue for six weeks. Tuition for adults is $55 for members, $45. A Saturday children's workshop for ages six to nine is $30, and a Saturday youth workshop for ages ten to 16 is also $30.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the Art Center at 770-2482, Helen Shaw at 328-3534 or Terry Cushing (evenings) at 328-4189.

WEEK OF: March 30

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You're a trendsetter and an initiater, though sometimes unintentionally unwilling to let others bask in the limelight. A partnership role may prove promising after mid-1989. A series of celebrations takes place early in 1990.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Optimistic approach helps you resolve difficulties with a friend. Attention to detail is critical on the job. Science-related projects are highlighted after the weekend.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Be more than careful about taking people into your confidence. Large-scale events are part of the week's agenda. Shared financial or other arrangements demand sorting out.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
New beginnings is the week's theme. New acquaintanies, new educational interests, and resolutions are all part of the current scene. Spring cleaning, meanwhile, leads to old treasures.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Nostalgia is the theme of a week that may find you flipping through photo albums or contacting an old friend. Public-speaking role wins you much praise.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Your contribution to a group project may not receive due recognition; don't be shy about speaking up. Home-related chores can now be approached with new vigor.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Platonic friend may help you sort out feelings, while a favorite relative may approach you for solace. Job tensions may ease thanks to a shuffle in work setting.

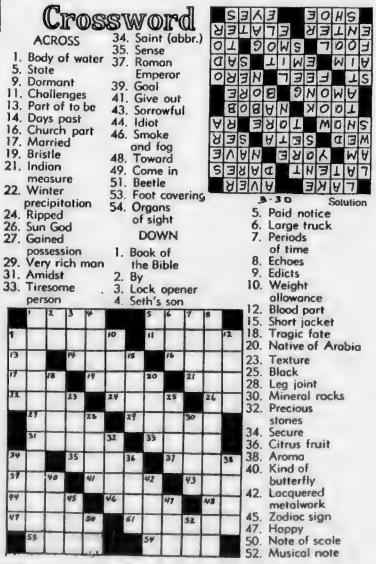
LEO — July 23 - August 22
Week finds you on the go, both socially and professionally. Very important job information comes your way: handle it with care. Oldtimers provide you with new interests.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Small social gathering is a bright light of the week, and may include a business connection. Creative activities are favorably aspected. Money-related decisions demand a thoughtful approach.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Recent disappointment may now prove a blessing in disguise; Be aware of a forgetful streak that may surface before the weekend. Friend is uncharacteristically generous after Monday.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Indications of improved lifestyle may be evident this week, but prudence remains by word in the money department. Lost object may resurface on Tuesday or Wednesday.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Get set for a rapid-fire week in which family responsibilities and new job requirements compete for attention. Key at this time is to be more willing to delegate tasks.



CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
New approach to a recurring difficulty can help put you back on track. You may be worrying now about split loyalties, but remember above all to be true to yourself.

BORN THIS WEEK
March 30th, actor John Astin; 31st, bandleader Herb Alpert; April 1st, actress Debbie Reynolds; 2nd, actor Alec Guinness; 3rd, actor Marlon Brando; 4th, actor Anthony Perkins; 5th, actress Gale Storm.

PRAYER OF APPLICATION TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, who light all roads so that I can attain my goal, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and who in all instances of my life are with me; I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you and even in spite of all material illusion, I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Repeat this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the favor will be granted even though it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after favor is granted without mentioning the favor.

Cerasoli Says Bill Could Bring in $10 Million In Uncollected Taxes

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli recently testified before the Joint Committee on Public Safety that legislation he has filed could benefit the state coffers by as much as $10 million in uncollected tax revenue.

Cerasoli told Committee members that his bill focuses on the illegal use of special purpose repair license plates which allow auto repairmen to avoid titling their motor vehicles and thus bypass paying the sales tax.

Cerasoli's measure would broaden enforcement powers of the Registry of Motor Vehicles and also close loopholes in the present statute. The measure would provide fiscal relief to cities and towns not now receiving motor vehicle excise tax due to laxness of the law.

According to Cerasoli, the abuse of repair plates was revealed earlier this year after an investigation by the House Committee on Post Audit and Oversight, of which he is chairman. He said major violators of sales tax payments were high-priced tow trucks and privately owned luxury vehicles.

Geary To Join Clean Harbors As V.P.

MDC Commr. William J. Geary of Quincy, will become vice president of Clean Harbors in Braintree when he leaves his state office on Friday.

Geary's responsibility with the toxic waste disposal firm will be community relations and government affairs.

Geary, 41, is a lawyer and also holds a master's degree in public service. He said Monday that he had considered several jobs since announcing his MDC resignation in January, but that the Clean Harbors position offered a chance to work promoting a cleaner environment.

WILLIAM GEARY

Geary, a 20 year resident of Quincy, said another reason he took the position is because Clean Harbors is a local firm, adding that the company is planning to move its headquarters from Braintree to Quincy.

As MDC-chief, Geary was credited with improving the image of the agency and he takes over the position with Clean Harbors at a time when public image is a high priority for the firm.

While at MDC, Geary was also credited with upgrading management and overhauling the Metropolitan Police force.

Geary, tenth commissioner for the MDC in eight years, is the longest running commissioner since William Morrissey who died in office in 1951. He was appointed to head the MDC in February of 1983.

Ilyas Bhatti of Plainville will take over as MDC Commissioner on Friday.

Drug-Alcohol Abuse Program Geared For Fifth Graders

By JANE ARENA

An innovative drug and alcohol abuse prevention strategy was initiated in the Quincy Public school system this week.

Project DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) is a combined effort between the School System and the Police Department which aims to curtail drug abuse in students by reaching them in the fifth grade, before peer pressure and drug opportunities can.

Created in 1983 by the Los Angeles Police Department and L.A. School System, the program has now been adopted by every state in the country. Over 40 communities in Massachusetts alone are participating in the program.

According to John "Butch" Mahoney, the Social Health Coordinator for the Quincy Public Schools, the city has been trying to initiate DARE for three years.

"We wanted to see the success or failure of the program," Mahoney said, "and obviously, it's been a great success."

The program involves a uniformed police officer going into the fifth grade classes to teach a total of 17 structured lessons on substance abuse prevention. The lessons are 45-minutes to one hour in length and are

CHANTING "Save Our Schools," and carrying home-made signs, approximately 300 parents, teachers and students rallied City Hall Monday night in pursuit of more money for the school department. 300 Parents Picket For More School Money

Several hundred parents, teachers and students, upset over the mayor's refusal for additional money in next year's School Department budget, brought their message to City Hall Monday night.

Chanting "Save Our Schools," the crowd of approximately 300 picketed around McIntyre Mall from City Hall to the walkway entrance to the MBTA station. Many carried signs declaring such messages as "Education: You Can Pay Now or Pay Later" and "Mayor McCauley, Loosen Up."

After rallying for about an hour, the crowd walked into the City Council Chambers to hear the council react to Mayor Francis McCauley's budget proposal for fiscal 1990. The mayor, who did not attend the meeting but met with leaders several weeks ago, submitted his budget of $117,802,090 to the council.

The budget, which reflects an increase of $4,842,544 or 4.3 percent over last year, was referred to the Finance Committee for review by chairman Stephen McGrath.

Parents, teachers and students, as well as some school committee officials including Mary Collins, Frank Santoro and Stephen Durkin, rallied in protest of the mayor's refusal for an additional $438,000 school budget, which the mayor has set at $38 million.

The $38 million budget represents an increase of $2,579,000 over last year. The school budget this year was $35,421,000.

Other reductions in next year's city budget include a decrease of $400,000 in the fire and police overtime

Committee Named

Methadone Decision In May

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A committee including city officials has been formed to review a proposal for a mobile methadone clinic in Quincy and will make their recommendation to Mayor Francis McCauley in May.

The review committee was formed after city leaders met with state officials behind the methadone clinic proposal Monday in the Mayor's office.

The committee consists of John Mahoney, the social health coordinator for Quincy Public Schools, Ken Tarabeli of Survival, Inc., Bill Spinks of the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, David Mulligan of the state department of Human Services, Robert Potter, vice president of Habit Management and Quincy Public Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue.

Gallahue will chair the committee.

The state is presently proposing to site a mobile methadone clinic in Quincy. It would be administered by Habit Management.

Methadone is a synthetic drug that is dispensed orally to help wean heroin users from their addiction.

During Monday's meeting, city officials expressed several concerns regarding the clinic to the state officials. It is the state's intent to reach an agreement or accord with a community prior to the siting of a clinic in that community.

Habit management has already begun operating

Dirt Bike Ordinance Proposed By Cheney

An ordinance that would ban the use of all dirt bikes and all-terrain vehicles in Quincy except in designated areas was referred to the city solicitor by the City Council Monday.

As proposed, violators would be subjected to a $200 fine and confiscation of the vehicle.

The ordinance was drafted by Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney. In introducing it, Cheney said several residents have complained about the illegal use of dirt bikes and ATVs.

He said the ordinance is needed since the vehicles pose a public safety hazard in Quincy.

"These (vehicles) are more than toys. They're motor vehicles," noting that they are being used on trails, sidewalks and "places where people picnic."

"I think it's time that we really come down hard and let them know we mean business," Cheney said. "I don't think they mean to do damage but they do."

Heliport On Planning Board Agenda

The Quincy Planning Board will hold three public hearings on Tuesday evening, April 18 in the second floor conference room, Quincy City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St.

At 7 p.m., the board will consider a proposed amendment to the city's zoning ordinance dealing with transportation, specifically, an airport, heliport facility.

At 7:10 p.m., the board will consider a proposed change in zoning on a parcel described as "that land presently zoned residence A and shown as Plot 3 on the assessor's plan 1047 be rezoned to open space."

At 7:15 p.m., the board will consider a change in zoning on parcels described as "that land presently zoned Reference A and shown as Lot 87 and Lot 88 on the assessor's plan 1057 be rezoned to open space.

Flood Tax Rebate Back To City Council

A home-rule petition that would provide for a rebate of taxes to cover damages to homes during last July's intense flooding was resubmitted at Monday's City Council meeting.

The original petition, which passed the Council last September and was signed by mayor Francis X. McCauley in November, failed to get legislative approval because it was not in session last fall.

Resubmitted by Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets, the petition would allow the council to create an ordinance determining a procedure for varification of losses and a schedule for rebating tax money.

More than 350 residences received extensive damages during the July flood and many of these homes or dwellings have been subjected to flooding in the past, Sheets said.

The rebating would include money not compensated for insurances or other provisions. Such losses would be verified by the owners to the satisfaction of the city.

Sheets noted that some homeowners have paid between $7,000 and $10,000 replacing materials and renewing foundations and steps damaged by the storm.

The petition would rebate money over a period of five years to residents who "suffered substantially" as a result of the storm, Sheets said.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien said "these folks did suffer substantially and I think they should be compensated. This is a chance for us to respond. It wouldn't cost us too much to target some people who need our help the most."

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney and Ward 6 Councillor said they were concerned about the administering of the rebate.

Noting that flooding occurs throughout the city, Cheney said the circumstances under which people are rebated should be reviewed carefully.

Nutley added that the city should adopt very stringent guidelines.

Sheets has said that most areas in the city are chronic flooding areas.

License Board Wants Police Detail At Cinemas

By JANE ARENA

In a License Board hearing concerning groups of kids congregating outside of Quincy Cinemas, doing business as Entertainment Cinemas, 1585 Hancock St., Chairman John Gillis said "one way or another, there will be a police officer there on weekends."

The board continued the hearing for one week so that members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) and concerned councillors and citizens may meet with cinema manager William Haney to discuss the prospect of hiring a police detail for the area.

Quincy Police Lt. John Mulligan, in charge of night patrol, had written a formal report to Gillis requesting a police detail at the cinemas due to "a number of complaints from senior citizens concerning the gangs that congregate in and out of the cinema plaza."

The report says that several senior citizens are "fearful for their safety and do not go to the cinema because there are large numbers of teenagers in and around the cinema who are disrespectful to their elders."

The report explains that a security guard hired by the cinema does little or no good to disperse the gangs because "the kids do not respect him because he has no authority."

Lt. Mulligan said he receives several calls for police at the cinemas especially on weekend nights and on nights when there is no school the next day. He told the board that something must be done before the Spring school vacation begins April 17.

The report explains that one of the factors contributing to the problem is the presence of a public telephone and an MBTA bus stop located in front of the cinema. Lt. Mulli says that kids tell the police officers that they are using the telephone or waiting for a bus. The report recommends removing the pay phone and moving the bus stop in an effort to address the problem.

Police Chief Francis Finn said that the MBTA has been made aware of the problem and that they are "willing to cooperate" by moving the bus stop in front of the cinemas. The city has not looked into removing the telephone yet, Finn said.

Richard Barry, attorney for Haney, told the board Haney is aware of the problems and "understands his civic duty" in the matter, but said it would be unfair to make Haney pay entirely for the police detail because the problem is in the mall and surrounding stores, not just the cinema.

Councillor, Timothy Cahill, who was before the board as both a neighbor and a councillor for the downtown area, agreed.

"It's not just the cinema's fault," he said, "malls attract teenagers. It's not just a tennant problem, it's a landlord problem," he added, referring to Francis X. Messina, landlord of the Quincy Fair Mall.

Cahill also told the board shops in the area, including Taso's Pizza and Sub Shop have video games which also attract teenagers.

"The people who run the video games should be partly responsible for the police detail as well," Cahill said. "He (Haney) shouldn't have all the responsibility because it's not just the cinemas that will benefit." Cahill said other downtown businesses who have been losing nighttime customers due to the problem should also help to pay for the detail.

Haney told the board he would be willing to pay for a percentage of the detail, but not for all of it.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien told the board a police detail outside the cinemas would "make more sense" than a detail inside because it would help the whole business area.

George Riley, executive director of the QCBPA, told the board he would be willing to discuss the problem with the association.

The board continued the hearing until April 12 so a decision can be reached as to who will pay for a police detail on weekends and nights before a no-school day before the school vacation begins.

"With daylight savings and the school vacation starting, they'll (the kids) take over the mall if we don't jump on this right now," Lt. Mulligan said.

The board said that one way or another, no matter who pays for it, a police detail will be in place by the time school vacation begins.

MWRA Sludge Facility Meeting April 11

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority will hold a public information meeting Tuesday, April 11 at 7 p.m. at the Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd., Quincy on the siting of MRWA's permanent sludge processing facilities.

MWRA staff will give a brief presentation on these facilities and solicit comments on the Draft Environmental Report (DEIR) for the MWRA's Long-Term Residuals Management Facility Plan.

The proposed facility will be operational by the end of 1995 and allow the MWRA to convert sludge from the new Deer Island treatment plant into soil-care products.

Public Comments on the DEIR will be accepted until April 29. Written comments should be sent to:

Massachusetts Environmental Policy Act Unit, 100 Cambridge Street, Boston, MA 02202.

The DEIR is available at the main branches of public libraries in Braintree, Weymouth and Quincy and other communities throughout the MWRA region.

Reactivating Edgar Station A Sham

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

So Boston Edison wants to reactive Edgar Station, a former 458 megawatt generating plant in Weymouth by the Fore River bridge.

How many ways and times can the dinosaur mentalities running Boston Edison get away with sticking it to ratepayers?

Edgar Station was closed in 1978 by Boston Edison in order to create a demand for Pilgrim II, even though Boston Edison's own engineers testified at the Mass. DPU saying Edgar Station was still cost effective. What happened to Pilgrim II? It was cancelled in 1981 and ratepayers were forced to pay for Boston Edison's mistake, two thirds of the cancellation costs over a ten year period or approximately $400 million.

Pilgrim I will go down in history as one of the most colossal boondoggles ever foisted on ratepayers.

Except for some new names, faces, and a new shine, what has really changed at Boston Edison? It still allows and promotes the waste of electricity thereby increasing peak demand and sales then tries to build money intensive plants because it's a regulated monopoly that by law is usually guaranteed a profit on every dollar it spends.

And guess what company was picked to rebuild Edgar Station? United Engineers and Constructors, a subsidiary of Raytheon and the same company that managed to build Seabrook at 10 times its original cost.

Meanwhile, Boston Edison's load management and conservation programs amount to little more than a public relations sham.

Isn't it time for electric utilities like Boston Edison to be municipalized and/or deregulated?

Gerald J. Londergan
Commissioner
Hull Municipal Electric Board

Not Quite A Blockbuster

This year's election may not be quite the blockbuster it started out to be.

The mayor's race with four major contenders -- Councillors Steve McGrath and James Sheets, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and businessman Peter O'Connell -- is a main event we haven't seen the likes of in many years.

But other than that -- considering there are three open City Council seats and at least one (possibly two) empty School Committee seats there hasn't been a lot of action so far on those fronts.

In fact, it is possible the only contest on the Sept. 12 primary ballot will be for mayor.

Best chance for other primaries are in Wards 1 and 4 where both Council seats are open. But the large turnout of candidates expected in those two wards has not materialized and is now not expected to.

There has been lukewarm candidate interest in the City Council at large field though McGrath is leaving an opening to run for mayor.

Only two candidates so far: Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney and Denis Tardo.

The only other name being mentioned as a possible candidate is Kevin Burke.

If he runs, he will make three contenders. Incumbents Patricia Toland and Tim Cahill would make five candidates. That's still two candidates shy for a primary. With three seats involved, seven candidates are needed for a primary.

With the Ward 1 seat being vacated by Cheney to run at-large, a large field was expected. But only Peter Kolson and Marcia Olinto are official candidates so far.

Only other name still being mentioned as a possible candidate is Charles Shea, former councillor, state representative and city auditor.

SHEA

But, if he doesn't get into it, there apparently will be no primary. Three candidates are needed.

A rush of candidates was expected in Ward 4 when Sheets decided to vacate that seat and make a bid for mayor.

A half dozen or more names were mentioned as potential candidates but bowed out leaving it right now between Tom Fabrizio and Joseph Shea.

Keith Westerman is the last of potential candidates still being mentioned. If he does run, he will create a primary. If he doesn't, it apparently will be strictly a Shea-Fabrizio fight.

WESTERMAN

And right now, it appears there will be no City Council primary action in Wards 2, 3, 5 and 6. Incumbents Ted DeCristofaro, Lawrence Chretien, Charles Phelan and Thomas Nutley have no opposition and none appears on the horizon.

There has been no stampede for School Committee even though there is one open seat with Peggy Nigro's decision not to seek re-election.

A second vacant seat is still a possibility. Mary Collins, who was elected Norfolk County Commissioner last fall, has not yet decided whether she will seek re-election to the School Committee.

Frank Santoro looks like a definite candidate for re-election.

But with one wide-open seat and a second possible, only two official candidates have stepped forward so far.

Michael Preble announced some weeks ago. And Ron Mariano, president of the Ward 2 Civic Association, was scheduled to make if official last night (Wednesday) at a Morrisette Legion Post campaign kickoff.

Judy Brams of North Quincy has said she plans to run.

And, Gary Fine, son of WJDA newscaster Herb Fontaine, is expected to make an official announcement the end of this month or early May.

Both Brams and Fine have been constant spectators at the School Committee meetings.

If both Santoro and Collins run and Brams and Fine get into it along with Preble, it would bring the field to five candidates. Still two short of a primary.

But, it's still early. And this year's political picture could change.

MAYOR FRANK and First Lady Sandra McCauley are grandparents for the second time and looking forward to a third.

Bryan McCauley Logue was born March 21 at Quincy Hospital, weighing in at 9 pounds, 15 ounces.

The son of Jennifer and David Logue, he is the First Family's first grandson. (The other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Logue of Springfield, Va.)

The McCauley's first grandchild is Dawn Marie born last November to Michael and Elise Brodeur McCauley.

McCauley's daughter, Melissa, and her husband, Steven Higgins are expecting the first week in October. (Sandra says she's getting used to living with a grandfather).

STATE REP. Steve Tobin and his wife, the former Francine Comeau, are parents of a daughter, their second child, born Tuesday, at Quincy City Hospital. They have a son, Sean, almost 2.

The new arrival who weighed in at 10 pounds, 13 ounces is expected to be named Stephanie Marie.

This makes former Mayor Arthur and Shirley Tobin grandparents for the sixth time. Two more are on the way. Daughter Tracy Phelan and daughter in-law Lynn Tobin, wife of Quincy police officer are expecting in the fall.

YOU MIGHT GIVE Quincy Atty. George Burke an assist in getting the Celtics' Kevin McHale dressed for last Sunday's game at Cleveland.

G. BURKE

You've probably read where McHale left all his gear back in Boston and had to go out on the floor in a makeshift uniform. Including jersey No. 45 instead of his traditional 32 which Burke, incidentally wore as a Boston Celtics rookie some years ago.

The No. 45 belongs to Ramon Rivais who is on the injured list.

Now, McHale's feet aren't exactly Cinderella size. So where do you find a pair of good sized sneakers for him to wear against Cleveland when the ones he was going to wear were back in Boston?

Well, it so happens that McHale had a pair of his old sneakers sent ahead with other team gear. He was donating the sneakers to be auctioned off as a church fundraiser. Burke, a friend, who went to Cleveland to see the game was to pick them up and deliver them to his sister-in-law, Nancy Burke, for the church auction in Cleveland.

Instead, Burke returned the old sneakers to McHale who wore them in the game and then took them with him to Los Angeles.

With a promise to Burke that he would donate another pair later.

Basic Local Services Jeopardized

Financial Crisis Being Solved At Cities Expense, Says Flynn

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Municipalities such as Quincy are being subjected to level funded or reduced state aid and therefore reductions in essential services because of excessive state spending, Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn told city officials last week.

"The state's financial crisis has been passed on to its cities and towns. Financial difficulties statewide will be solved at the expense of basic local services, while state spending will be increasing from $450 to $600 million if the house budget proposal is accepted," Flynn said.

The house recently passed a preliminary budget which Flynn said calls for $75 million in local aid cuts.

"The state has budgeted an increase of $600 million — not one single penny is going to state aid, not to Quincy, Braintree or Boston.

"This is the hypocrisy of the State House," the mayor added.

Flynn made his remarks during a press conference last Thursday at Quincy City Hall. He has been visiting cities and towns across the state in an effort to raise consciousness about the state's budget problems and their potential impact on municipal services.

Quincy officials attending the conference included Mayor Francis McCauley, city councillors, department and union heads as well as those employed by the city.

Before Flynn spoke, McCauley requested Police Chief Francis Finn, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell, School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci and Gateway Program Coordinator Ann McLaughlin to tell Flynn about the fiscal problems they are facing.

Finn, who said he "hasn't slept well in over a week," said the situation is a Catch 22.

"We're being called on to perform services we didn't have to perform before with less money," noting that the department has added a civil rights officers, substance abuse officer and other speciality officers.

"We have to provide (these services) because the state has backed off. The men are being asked to do more with more cuts and no back ups," he added.

O'Connell, who recently became chief, echoed Finn's sentiments:

"We're undermanned. The men do the job out there but they're understaffed. We're down to bare bones all right and to cut more is inconceivable," O'Connell said.

The new chief also said that because there is less money, he is being forced to break the department's "buddy system" of having firefighters work together and to run less apparatus.

McLaughlin said state money for the Gateway Program, which is designed to help the city's Asian population with a variety of services, is running out at a time when the population is growing rapidly. During the past several years, Quincy's Asian population has increased from about 500 to 11,000 and could reach 20,000 relatively soon.

Flynn acknowledged Quincy's progress in addressing the influx of Asians, saying it is "probably the city's finest hour."

To see that drastic cuts in aid don't occur, Flynn said citizens and officials should unite and take their message to their representatives and the State House.

"The pressure has to begin from outside. There has to be a groundswell of concern from the public," Flynn said. "Once the public understands the problem, then the legislature will be more accountable for their actions.

The mayor reiterated that this is not one community's fight against the legislature but rather a battle that should be waged by cities and towns across the state.

"We're in this all together. We all have to hang in there together.

We have a real uphill fight but if the people understand the economics of what's going on they will demand the state legislature to take proper action," the mayor said.

Flynn, a Democrat, and McCauley, a Republican, agreed the state is to blame for the potential cuts in local aid. However, the pair, who have been mentioned as possible candidates for governor and lieutenant governor, had their own ideas as to how to deal with the cuts.

To rectify the situation, McCauley said the state should take a hard stand and cut from their own budget. He mentioned that 8,000 to 10,000 new jobs have been added to the state payroll the past few years.

McCauley, who also said he opposes any new taxes, said the city's budget is down to "bare bones" and that it is still not enough, since the city faces a shortfall of $6 million next year.

"We've been biting the bullet. It's time to let someone else bite the bullet," McCauley said.

However, Flynn said new taxes are needed unless more state aid becomes available. If state aid is reduced and there are no new taxes, Flynn said layoffs would occur.

Flynn also qualified his position on new taxes by saying he would support them if they were earmarked to "directly benefit people and services."

Furthermore, Flynn said cities and towns must have sufficient funds if they are to wage successful fights against drugs and crime as well as provide for basic services such as fire protection and education.

RAYMOND FLYNN

Speaking of the war on drugs so many communities are facing, Flynn said, "You have to be out there every night. There is no letting down when you're fighting the war on drugs."

How much money do Boston and Quincy stand to lose if the current budget is passed by the Senate and signed by the governor?

According to Flynn, Boston's budget will be reduced nearly $30 million and result in approximately 1,000 jobs in the city.

Of the lost jobs, 600 to 700 are expected to come from the school department while health and hospitals will lose about 250 positions. Other city agencies will lose approximately 260 positions.

In Quincy, the city may lose $826,000 in local aid for fiscal 1990 as well as experience escalating costs in rubbish removal and water and sewer services. Few layoffs are expected.

"The state's fiscal problems cannot be solved at the expense of cities and towns. The state cannot ask its municipalities to withstand cuts while state spending grows to meet its cost increases," Flynn said.

Air Collision Kills 4 At Wasp Launching

April 6-12 1939

50 Years Ago

Capt. E.L. Gunther of the USS Wasp testified before a Board of Inquiry that wind conditions were not sufficiently adverse to be the sole cause of a md-air collision of two planes that killed four Naval Reserve flyers during the launching of his carrier.

Lt. John J. Shea, executive officer of the Squantum Naval Air Station, said the planes were in first class condition and flying in formation when they came together and crashed a half mile apart on Edgemont Rd. and Sheppard Ave., East Braintree.

Killed were Lt. Cmdr. Waldo H. Brown of Milton, Aviation Cadet Ellsworth Benson of Newton, Chief Aviation Machinist's Mate Walter Kirk of 155 Arlington St., Wollaston.

Lt. James G. Willett, who was flying one of the six planes in formation at 10,000 feet over the Fore River Shipyard, testified that he believed that Brown's view was blocked by the wing of his plane and he could not see Benson's aircraft.

$150,000 Grant To Public Schools For STEP Program

A $150,000 grant has been awarded to Quincy Public Schools by the South Coastal Career Development and Quincy School partnership for a 15-month project called STEP, the Summer Employment & Training Program.

These monies were awarded through a competitive process by the Department of Employment & Training.

The program will identify a maximum of 14 and 15 year old students who are one or more years behind grade level in reading and or math. They will be recruited through active efforts at the school level during the spring of 1989 so they may participate during the summer at $4 per hour in a four-hour remediation program emphasizing reading, math and life skills and a three-hour afternoon work experience program.

A specialized curriculum requiring intensive training of QPS staff and technical assistance are integral parts of STEP.

A school year support program will be interfaced with current dropout prevention efforts currently underway in Quincy schools including "Making It In High School" funded by the Department of Education through Chapter 188 and the Regional Career Assessment Center at the Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

The program is funded through the Department of Education's Department of Vocational Education.

As a result, students will be assisted through the school year and be coupled with a series of special events designed to provide incentives to help STEP students to continue in school, meet success and focus on their goals for the future.

Interested students should contact their school guidance counselors or Emily Ostrower, Officer of the Superintendent at 471-0100.

Auto Insurance Reform Legal Secretaries Topic

The Auto Insurance Reform Legislation which became effective Jan. 1, will be the subject of Attorney Thomas J. Kelley, Jr. of Wellesley at the Tuesday, April 18, meeting of Norfolk County Legal Secretaries.

The group will meet at 6 p.m. at the Apollo Restaurant, 615 Washington St., Norwood, with dinner served at 6:30 p.m.

Atty. Kelley, a trial lawyer, and frequent speaker with the Mass. Academy of Trial Attorneys (M.A.T.A.) will include in his talk the "Efficient Administration of PIP Claims," as well as the pitfalls in making choices of auto insurance coverage in 1989.

Those interested in attending should call Alice Allan, reservation chairwoman, at Kafka & Kaufman, P.C., in Sharon (838-3111).

Emblem Club Meeting April 12

The Quincy Emblem Club will meet Wednesday, April 12, at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, East Squantum St., North Quincy, with Louise Ficarra presiding.

Present officers and newly elected officers will practice for an installation ceremony to be held May 5.

Pearl Garcia of Quincy, Past Supreme President, will be the installing officer. Susan McGregor and Dorothy Mateik, both State Past Presidents, are installation cochairmen.

Benefit Dance For Patrick Faherty May 12

A benefit dance to aid Patrick Faherty of Quincy, a victim of an automobile accident, will be held Friday, May 12 from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St., Quincy.

In the summer of 1987, Faherty, an outstanding student athlete at Quincy High School and Salem State College, was involved in a hit-and-run accident which left him paralyzed. The accident occurred one week before he was to return to Salem State.

Faherty had spent the summer working as a union laborer to help defray his college expenses. He earned approximately 300 hours, which was only half of the hours needed to be eligible for medical coverage.

He had no medical insurance.

After the accident, Faherty was hospitalized for four months. He has continued extensive therapy at the University Hospital in Boston where he is striving and gaining improvement.

Because of his on-going medical expenses, Faherty is having a tough time making ends meet. He would also like to continue his education. He was a sophomore at Salem State at the time of the accident.

Tickets for the dance are $10 and refreshments will be served. Music will be by The Silver Spears Band.

Donations can be sent to The Patrick Faherty Benefit Fund, c/o South Boston Savings Bank, 740 Gallivan Blvd., Dorchester, MA 02122, attn. Mary Mulvey.

Quincy NDA Students Inducted Into Societies

Eight Quincy students at Notre Dame Academy are among 22 foreign language students inducted into honor societies at a recent ceremony in the school chapel. Membership requires an A- for three consecutive terms and a minimum of two years in the language.

Alar Sprayed Apples -- Forbidden Fruit?

By BARBARA STORPER

Isn't anything sacred?

Now, consumers are wondering, if apples aren't safe, what is? Since 1963, apple trees have been sprayed with Alar, the trade name for a chemical known as daminozide, in order to delay fruit ripening and make apples redder and firmer.

For the industry, this helps lengthen the harvest time and make apple picking more efficient. For the consumer, it means redder and firmer apples. Yet, the health cost of this practice was found to be too great, according to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health's Division of Food and Drugs.

Alar and its breakdown product, UDMH, have been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals. Apples treated with Alar, and to a greater extent, heat processed apple products such as apple juice and applesauce made with Alar-treated apples, may contain varying levels of these substances. There is no immediately danger from these products, the potential for ill health effects may be from long term continued use. Of particular concern, however, is the apples, apple juice, and applesauce consumed by infants and small children, who tend to eat and drink more of it in relation to their size than do adults.

While the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has acknowledged the potential cancer risk of Alar, the agency has not imposed an emergency ban of its use. This means that the chemical will remain on the market for at least 18 months longer.

However, back in 1986, Massachusetts adopted the strictest guidelines in the country setting limits on the amount of Alar and UDMH residue permissable in apple products sold in the state. Taking affect in October 1987, state guidelines limit Alar residues not to exceed one part per million for heat processed apple products such as apple juice and applesauce. (Any less than one part per million is not detectable by current testing techniques).

According to Dr. Khalil Sharifzadeh, Policy Analyst for the State Division of Food and Drugs, tests show that during heat processing, Alar converts to UDMH, a much more potent carcinogen, The longer a product is boiled, the higher the level of UDMH, and thus, the more risky the product.

For infant and baby foods, Massachusetts allows no traces of alar to be found. And, for fresh apples, the state is using the same guidelines set by the EPA-20 parts per million.

Alar is used on a variety of food crops but over three fourths of its use is spraying apple trees. Macintosh, Stayman, Golden Delicious, and Red Delicious apples may receive Alar treatment. Jonathin, Rome, Baldwin, and Cortland apples may also use the substance, but to a much lesser extent. Alar is not generally used on Granny Smith apples.

Since alar is sprayed on apple trees before they bear fruit, rather than on the fruit itself, the chemical accumulates in the flesh of the fruit and not on the skin. Thus, peeling apples will not significantly reduce alar residues. And, without the fiber-rich skin, apples offer little in the way of nutritional value other than carbohydrate, potassium, and soluble fiber. However, as with any fruit or vegetable, it's always a good idea to wash produce with soap or a mild detergent and water and rinse well to rid them of dirt and other possible surface pesticide residues.

What to do? If you live in Massachusetts, odds are that heat processed products, infant and baby foods are OK as long as businesses are adhering to state guidelines. The Department of Public Health periodically monitors products at the retail level to assure compliance with the state's regulations.

Outside of Massachusetts, heat processed apple products may contain higher levels of Alar. However, those products still have to comply with current federal rules which limit alar residue to 20 parts per million. New York, Maine, and California are also now considering adopting stricter limits.

Alar, however, is only one of hundreds of pesticides and growth promoters being used routinely in the food supply. Rather than cause the public to panic and avoid nutritious and essential fruits and vegetables, the recently publicized problems with chemical residues points to a need for the federal government to take a much more responsible role in regulating and protecting the food supply. Hopefully, this is what the public will now demand.

Admission is $4 for senior citizens and students and $7 for others.

The concert will be sponsored by the Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., South Shore Coalition for Human Rights and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

For tickets call 479-8181, 773-8489 or 984-1950.

JENNIFER GOBA, (center) 19, of Quincy, a pre-law student at Westfield State College and member of the Circle K. Club at the school, accepts an award the club won at the recent New England District Circle K Convention. The club won a first place award in the Single Service Award category for organizing campus blood drives, a first place in the District Talent contest, and an honorable mention for a Pediatric Trauma Institute fund drive organized by the club. Also accepting awards are Circle K Vice President, Brenda Burbank of Dalton, MA (left), and Circle K President Christine Zemba of Easthampton, MA.

Tourism Assn. Donates $650 For Gordon Amphitheatre

The Quincy Tourism Association, Inc., presented a gift of $650 to the City Council Monday which will be used for landscaping at the Ruth Gordan Amphitheatre under the direction of the Park and Recreation Board.

In a letter to Park and Recreation Director Ray Cattaneo, Loren Strout, the president of Quincy Tourism, the association had $650 it wished to spend for the benefit of the amphitheatre.

Gene Gabriel, landscaper at the Adams National Historic Site, has suggested that the plantings consist of approximately 30 rhododendrons, spaced 30 feet apart, alternated with euonymus.

'The Community Of Joy' Bethany Sermon Topic

There will be two services Sunday, April 9, in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spears Sts., Quincy Center, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach a sermon at both hours entitled, "The Community of Joy."

Lay scripture readers will be Robert L. Lockwood in the chapel and Marsha B. Archer in the sanctuary. The associate minister, Rev. Joel F. Huntington, will serve as liturgist at both services.

At the sanctuary service the Chancel Choir, under the direction of Charles J. Blue, Sr., organist, will sing as the anthem "Alleluia" by William Boyce and as the offertory "Lo, a Voice to Heaven Sounding" composed by Dimitri Bortniansky.

The 10 a.m. service will be broadcast live direct from Bethany's sanctuary over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Sunday School will also be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through eighth grade. Nursery care for babies and toddlers is also provided during the 10 a.m. service.

Beginning at 11 a.m. immediately following the late service, a Fellowship Hour will be held in the Allen Parlor.

Individuals and families from the area are welcome to attend the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

For additional information regarding Bethany's programs and ministries, please contact the church office at 479-7300.

'A Larger Prayer' Sermon Topic At United First Parish

This Sunday, Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, Minister, will deliver a sermon titled "I Would Pray A Larger Prayer" during the 10:30 a.m. service at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents."

The church choir will sing anthems by Berger and Norman Corey, Music Director, will play organ works by Couperin, Lord, and Peeters. Kay Johnson and Ruth Keating will serve as ushers and Florence Grose will be the hostess for the Social Hour immediately following the service.

At noon, Dr. Bennett will lead a discussion group — "What is This Church?" About the Unitarian Universalist liberal religious tradition and principles and about our church — what it is and what it might become. Newcomers and those thinking about membership are encouraged to attend.

United First Parish Church will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. The tombs of the two Presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, along with those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine are in a crypt within the church.

The church is located in Quincy Sq. (opposite City Hall). Church School and child care are provided. Call 773-1290 for information. Visitors are welcome.

David Pugliesi's Name Added To Vietnam Memorial

The name of David Pugliesi was added to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower at Marina Bay, Squantum in a ceremony last week.

Pugliesi, a Quincy resident and member of the 199th Infantry, was wounded by sniper fire March 3, 1969 when his company was in the field during the Tet offensive. He was awarded the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star with Valor.

A parapelegic as a result of his wounds, Pugliesi returned to Quincy from Vietnam to live with his parents, Salvatore and Effie Pugliesi of 37 Massachusetts Ave. He died Aug. 17, 1987.

Last July, the family was informed by the Pentagon that his name had been accepted for inclusion on the National Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C.

Members of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces performed the ceremonial wreath laying. The Quincy Fire Department Honor Guard and the Quincy Police Department Color Guard participated.

A reception followed at Amelia's Restaurant.

How To Piece Together An IRA Based On The Tax Laws.

If you're married and your combined adjusted gross income is less than $40,000, your IRA contribution is fully tax-deductible.

Even after you begin withdrawing from your IRA, your account will continue to earn interest, tax deferred, until the account is depleted.

If you receive a qualifying pension distribution, you can defer the taxes by investing the sum in an IRA.

If you're single and your adjusted gross income is less than $25,000, your IRA contribution is fully tax-deductible.

Contrary to popular belief, you don't need $2,000 to open an IRA account. In fact, you can open up an IRA account at Quincy Savings Bank with as little as $10!

An IRA's accumulated interest is sheltered from taxation until you begin making withdrawals after age 59½.

A lot of people think that the tax laws prevent them from deducting IRAs on their taxes. They couldn't be more wrong! In fact, most taxpayers are still eligible to write off all or part of their IRA contributions as a tax deduction. At Quincy Savings Bank, we can show you how to put together an IRA that will allow your retirement fund to grow quickly, and in turn, shelter it from taxation. So if you're interested in making the most of your retirement fund, stop by your nearest Quincy Savings Bank office. And get a piece of the action.

Olive K. Brooks, 83
Ludlow School Teacher

A funeral service for Olive K. Brooks, 83, of Quincy, was conducted March 29 at 10 a.m. at the Deware Funeral Home, by the Rev. Gene Langeven, pastor of the First Church of Squantum. Burial was in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

Miss Brooks, a teacher at Ludlow High School for 33 years, died March 27 at the Quincy Nursing Home.

Miss Brooks retired from the Ludlow School system in 1969. She had been dean of women, was faculty advisor to the honor society, and taught history and English.

Miss Brooks travelled extensively in Europe before World War II. Her trips to England, Switzerland and Rome gave her useful material for her high school classroom.

She had a great interest in music and played piano and sang with the Radcliffe Choral Society and the Dudley Street Baptist Church where her father, the late Rev. Arthur T. Brooks was the pastor.

She was born in New York City and had lived in Tarrytown, N.Y. before moving to Boston with her family in her teens. She had lived in Ludlow before moving to Quincy in 1969.

She received a bachelor's degree from Radcliffe College and a master's degree from Boston University.

She is survived by a sister, Anna Green of North Quincy, and a nephew, Richard B. Green of North Quincy. She was the daughter of the late Olive (Sullivan) Brooks.

Adelor J. DuPont

A funeral Mass for Adelor J. DuPont of Quincy was celebrated Tuesday at St. Joseph's Church. Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

He died March 31 at New England Medical Center in Boston after a brief illness.

A former welder at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy, he worked there for 30 years before retiring in 1962.

He was born in Canada and lived most of his life in Quincy.

He is survived by a daughter, Evelyn Malvarosa of Quincy, two sisters, Rose A. McInnis of Quincy and Adele Westaway of Florida; a grandchild, and several nieces and nephews.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Some of the world's most talented people have never been paid a cent. They are called volunteers. They take time from their work, their leisure, their home-life to volunteer their talents and their energies. Volunteerism is in the spotlight this week. It is the time to publicly thank them for their work and let them know that it is valuable and important to us. This week is the time to make an effort to look around and see who is doing what to help out ... Look at the nursing homes and hospitals and you'll see men and women finding time to visit with the residents and help the staff ... Look at the schools and you'll see people who serve on committees, who donate materials, who help raise funds all for the love of doing .. Look at the churches and you'll see people who give their time to sing in the choir, and work on committees ... You'll see people who deeply care about their community and want to work to make it better, honor it and tell others about it.

When asked why they volunteer, the most popular reason heard will be, "Because I care, I want to help"... We ask that our readers join us in saluting the volunteers in our community ... Let us show them that because they care, we care about them! ...

QUINCY POLICE OFFICER Robert Edgar conducts a lesson for Project D.A.R.E. for fifth graders in the Lincoln-Hancock School. The drug abuse education program was initiated into the school system on Monday.

The lessons do not center on scare tactics, but on positive alternatives to drug use. The program aims to set up goals for the children such as increasing self esteem and assertiveness, and managing stress without taking drugs.

Also included in the lesson format are resistance techniques which help students learn how to say "no" to offers of drug use, a lesson on the media influences on drug use, and one on positive role modeling which acquaints the children with older students and others present a positive image without drug use. At the conclusions of the 17-week course, there is a graduation ceremony — complete with diplomas.

Another integral aspect of Project DARE is the use of a uniformed police officer in the classroom.

"Police officers are not always looked at as providing services," Mahoney said. "When I saw the DARE program that was one aspect that I liked."

Quincy Police Chief Francis Finn selected officer Robert Edgar to serve as the DARE officer for the city. Officer Edgar was taken off his duties on the street and underwent an 80-hour training session supervised by the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Council. Edgar was trained in the 17 lessons and in methods of getting a positive message across to children and parents alike. As part of his training program and of Project DARE itself, Edgar has met with various PTA groups in the city and plans to meet with more.

"After every lesson we will encourage kids to talk to their parents about our weekly lessons," Edgar said, "this way there is a communication between parent and child regarding a problem the child might encounter in the future."

Officer Edgar was an appropriate choice as DARE officer for Quincy. He has attended seminars on drug abuse prevention and detection which were presented by Mahoney with the Department of Justice. He also researched the DARE program on his own before committing to it.

"Every officer I talked to about it was enthusiastic," he said, "every one of them said that it works."

Edgar also has his own reasons for conviction. A resident of Hanover, where the DARE program has been in the school system for two years, Edgar has seen the impact it's had on his own kids.

Two of his four children have participated in the DARE program in school, Edgar explains, and have demonstrated what they've learned in their attempts to get him to give up his smoking habit. The children have even begun quoting statistics to him, he said.

Officer Edgar is obviously enthusiastic about his role in project DARE and, as it will be a full-time job for him, enthusiasm is essential.

For the rest of this school year, Edgar will be teaching the weekly lessons in eight fifth grade classes in the Lincoln-Hancock School, The Montclair School and the Webster School. Next year the remaining elementary schools will participate as well.

Project DARE received a $5,000 donation from Blue Cross Blue Shield which will be used for booklets and other materials. A brand new car was donated to the program anonymously as well. There is no state or federal funding available for the project.

Mahoney, who said that the program will become a part of the school systems comprehensive health education program, maintains that none of it would have been possible without the cooperation of Police Chief Finn and School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci.

"They've both been very supportive," Mahoney said, adding that the drug education issue is "not a school problem and not a police problem, it's a community problem, and needs a team effort."

"And if we can help even two or three of these kids," Edgar said, "then we're doing a good job."

Methadone Clinic Decision In May

clinics in other communities, including Brockton. McCauley who has been contact with Brockton's mayor, said that program is working well.

As for the Quincy proposal, McCauley said the group will review it thoroughly and make its recommendation, either in support or in opposition, sometime in May.

According to the mayor, the group "will get together and come up with an agreement strong enough to protect the city. Mr. Mulligan has said an agreement could be constructed that would be strong enough to protect the city.

"The committee will get back to me in May and then a decision will be made whether or not to go forward," he added.

As for the mayor's position, McCauley said "there is a (heroin) problem in Quincy. What we don't need is people bringing their problems to Quincy.

"I'm open-minded and they have about a month to work on it."

The group has already discussed some concerns, including possible locations for the clinic and its operation.

An option to have the city run the program has already been rejected, McCauley said. Noting that a private group or community could apply for an operator's license, the mayor said, "I'm very cautious about adding city departments because of their cost."

Locations that have been disucssed are: the Public Works area, the Navel Reserve Center area, the Quincy District Courthouse and Quincy Hospital.

The committee will also discuss what towns would be serviced by the Quincy clinic and how counseling and urine testing would be administered.

If a clinic is allowed in Quincy, it would be the second in the last 17 years. From 1972 to 1973, city officials and health administrators such as Dr. Charles Djerf conducted a methadone clinic as part of a four-pronged drug treatment program.

According to Mahoney, an estimated 400 residents were serviced, of which 40 to 60 were methadone clients.

Before another clinic is allowed to operate in Quincy, Mahoney has stated there should be many safeguards in place.

Later Than You Think: Christmas Parade Theme Deadline April 21

Keeping with tradition, the Christmas Festival Committee is seeking the public's suggestions for a theme for this year's annual city of Quincy Christmas Parade.

Entries should be mailed no later than Friday, April 21 to Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., North Quincy, Mass. 02170.

The 28-member committee festival committee will select the winning theme on Wednesday, May 3.

The individual sending in the winning entry will be invited to participate in the parade and will be presented with a gift of appreciation from the committee at the awards ceremony following the parade.

"People like to be a part of a big event. The winner of the theme will be recognized for their participation as they travel along the three mile Hancock Street parade route, before an anticipated viewing crowd of 250,000 people," said General Chairman George White.

White noted that the theme should be appropriate for float builders to work within.

"Remember, it is a season of happiness and the theme should create an environment in keeping with the spirit of Christmas."

accounts. The budget contains no funding for any of the $2,318,094 in capital outlay requests from city department heads.

Despite the reductions, the proposed budget exceeds estimated revenues by almost $6 million. If new sources of revenue are not found, the mayor said the shortfall will have to be made up by appropriations from the city's reserve funds.

Escalating costs for water, sewer and rubbish services, coupled with level funded or perhaps reduced local aid from the state, is putting a severe strain on the city's finances, McCauley had repeatedly said the past several months.

That theme was echoed Monday night as several councillors instructed the standing room only group to lobby their legislators for more local aid.

"Whether they raise taxes or make cuts (in their own budget) I think there is an obligation to assist cities and towns," McGrath said, adding that this assistance is essential for municipalities to be able to provide basic services such as education, fire and police protection.

McGrath then introduced a resolution urging the state legislature to increase the amount of local aid available to cities and towns "in order to promote the essential city services provided by local government in the areas of education, police and fire safety."

The overflow crowd applauded after he read it.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets also received applause after he stated that the state administration, during its recent economic boom, failed to understand and recognize the "greatest resource in the state — our children."

Sheets, whose three children went through the Quincy Public School system, said, "I know how important it is to have adequate education," adding that without it, youngsters will have difficulty succeeding.

The council has the power to cut the budget, not to increase it. However, Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien said the council should insert itself into the budget process in hope of acquiring more money for the schools.

"If we accept the $38 million (school) budget, we are accepting educational decline," he said.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, who has three children in Quincy schools, said the city is losing substantial ground in education. "We have the most to lose by cutting education in Quincy."

Cheney also said the city must stand up to the state for its educational rights. "I'm tired of it. We have to see a commitment by state government in terms of education."

He then said parents should call their legislators and tell them they care about education.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, who along with Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, Cheney and McCauley, attended a conference Saturday on the state financial crisis, said cuts at the state level were never discussed.

While at the conference, which was sponsored by the Mass. Municipal Association, Nutley said most officials said Prop 2 and a half should not be tampered with. Instead, the state should get a grip on its own spending and pass that savings on to the local communities.

"A Prop 2½ override is a way of shifting the burden back to the towns. The (state) government should face up to its responsibilities and turn the savings around to the cities and town," he said.

McGrath said he will hold a series of meetings to discuss the city budget. Those meetings will be made known to the public, he said.

As for the amount of state aid that Quincy will receive in FY 1990, the mayor said he is optimistic that the city will be at least level funded.

"I'm more optimistic than some that when this whole budget process gets done, that we will do better but it won't be a lot better."

If the city does receive more money than expected, McCauley said he would try to put more money in the schools and other departments.

It's Now 'Quincy Hospital'

The City Council voted in favor of deleting the word "city" from the name Monday night.

The change was unanimously approved by the council's Public Health and Hospital Committee prior to the council meeting.

According to hospital director Mark Mundy, the change has the support of the hospital board of managers and staff.

Mundy also said the change is more suitable for the hospital's new image.

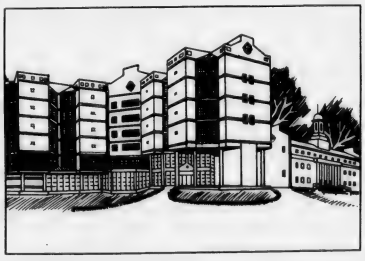
Q: What's up and coming in health care?



A: The New QCH!

Quincy City Hospital has begun an impressive $57 million renovation. Almost two-thirds of the buildings and other facilities will be replaced—all part of a dramatic plan to better serve the growing and changing health care needs of the South Shore.

The focal point of the new hospital complex will be a brand new six story building that will contain 234 patient beds as well as all of the necessary patient care support services.

Since its founding in 1890, Quincy City Hospital has been in the forefront of health care on the South Shore. With our new facilities we'll continue to deliver the highest quality health care services with warm, personal attention.

At QCH—we're building for the future on a proud past.

Quincy Delegation To Inspect Georgia Sludge Plant

A delegation of Quincy officials including state representatives, city councillors and business leaders will tour a sludge processing plant in Georgia this Friday.

The delegation, which includes state representatives Robert Cerasoli, Michael Morrissey, Steve Tobin, city councillors Michael Cheney and Ted DeCristofaro, Mayoral Candidate Peter O'Connell, as well as members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, will tour a pelletizing plant and composting plant in Clayton County, Georgia, for one day. They will leave Boston at 6:30 a.m. and return Friday night.

According to Cheney, the objective of the trip is to view a pelletizing plant that has been in operation since 1981.

"It's my hope we can meet with someone who was involved in the planning stages of this facility and to get their reaction to the plant now that it's up and operating.

"We'll be going over the place with a fine-tooth comb in an effort to head off any potential problems," he said, referring to the proposed sludge treatment plant at the Fore River Shipyard.

Cost of the trip for Cheney and DeCristofaro will be taken out of the council's out-of-state travel account. Employees of Continental Cablevision in Quincy are also expected to make the trip and show a video on it after they return.

While in Clayton County, the delegation will also tour a compost facility.

Cheney said the pelletizing plant processes 12 tons per day of raw sludge, compared to 120 tons that is being proposed by the Massachusett Water Resources Authority at the shipyard.

The Clayton County plant operates 24 hours a day, five days a week. The MWRA plant would operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week, Cheney said.

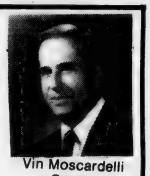
Furthermore, the MWRA would use natural gas or oil to dry the sludge at the shipyard and store the finished produced in large silos whereas in Clayton County, wood chips in a furnace are used to dry the sludge.

Cheney noted that natural gas was selected over other alternatives because of concerns over the amount of pollutants being released into high levels of the atmosphere.

On Tuesday, the delegation met with representatives from the MWRA and listened to a presentation of their sludge plant proposal. They heard how the MWRA will be marketing the pellets in Florida.

Recycling QCA Topic

Quincy's Recycling Program will be the subject of the Quincy Citizens Association, at the scheduled Wednesday, April 5, meeting at 8 p.m. at Montclair Men's Club.



Quincy Councillor Larry Chretien and Recycling Committee members, including Peter Kolson, will give details of the City's magazine and newspaper recycling program which starts May 1, and which is expected to save $100,000 in rubbish disposal expenses.

The regular monthly Quincy Citizens Association meeting will follow a refreshment break. Those attending are asked to express their ideas about extending the Quincy Center Historical District.

Also, should Quincy take by eminent domain the former Kincaide property (next to the Registry building on Hancock St.) for a mini-mall? Should the City "bail out" the property owner?

Council On Aging Chairman:

'Elderly Should Not Be Used As Pawns In State Budget Crisis'

Quincy's elderly should not be used as pawns on the state budget chopping blocks, the Chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging said following the announcement that certain nutrition and home care programs in Quincy may be drastically curtailed.

John Noonan, chairman of the Council, said that the South Shore Elder Services Inc. is being forced to close down a nutrition site in South Weymouth and Quncy nutrition sites may be operating only four days a week rather than the current five-day week.

"These programs were set up through the Older Americans Act to provide daily hot nutritious meals to seniors 60 years of age and older," Noonan continued.

According to a report received by the Quincy Council on Aging some 30,000 meals will be dropped during the next several months in the area served by the South Shore Elder Services Inc.

"The Quincy Council on Aging will do everything possible to make sure that no frail elderly resident of Quincy will be denied a nutritious meal in the budget chopping process," he said.

"It is unthinkable that our seniors who have paid their dues to society should be treated so shabbily because of bureaucratic bungling at the state levels.

"It is also shocking to hear that home care programs will be drastically cut back by the meat cleaver wielding bureaucrats. This will happen when our elderly are discharged from hospitals, sicker and quicker under certain federal medical assistance programs and because nursing home beds are in short supply, will be forced to return to their homes to wait for needed home and health care services.

"It is my understanding that South Shore Elder Services Inc. will not accept any new clients for home health care unless the clients are referred for protective services because they are at risk of abuse or neglect," Noonan said.

Clients now receiving home-delivered meals will be re-evaluated and may be dropped from the program if it is deemed other support services are available.

Noonan said that an emergency meeting to discuss the state budget crisis will be held April 11 at 9:30 a.m. at the South Shore Elder Services Inc. headquarters in Braintree. Those invited to attend this meeting include chairmen of the Councils on Aging from the entire South Shore area.

Noonan also announced that Rev. Alicia Corea, vice-chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging has been designated to represent the Quincy Council on the South Shore Elder Services Inc. Board of Directors, the policy making body for that agency. Frank Kearns who is also a member of the Quincy Council serves as a delegate to SSES Inc. Kearns is also treasurer for the agency.

Noonan was unanimously re-elected chairman for a seventh consecutive term by the Quincy Council on Aging 15-member board at its annual meeting last month.

McGrath, Cheney Propose Zoning Administrator

An order calling for the mayor to consider appointing a zoning administrator to the Zoning Board of Appeals was referred to the city solicitor by the City Council Monday.

Introduced by Councillors Michael Cheney and Stephen McGrath, the order is an attempt to relieve the city's Zoning Board of Appeals of its workload as well as single-family home owners who seek to remodel their home.

According to Cheney, the Board has been overburdened with applications for variances. He said several residents, particulary single-family homeowners, have found it extremely difficult to renovate their homes as a result of the backup of applications to the Board.

Noting that the state law allows for the appointment of a zoning administrator, Cheney said an administrator would take some of the board's workload in terms of granting variances.

The addition of a zoning administrator would also spare homeowners from excessive fees which can total upwards of $4,000.

Speaking in support, McGrath nicknamed the order the "Single Family Homeowner Emancipation and Relief Act."

"The zoning regulations are far too extensive in terms of allowing homeowners to remodel their homes," McGrath said, adding that the Board is an overworked body with some meetings lasting until the early morning hours.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley said he would like to review the proposal before the council officially acts on it. Nutley said he would like to know what power the administrator will have.

"I need some time to look this over with my colleagues and get a better feel what the Zoning Board of Appeals will delegate to the zoning administrator," he said.

School Budget CPO Topic April 10

A Quincy School budget follow-up will be the subject for discussion by the Citywide Parents Organization at its meeting on Monday, April 10, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

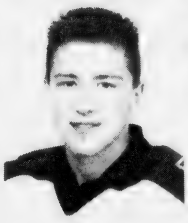
Harvard Goalie In Key Role

Chuckie Hughes: From Youth Hockey To National Title

By TOM SULLIVAN

Little did Chuckie Hughes dream, while starting his hockey career in the Quincy Youth Hockey Association program, that he would be in goal when harvard won its first national championship.



But that is just what happened last Saturday in St. Paul, Minnesota, when Chuckie, finishing up a fantastic freshman year at Harvard, turned in another outstanding effort as Bill Cleary's Crimson defeated Minnesota, 4-3, in overtime for Harvard's first NCAA championship in any sport.

Quincy Youth Hockey Association officials haven't forgotten Chuckie, son of Charles and Janice Hughes, and Youth Arena manager Beverly Reinhardt put up a sign, "Congratulations, Chuckie," on the arena marquee this week.

"We are thrilled to see one of our graduates do so well," she said. "We all knew he had a bright future as he was tremendous in youth hockey."

Chuckie went to B.C. High but was cut as a freshman from the hockey team and transferred to Catholic Memorial where he was one of the best goalies in the state and led CM to the state title in 1987 and 1988.

He once saw Harvard as "untouchable" and was thinking of attending Providence, Boston College or Boston University.

CHUCKIE HUGHES

However, when his grades stayed up, he began dreaming about Harvard. His CM teammate, Ted Donato, was going there and when Cleary spoke at a varsity banquet, Hughes approached him and said he'd love to go to his school.

"He gave me one of those catchall phrases, like, 'keep working, you never know,' " said Chuckie. "I was still a nonentity then."

The son of a Boston police patrolman whose beat included Egleston Square, Hughes could have gone to the U. of New Hampshire on a full scholarship, but his family chose to shoulder a big chuck of Harvard's $20,000 annual price tag themselves.

This year Hughes and fellow freshman Allain Roy alternated in goal and during the regular season Harvard won 14 of the 15 games in which Chuckie was in goal.

He had many outstanding games, helped the Crimson to the ECAC title and played in one of the two NCAA quarterfinal wins over Lake Superior State.

But the capper was the national championship win over Minnesota on the Golden Golphers' home ice in which he had 43 saves.

"Bobby Reynolds (Michigan State forward) said 'Thank God we're not playing Minnesota,' " said Hughes. "And Lake Superior State thought they were going to beat us to a pulp."

So all the Crimson did was win two in a row over defending national champion Lake Superior State in the quarterfinals, upset favored Michigan State in the semis and go on to capture the cherished national crown with a win over Minnesota, the WCHA regular season winner.

Chuckie played at all levels of youth hockey and began skating even before being eligible for the Mites. He was voted the most valuable player as a Squirt in a Kitchener, Ontario, tournament and when he reached Bantam age he played for the North Shore Raiders.

"He always wanted to be a goalie but he also skated as a forward and defenseman," his mother asked. "He played both on the House league teams and the traveling teams."

Squirt As Win 3 At Lake Placid Before Bowing To Duxbury

Quincy's Squirt A hockey team made an excellent showing in the recent International Youth Tournament in Lake Placid, winning three games over Canadien and Mid-Atlantic state teams before falling to South Shore rival Duxbury in the championship game.

Quincy finished at 19-7-5 overall, including second place in the Greater Boston League and the championship of the Santa Claus Tournament. The team was sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank and coached by Rich Reinhardt and Art Carthas.

After spotting Ottawa a quick 2-0 lead, Quincy came back with Brendan O'Brien scoring off an assist for Jenna Nolan and Ron McGann tying the score with Eric Griffin assisting. With only 37 seconds left in the game Robbie Callow knocked in a rebound for the winning goal. Goalie Mark Smith and the defensemen, especially Nolan and Dan Stone, were outstanding.

Quincy followed up with a 7-2 win over Saranac Lake, N.Y., after again trailing, 2-0. A.J. Carthas and O'Brien had two goals each and Jason Fennelly, Jamie Murphy and John Healey one apiece. Fennelly and Carthas each had three assists, O'Brien two and Healey, Griffin and Dan Hughes one each.

In the third game Quincy blanked the New Jersey Devils, 7-0, as Steve Barrett and Dan Donahue scored two goals apiece and Fennelly, Healey and O'Brien one each. O'Brien had two assists and Barrett, Carthas, Donahue, Griffin, McGann, Nolan and Tom Sullivan one each.

Duxbury scored a goal late in the game to edge Quincy, 2-1, in the championship game. Murphy put Quincy ahead, 1-0, with Sullivan assisting, but that was it as far as the Quincy attack was concerned.

Shaughnessy On Curry Baseball Team

Quincy's Bill Shaughnessy, who had an outstanding football season for the Curry College football team last fall, will be pitching and playing shortstop for this year's Curry baseball team.

Coach Jack Vallely, in his 42nd season at the Colonel helm, is the winningest coach in Div. 3 and is on pace to win his 600th career game soon. He entered this season with a 588-181-2 record and hopes to improve on last year's 6-8 record, only the fifth losing season since he has been coach.

Webster Wins Basketball Jamboree

The jamboree trophy was won by Daniel Webster School, which advanced through the jamboree undefeated. The clinic and jamboree format has been conducted annually by the Quincy Recreation Department to instruct youngsters at the elementary level in the skills necessary to play the game. Once again this year the clinic was conducted by head coach of mens basketball at Curry College Brian Buckley. Buckley emphasized dribbling skills to the youngsters and gave them drills which they could practice without supervision.

At the conclusion of the clinic seven teams from recreation centers city wide participated a round robin series of mini games. The results of the mini games is as follows:

Atherton Hough defeated Wollaston, 16-4. John Johnson, Bill Dunn, Jason Fenally, Julie Doresey, Shawn White each had two points for Atherton Hough, while Eddie McGee had six to lead all scores. Ryan Herilhy and Mike Greene each had two points for Wollaston. Point started its run for the jamboree trophy with a 14-5 victory over Merrymount. Jeff Sullivan, Joe Mariani, Jacob Drohan, Brian Paul, and Joe Donahue all had two points, John Deanglis had four. Billy Manning played well for Merrymount. Squantum tapped off against a strong Snug Harbor team and fell victim in a 22-7 loss. Justin Madden and Craig Pinkham were the Squantum scorers.

Terrence Bowman had eight to lead all Snug Harbor scorers. Kevin Norton was close behind with eight, Brandell Pinckney had four points. Beechwood Knoll won its first game defeating Wollaston, 16-6. Dave Thomas lead all Wollaston scores, while Jim Finn had six to lead Beechwood. Mike Johnson and Shawn Johnson each had two.

Daniel Webster continued on its winning way by defeating Atherton Hough. Russell has three and Paul two, while Jeff Feiner contributed his first two of the tournament for Webster. McGee was the high scorer for Atherton.

Bowman had 10 for Snug Harbor as they defeated Beechwood Knoll. Kevin Norton also chipped in six first half points. Jeffrey Saveier had one free throw, and Jim Kelly one field goal. Shawn Johnson had two, Finn five for Beechwood Knoll.

Although out of the cup bracket Wollaston got all 10 points from Justin Stauros to defeat Merrymount.

The two unbeatens, Daniel Webster and Snug Harbor faced each other in the day's final game. Webster coached by Janice Sullivan, jumped to a quick 7-3 first half lead. Russell had five of the seven points and including a three-pointer. Snug Harbor Coach Will Hughes, who was making his recreation coaching debute, received strong play from Bowman with all three first half points, he ended with five for the game. Lee Shaw had the only other Snug basket.

Russell contributed six more points, Todd Sullivan, and Joe Mariani had the final two points in the 18-7 championship wins. Bob Walsh lead Webster in rebounding while Mike Adams was cited for his excellent defense, Heather Archibald and Jeffrey Saveier were cited for their all round team play.

The jamboree teams were made up of participants from the recreation programs in school sites around the city. Recreation leaders coached the participants as a concluding event in the department's 25-week winter program. The coaches were Atherton Hough, Kristin O'Brien; Wollaston, John Phelan; Merrymount, Brien Buckley; Squantum, Ted Stevenson, Jr.; Beechwood, Rick Radzik.

With No Returning Starters Sylvia Doesn't Know What To Expect

By TOM SULLIVAN

After missing the Eastern Mass. tournament by one win two years in a row, the Quincy baseball team qualified last spring by winning its final game of the year.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents then went to the third round of the tournament, losing a 3-2 squeaker to Durfee after surprising Natick and defeating Brockton, not for the first time, not for the second time, but for the third time! It was the farthest a Quincy team ever advanced in the tournament.

But, with the Presidents scheduled to open their season Tuesday against Weymouth South, Sylvia didn't know what to expect without a single returning starter on the team.

Quincy plays at Weymouth North today (Thursday), hosts Everett Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field and will go to Malden next Wednesday. The Presidents' first Suburban League game will be against Waltham April 24 at Adams Field.

"We are really rebuilding and will have to scratch and bite for wins this year," said Sylvia. "We had just one returning starter due to come back but he is ineligible. Several of our players are up from the jayvees and others are playing on the high school level for the first time."

"This is a fine group of kids and they know what they are up against. We have no overpowering pitchers and have no power hitters as we had the past two years. We will have to utilizie our speed and will really have to fight for runs. If they work real hard we can have a respectable season."

Sylvia has quantity but unknown quality on the pitching staff. The pitchers are Bob Austin, Rich Kiesel, Dave Adams, Steve McGinnis Rich Burns and freshman Mike Malvesti, all right handers, and Ken McPartlin, an untried southpaw.

"These pitchers are hard workers and show promise, but I won't know what they can do until we get a few games under our belt," said Sylvia.

Burns and Austin will share the catching duties when not pitching.

Tim Mann and Dennis Joyce are the second baseman, Bob Cinquegrano the shortstop and Joe Russell and sophomore Tom Balzano the third baseman.

In the outfield Mike Noonan and Chris Beatrice will be joined by Austin and Kiesel.

"I was very happy for the seniors last year when they finally made the tournament after just losing out by a single win the previous two years," Sylvia said. "Making the tournament and going to far was a big boost for our program."

Bob Troup is back as junior varsity coach and George Peachey as freshman coach. Also back is volunteer Dave MacMillan, the pitching coach, and Mike Dracchio will be working with the younger players.

"Dave MacMillan does a wonderful job with our pitchers and he deserved much of the credit for our success last season," said Sylvia.

At North:

Donovan Has High Hopes After Past Disappointments

The North Quincy baseball team, after several frustrating seasons, was scheduled to open the season Tuesday against Weymouth North and fourth-year coach Leo Donovan had high hopes of a good season and making up for the past disappointments.

The Raiders host Weymouth South today (Thursday) at Adams Field, will play at Malden Monday and will be home to Medford next Wednesday at Adams. All games start at 3:30. North's first Suburban League game will be April 24 at Brockton.

Donovan took over the North reins in 1986 and his first team had a 5-14 record. The past two seasons the Raiders had only 3-17 records and last year was the most frustrating season for the team.

"We lost nine one-run games, three in extra innings," said Donovan. "We found all ways of losing with many games lost on errors after we had led, and we lost one game on a balk. It was very frustrating because we received good pitching in most games."

This year Donovan has a lot of experience with veterans at almost every position, led by two pitchers who could be among the best in the league.

Erik DeBoer and Kevin MacDougall, both juniors, pitched excellent ball last year and both had fine seasons for the Morrisette Legion team. This year most people expect DeBoer to be one of the best around and MacDougall also rates very high.

"They are really fine pitchers and should have outstanding seasons," said Donovan. "DeBoer will play first base when not pitching and MacDougall will be in the outfield."

Gary Rawdon looks good and will also play in the outfield when not on the mound, and Dave Gamsby and Billy Warren, the only southpaw, also show promise. Outfielder Bill MacDougall will see action on the mound when needed. "I hate to take Billy out of the outfield because he can catch them anywhere," Donovan said.

Jeff Calvert, also a junior, is back for his third year catching and should be one of the league's best.

Veteran Chris Abate and a fine looking sophomore, George Rozanitis, are the first basemen. Rozanitis has been hitting well.

North is all set at shortstop with Tony Anderlionis back and Steve Kohler and Jim Bryan are the third basemen. Bryan will also back up Calvert behind the plate.

Billy MacDougall and Jim Glynn are veteran outfielders and Scott MacDougall, Mike Dupill and Chris Griffin are other outfielders. Griffin could also see service pitching and in the outfield.

"We should be a good-hitting club and everyone in the starting lineup can hit and have hit well in scrimmages," said Donovan. "And with DeBoer and Kevin MacDougall heading a fine-looking pitching staff, this could be our year to make up for past disappointments."

Many of the North players and juniors and prospects for next season also look bright.

Harold defeated Lydon-Russell, 4-1, as Langille scored twice and Allen and Andrew Boyd once each. Danny Stock and Allen each had two assists. Kevin Regan scored for Lydon with Bob Harvey assisting.

Hasson and Flynn scored to give Balducci's a 2-1 win over Martin. John Bertucci had an assist. Danny Murphy scored for Martin.

Boylen's 5 Goals Sparks Bersani

Bersani Brothers widened their Pee Wee House League lead to five points with an 8-4 victory over UCT.

Kevin Boylen had a big game with five goals, Mike DesRoche had two and Joe Koceniak one. DesRoche had four assists, Dennis Pateras and Matt McGowan two each and Mike Dern, Boylen and P.J. DiMattia one each. Travis Greenwood, Lee Hughes, Billy Coughlin and Joe Carinci scored for UCT and Justin Dilverio, Doughie Nolan and Dewey Holmes had assists.

Colonial Federal and Keohane's tied, 3-3. Mike Grant, Derek Mullen and Eric Kreuz scored for Colonial Federal and each had an assist. Patrick Connolly scored twice and Marc Glennon once for Keohane's. Scott McPherson had two assists and Craig Cooper one.

The standings: Bersani, 14-6-2; Keohane's, 10-7-5; Colonial Federal, 7-11-4; UCT, 6-13-3.

Living Wills Discussion At 1000 Southern Artery

Living Wills is the subject of a panel discussion tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. sponsored by 1000 Southern Artery Senior Citizens Housing and Quincy Point Congregational Church.

The discussion will be held in the Activity Room on the Mall at 1000 Southern Artery. The public is invited.

The 6-member panel will explain the "Living Will," which is not a will at all, but rather a statement that a person does not want extraordinary life-prolonging methods such as respirators, CPR, feeding tubes, or other such treatments. A Living Will gives the writer a voice in decisions about such care even when unable to speak for himself.

Board 'Condones' Non-Alcoholic Dances

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday said that they "condone" the request from John T. Donahue of Project Feelings and Heavenly High ministries, to hold non-alcoholic dances at Montello's Function Hall, 53 Mass. Ave. on Fridays and Saturdays from 7 p.m. to midnight.

Donahue originally asked for a permit to include Sundays as well, but said that, due to neighbors' concerns, he would keep the Sunday dances at Chevy's where he has been holding them for several weeks. The board said that no license needed to be granted if the request is for Friday and Saturday nights only because the establishment already holds a weekend cabaret license.

Donahue told the board he wanted to bring the request to the board's attention because of concerns over parking on Mass Ave and other matters brought up by neighbors of Montello's.

Several neighbors were in attendance at the hearing and told the board that they have had problems in the past with dances at Montello's.

Residents complained of excessive drinking on the street after the dances are over. They also complained about parking problems on Mass Ave. and surrounding streets which prevent emergency vehicles from accessing the area.

The board noted that no parking would be allowed on Mass Ave. and side streets.

The residents said that property damage was also a problem during open dances at the establishment.

They requested that two detail police officers be hired for the dances, one for inside and one to patrol the streets outside. The board said that the added expense would substantially decrease the funds raised for the organization.

Donahue explained he understood the residents' concerns, but said that "without alcohol, people are an entirely different breed."

Residents were concerned that patrons would bring their own alcohol to the events and drink it afterward on the street and in cars.

Donahue explained to those in attendance that the dances would cater to a different crowd and that "no booze will be allowed in the dances – either in the bottle or in the body."

Councillor Timothy Cahill was before the board in favor of Donahue.

"What Mr. Donahue is doing is a great benefit to the city," he said, "and I think, that in the long run, it could be a benefit to the residents in the area."

Cahill explained that if sober dances are held at Montello's on the weekends, there will be no opportunity for alcoholic dances to be there.

"Friday and Saturday nights could be the most peaceful nights of the week," he said.

"What I'm trying to do could be the answer to your prayers," Donahue added.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro, in whose ward the hall is located, told the board he well knows the kinds of problems his people have faced concerning Montello's functions.

"Normally I'd go with my people," he said. "but I don't think there will be a problem here. I will be there for them if there is a problem, but I think this is a good program and it warrants a six month probationary period ... I promise you that if there is one single problem I will take care of it for you."

Although no license is needed for the request, the board condoned the use and asked Donahue to publicly state that in the event of any problems, he would give the board full authority to close the dances down.

Donahue said he gave the board authority to close the dances in the event of problems.

"I'd close it down myself," he said, "I don't want to be involved with any of (those problems). I work with the church. I'm a Christian."

WEEK OF: April 6

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Leadership is your motto; you're cheerful and optimistic and immensely charming. But you dominate, and find it difficult to compromise. A team approach may bring a pet project to a triumphant conclusion by Fall '89. Unexpected travel opportunities are peppered through late '89, early '90.

AQUARIUS – January 21 - February 19
You're a wealth of ideas this week--the trick is to sort the practical ones from the impractical. Postponement at work may prove a blessing in disguise.

PISCES – February 20 - March 20
Financial delays may be unavoidable for much of this period. Investment ideas require professional assessment. Crafts and creative writing are positively spotlighted.

ARIES – March 21 - April 20
You have new and important insights into an old and difficult problem. Visitors may be more work than anticipated. Weekend offers fine opportunity for spontaneous travel.

TAURUS – April 21 - May 22
Spring cleaning is unexpectedly pleasant thanks to some real discoveries. Travel companion may require some persuasion from you. Financial news-brightener may arrive after weekend.

GEMINI – May 23 - June 21
Rare opportunity opens up for promoting a pet plan. Financial reviews are your highest priority. Inventive spirit is strong, but practical concerns are another matter.

CANCER – June 22 - July 22
Good opportunity may open up for earning spare cash. If involved in any partnership arrangement, this is a key week for outlining shared goals. Watch tendency to be everyone's crying shoulder.

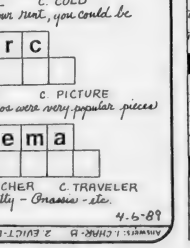
LEO – July 23 - August 22
This is a choice week for taking on a new challenge. Unhappy friend becomes more optimistic thanks to your influence. Family reunion includes news of a celebration.

VIRGO – August 23 - September 22
Touchy friend is harder than ever to please, while loved one is determined to pamper you. Arrangements involving shared finances demand a careful evaluation.

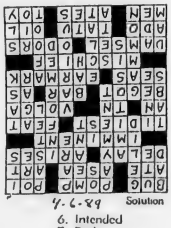
LIBRA – September 23 - October 22
Watch tendency to procrastinate; with proper organization you really can meet those deadlines. Supervisor is in a more receptive mood. Volunteer assignment brings intangible rewards.

SCORPIO – October 23 - November 21
Don't be shy when it comes to tooting your own horn; indeed, there's much to toot about through this week. Apply your sound business ideas to your domestic environment.

SAGITTARIUS – November 22 - December 22
Relative is much easier to please, and opinionated colleage is more open-minded. You may not realize it, but your influence has played a major role in both these happy situations.



CAPRICORN – December 23 - January 20
Practical Capricorn is more daring and even playful. Spring fever? Perhaps, but enjoy it while it lasts. Sports and entertainment events are positively spotlighted.



BORN THIS WEEK
April 6th, composer Andre Previn; 7th, host David Frost; 8th, actor-diplomat John Gavin; 9th, actress Michael Learned; 10th, actor Max Von Sydow; 11th, actor Joel Grey; 12th, actress Ann Miller.

Music Theatre Dance Company To Start In May

The Music Theatre Dance Company, a dance arts program designed for students from age three and a half through high school, will open in Milton in May.

Directed by Lana Lowe-Bowlby, professional choreographer, and Bob Bowlby, a professional musician and a teacher at the Berklee College of Music in Boston, the Music Theatre Dance Company will offer programs in stage and film dance from the 1920's through present day. The program will include instruction in jazz, tap, theatre ballet and creative music theatre dance movement.

The company is offering a 12-week summer program beginning in May and continuing through July, which will conclude with a demonstration performance to introduce the company to the community.

There are plans to open a branch studio in Quincy in September.

For further information and a complete brochure, call 786-1632.

'Fowl Play' At Wollaston

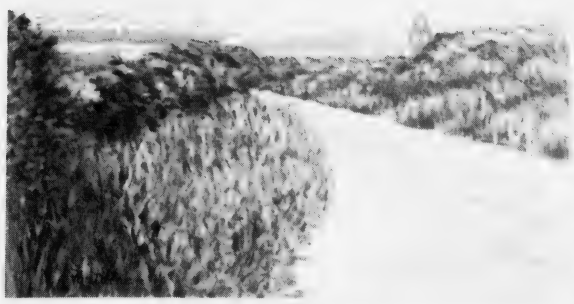
Quincy Choral Society Concert At ENC

The 65-member Quincy Choral Society will present their spring concert at Cove Auditorium, Eastern Nazarene College, Wollaston on Sunday, April 23, at 4 p.m.

The program features music by American composers and includes "In the Beginning," and "Stomp Your Foot" by Aaron Copland. Other selections are by composers Leonard Bernstein, Charles E. Ives and Randall Thompson, as well as "Twentiana," a choral montage of songs from the 1920's era arranged by Hawley Ades.

John B. Nichols is the director, and Carla Erichiello, the accompanist.



Tickets at $5 are available from Choral Society members, and at $3 for senior citizens and students, and may also be purchased at the door. Those interested in more information may call 328-5970.

Braintree Choral Society Concert At Point Congregational

Tickets will soon go on sale for Braintree Choral Society's final concert for the season, to be presented Sunday, April 30, at 4 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, Washington St., Quincy, with Larry Kamp, conductor.

Included will be works of master composers Franz Schubert, William Byrd, Felix Mendelssohn, and G.F. Handel. Soloists will be Laurel MacKenzie, soprano, and E. Ione Lockwood, mezzo, with Timothy Hughes, guest organist.

Further information may be obtained by calling 843-2160 or 843-1880. Tickets will be $5 for adults and $4 for Seniors and students. They can be obtained from any member of BCS or by contacting Marie Hoitt at 337-8915. They will also be on sale at the door on the day of the performance.

"ROAD TO THE BEACH" is among the paintings of E. Joseph Fontaine, Jr. being exhibited at Kennedy Studios, 1563 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Fontaine Reception Art Exhibit At Kennedy's

Kennedy Studios, 1563 Hancock St., Quincy, will host a wine and cheese reception for artist, E. Joseph Fontaine Saturday April 8 from 2 to 5 p.m.

Fontaine will be on hand for a signing of limited edition prints. All are welcome.

His exhibit will continue through April 29.

Fontaine, an impressionistic painter in the tradition of the Boston School, expresses his love for American and European impressionism through his successful union of light and color.

Fontaine not only studied art, but also has a degree from Harvard Law School. He traveled extensively in Europe and lived in Italy for a number of years studying the masters of European painting with particular emphasis on the plein-air painters.

Fontaine is primarily a landscape painter, alternating his time between his studios in Wellesley, and South Kingstown, R.I., so that many of his works depict local Boston scenes and coastal subjects. Featured in this show will be a number of beach gardens and Boston scenes.

Listed in "Who's Who in American Art" and "Art in America" Fontaine is a frequent prize winner who's works are found in a number of public and private collections. The artist has a long list of one-man shows and exhibits regularly in numerous galleries throughout the country.

Gallery hours for the Fontaine exhibit are 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and Sundays 12-6 p.m.

Diet and Cancer 'Medical Watch' Topic

The relationship between diet and cancer will be the topic on Quincy Community Television's new health and wellness program "Medical Watch" to air tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. on Channel 3.

Program guests will be Dr. Paul Musto, a staff oncologist at Quincy Hospital and a member of the American Cancer Society's Quincy-Milton Chapter Board of Directors, and Grace Chesley, the hospital's chief dietician.

Host Libbie Payne and the guests will try to answer questions concerning the link between diet and cancer. Are there foods that can reduce the risk of getting cancer? What things should people avoid? What does "all natural" of food labels really mean?

This episode of "Medical Watch" will be rerun Thursday, April 13 at 7 p.m. on Channel 3.

The topic for May's program will be "Arthritis: It's Not Just An Elderly Disease."

CITY OF QUINCY
IN COUNCIL

ORDER NO. 62
ORDERED: February 21, 1989

Be it Ordained by the City Council that the Revised Ordinances of the City of Quincy, 1976, as amended are further amended as follows:

After Chapter 2 - Administration, Article XI Health Commissioner, Section 65 Powers and Duties, add the following new section:

Section 65A - permit for the removal of cesspool, septic, sewage or other offensive substances, including sewerage and sludge.

No person shall remove or transport cesspool, septic, sewage or other offensive substances through or across any street of the City without first obtaining a permit from the Health Commissioner of the City as provided by M.G.L. Chapter 111, Section 31 and 310 CMR 15.19(1). For the purposes of this section, sewage, sewage sludge or any by-products of its treatment shall be deemed to be an offensive substance.

Prior to the issuance of any permit, the Health Commissioner shall refer such application to the City Council, Traffic Commission, Commissioner of Public Works and Chief of Police. All such departments shall have sixty (60) days in which to make recommendations. The City Council shall conduct a public hearing on such application within forty-five (45) days of receipt of such application.

The Health Commissioner may issue such permit if it is found that the applicant will not adversely affect the public health, safety and welfare and that all reasonable steps will be taken to minimize any objections raised.

The Health Commissioner may place reasonable restrictions upon any permit issued.

Any party transporting such substances within the City under such permit, shall have the permit in their possession for inspection by any Quincy Police Officer or Health Department Agent.

The fine for violation of this ordinance shall not exceed $300. Any enforcing person may, in their discretion dispose of any violation of this ordinance in the non-criminal manner provided by M.G.L. c.40, Sec. 21D, in which case the fine shall be $300.

PRAYER OF APPLICATION TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, who light all roads so that I can attain my goal, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and who in all instances of my life are with me; I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you and even in spite of all material illusion, I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Repeat this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the favor will be granted even though it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after favor is granted without mentioning the favor.

. . . And The Name Is: 'Screamers'

Gregory Hanley, 23, of Quincy, will open his new ice cream shop at the Quincy Fair Mall, 1591 Hancock St., on Thursday, April 13. And, thanks to his recent "name the store" contest, he now has something to put over the doorway.

Out of about 100 entries suggesting names for the store, Hanley chose the name 'Screamers, submitted by Jane Arena of Hingham.

Hanley said that the name was "in a dead heat with "Cinema Scoops," one of many entries which tied in with the shop's proximity to the movie theaters at the mall.

"We actually had to flip a coin," Hanley said, "but 'Screamers won."

Arena will now choose a tram of four friends to compete in an ice cream eating contest to be held at 'Screamers the Saturday after its opening. Her team will compete with a team of Quincy officials now being organized at City Hall. Whichever team can consume the most ice cream in three minutes will be awarded $100 in gift certificates to the store. If the City team wins, the money will be donated to a local charity, Hanley said.

'Screamers will feature 16 flavors of homemade ice cream, Columbo frozen yogurt, and Winfrey's Old English fudge, as well as specialty items and small gift ideas.

The shop will be open daily from 11 a.m. to midnight.

Helping By Hopping

ATHERTON HOUGH SCHOOL morning kindergarten class helped raise more than $1075 from a "Hop-N-ing" fundraiser to benefit the Easter Seals. Children solicited pledges of pennies per hop and were given two minutes to hop while an adult counted. Some children completed more than 300 hops. Those in the morning class who contributed are, Peter Turowski and Chelsea Anderson, holding the check; front row, from left, Jamie Ryan, Michael Deery, Adam Phung, Sarah Wilson, Kellee Conley, Joseph Peters, Joseph King and Cara Cullen. Second row, Caitlyn Flaherty, Jean McCarthy, James Cashing, Brian Chenette, Thomas Sullivan, Michelle Shea, Pamela Sullivan, Jennifer Bianchi. Back row, Jennifer Conley, Michael Neuman, Kristopher Ayer, Jayme O'Neil, Mark Gibbons, Ryan Doyle, Kristin Chenette. Missing is Shaun Brennion.

BFI Promises Solutions To Southwest Area Complaints

Positive solutions by Browning-Ferris Industries to complaints were promised at a recent meeting with the South West Quincy Community Relations Committee held at Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

BFI officials agreed to meet with their drivers to discuss alternate truck routes, as well as the importance of driving at safe speeds in the highly residential neighborhood.

The work begins at an early hour to avoid problems with traffic, and to offset the smell, the trucks are thoroughly washed once a week.

As for the condition of the streets, such as potholes, BFI indicated the City will be paving when the City receives asphalt.

To offset the litter problem in the area, BFI offered to supply both men and equipment to clean and sweep the neighborhood with direction given to them by residents.

Questions or comments may be given to BFI by calling 471-7900, or to Cindy Silveira, coordinator, South West Quincy Community Relations Committee at 770-2227. The committee meets the last Tuesday of each month to discuss community concerns.

McCauley Says:

Sludge Law Suit 'Premature' Until After Review

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city will wait to see whether the proposed permanent sludge treatment plant in Quincy is approved by the state Department of Environmental Affairs before deciding to fight the proposal in court, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday.

Noting that the decision to locate the sludge facility at the Fore River Shipyard is presently being reviewed, McCauley said a law suit at this time would be "premature."

"The review process is underway now. It's not the right time (for a law suit). It's premature."

The decision by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority in February to locate the sludge facility at the shipyard is presently being reviewed by the Massachusetts Environmental Policy Agency (MEPA).

During this review process, the public is able to comment on the MWRA's proposal. This review could end next month or continue until the fall, City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie said.

According to MacRitchie, the review process will end once the Secretary for Environmental Affairs issues a certificate for or against the operation of the sludge facility. He pointed out that this certificate could include conditions which the MWRA would have to address, thus opening up the public comment period again and delaying the final decision.

Until that final decision is made, McCauley said filing a lawsuit will remain a viable option.

"When the public comment period is completed, we have reserved the right to file a lawsuit. Some are saying we should do it now but now is not the right time," the mayor said.

"At a certain point, Quincy will have to make a decision. It could be as early as May or as late as October.

"We feel it's a little premature to go to court now. We are assembling information that we could use (in court) at this time," McCauley said.

Legal fees resulting from a law suit would have to be paid for from city funds, the mayor pointed out. "Litigation services are not reimbursed by the state," he said.

Filing and winning a lawsuit is also a matter of timing, MacRitchie said.

"If you're going to file a case, you have to do it at the right time.

"If you do it too early, you get thrown out of court. If you do it too late, you get thrown out too," he said.

The idea for a lawsuit against the MWRA surfaced again after a group of Quincy officials visited a sludge treatment operation in Georgia last Friday.

The delegation consisted of state representatives Robert Cerasoli, Steve Tobin and Michael Morrissey, city councillors Ted DeCristofaro and Michael Cheney, mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell and MacRitchie.

After inspecting a pelletizing plant and compositing facility in Clayton County, Georgia, the group generally agreed the pelletizing operation was the lesser of two evils.

Odor-wise, the officials said there was little, if any, discernible smell from the pelletizing plant while the odor emanating from the composting facility was strong and "horrendous."

MacRitchie said the composting odor forced him to keep his mouth closed and caused his eyes to water.

The MWRA's proposal at the shipyard includes operating two facilites, one that would convert sludge into fertilizer pellets and the other would turn the material into compost.

Meetings On Paper Recycling Start April 19

Six public meetings, one in each of the city's wards, will be held the last two weeks of April to educate residents about Quincy's paper recycling program which will begin May 1.

Residents interested in learning more about recycling or in helping to promote the program are encouraged to attend. Residents may attend any one or more of the meetings, regardless of where they live.

Each of the six meetings will be hosted by its respective ward councillor. Also attending will be the Quincy Recycling Committee, the Department of Public Works and the city's recycling consultant, Alternative Resources, Inc.

Meetings scheduled are:

- Ward 1, Tuesday, April 25 at 7 p.m. at the Hougha Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., hosted by Councillor Michael Cheney.
- Ward 2, Wednesday, April 19, 7 p.m., Fore River Club House, 16 Nevada Rd., Councillor Ted DeCristofaro.
- Ward 3, Wednesday, April 26, 7 p.m., Council Chamber, City Hall, Councillor Lawrence Chretien.
- Ward 4, Thursday, April 27, 7 p.m., Council Chamber, City Hall, Councillor James Sheets.
- Ward 5, Thursday, April 20, 7:30 p.m., Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., Councillor Charles Phelan.
- Ward 6, Wednesday, April 19, 7 p.m., Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., (behind North Quincy High), Councillor Thomas Nutley.

According to Chretien, "Paper recycling has the potential to save Quincy over $100,000, but it all depends on public participation. Therefore, we are having neighborhood meetings to answer any questions people might have."

"We are also very much looking for people who would like to help spread the good word about recycling. Anyone who wants to join the Recycling Committee's public education task force is most welcome," he said.

"Eventually, we would like to have block captains in every neighborhood," Chretien added.

McGrath Seeks More Local Aid From State

Councillor Stephen McGrath, chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, has forwarded to the state legislative delegation his resolve requesting additional local aid for the cities and towns.

McGrath introduced his resolve at last week's council meeting. The resolve calls for increases in local aid to the cities and towns to continue to provide services particularly in the areas of education, police and fire safety.

In the past, Quincy has relied heavily on the generous allocation of local aid by the legislature.

Particularly in the upcoming fiscal year, Quincy will need even more assistance from the state in order to maintain proper levels of service in the areas of education, police and fire safety.

McGrath requests that in the budget deliberations additional local aid be allocated to cities and towns in order to meet critical budget needs.

Comer To Speak At Houghs Neck

John P. ("Jake") Comer of Quincy, immediate Past National Commander of the American Legion, will speak at Tuesday's, April 18, open meeting of the Houghs Neck Community Council at 8 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.

Comer, who has spoken at schools and civic meetings, will describe and show slides of his travels in the United States and abroad during his 1988 year in office.

He will be introduced by Tom Timcoe State Commander of the Sons of the Legion.

Members of the Houghs Neck American Legion Post and Auxiliary will be guests.

One Month Trial Police Detail For Cinema

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday continued for one month a hearing concerning conditions at Quincy Cinema Corporation, doing business as Entertainment Cinemas, 1585 Hancock St.

William Haney, cinema manager, was before the board last week on a complaint about groups of youth congregating outside the establishment. The board said then that a police detail would have to be hired for the cinemas but did not determine who would pay for it.

Tuesday the board told Haney that he would have to pay for the detail for a probationary period of one month to see if conditions improved during that time. Chairman John Gillis told Haney that the detail would be required only on Friday and Saturday nights and on the nights before a no-school day.

Haney told the board he is willing to pay for the detail for one month, saying that he is anxious to clear the problem up. "I'm all for it," he said.

Police Chief Francis Finn said that there would be a city-paid police officer on beat-duty in the area every night, but that the officer would not be able to stay outside the cinema exclusively.

Finn also said that the MBTA has agreed to remove the bus stop from outside the cinema in an effort to eliminate the bus stop being used as an excuse for kids to congregate outside the establishment. Finn said that the removal of a public telephone in the area is still under consideration.

After a period of one month Haney will come back before the board for an assessment of any change in the conditions at the cinema and to determine if the police detail is still needed.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted a request from Carol A. Block for the Woodward School, Hancock St., for three one-day all alcoholic licenses for three performances of a play to be held Friday through Sunday, April 14, 15, and 16.
- Granted a request from Richard C. Barrett of Peter's Pence, Inc., doing business as The Tent, 305 Victory Rd., for four coin-operated basketball machines. There are presently no coin operated games at the establishment.
- Granted a request from Robert Palmer of Palmer Realty Trust for a license to store and repair 8 trucks and to store 3,000 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of trucks and 4000 gallons of gasoline in underground tanks. The license was granted pending approval of plans by the fire, and building departments.

Hospital Board Meeting April 18

The Quincy Hospital Board of Managers Finance Committee will meet Tuesday, April 18 at 6:30 p.m. followed by a Board of Managers meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Dennis F. Ryan Board Room.

On Georgia Inspection
Quincy Delegation Finds:

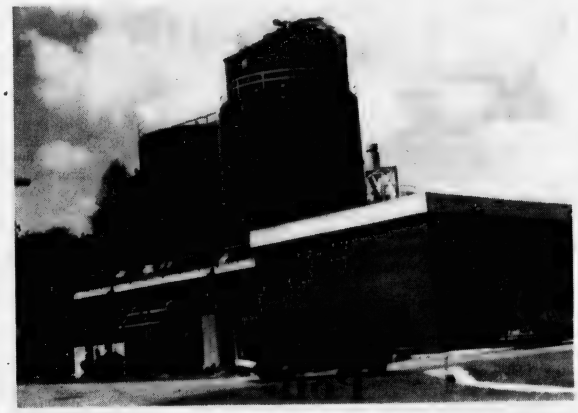
Composting Sludge: It Stinks

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

After inspecting a sludge treatment facility in Georgia last week with their eyes and their noses, a group of Quincy officials are determined to stop a similar plant from being built at the Fore River Shipyard.

The Quincy delegation, consisting of state representatives Robert Cerasoli, Steve Tobin and Michael Morrissey, city councillors Ted DeCristofaro and Michael Cheney, city solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie and mayoral candidate Peter O'Donnell, toured a sludge treatment plant in Clayton County, Georgia last Friday.

MacRitchie is the city's new representative to the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority Board of Directors. O'Connell was the only mayoral candidate to participate in the tour.



The officials inspected two facilities, one that pelletizes sludge into fertilizer and the other which converts the material into compost. After taking the tours, members of the group generally agreed odors from the composting plant were unacceptable while the pelletizing facility operated with far less odor.

The delegation visited the Georgia plant to get a better understanding of how an actual sludge treatment facility operates. The members are concerned about the MWRA's proposal to build and operate a pelletizing and composting facility at the Quincy shipyard.

The Quincy operation has many potential effects on life in Quincy, among them odors from the plant, declining property values and truck traffic.

Upon their return to Quincy, officials said they were upset by the strong odor at the Clayton County composting facility. The

ANNUITIES
(Part 1)

When someone is planning ahead for retirement, the last thing they want to worry about is the security of their money. In order to have this security, they might enter into a contract with an insurance company which is the only institution that markets annuities.

Through contract, the insurance company will guarantee that your cash will grow at a current rate of interest that will be adjusted each year to keep pace with the general interest market. They will also guarantee a minimum interest rate that can never go below your contracted minimum.

Another guarantee that is found in most annuities is the ability to make cash withdrawals, up to a certain percentage of your cash value, without any penalties. If you should withdraw an amount in excess of the guaranteed percentage there is a scheduled penalty, and each insurance company sets its own schedule.

The IRS permits a deferral of taxes on the annual growth until the moneys are withdrawn. In most cases this is done at retirement when your tax bracket is expected to be much lower than it is today.

At Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. our insurance professionals are happy to discuss the many protection options available today. Please give us a call at 471-6200 or stop by our office at 1060 Hancock Street in Quincy.

Chuckie Hughes Day

Tired of all the newspaper headlines and the 11 o'clock news stories about young street punks involved in knives, guns or drugs?

Well, here's a nice change of pace for you:

Thursday, April 20 will be "Chuckie Hughes Day in Quincy."

HUGHES

Mayor Francis McCauley is going to proclaim the day in honor of the young freshman star goalie who played a major role in Harvard winning the NCAA national hockey title.

His Honor, who proudly notes that Chuckie hails from Houghs Neck, plans also to hold a reception for him in his office at 2 p.m. that afternoon.

Young Hughes' father, Charles, is a Boston police officer, and his mother, Janice, a customer services representative at the former Quincy Cooperative Bank, now The Cooperative Bank.

Chuckie is Quincy home-grown. He attended Atherton Hough and Broadmeadows School and then went to Catholic Memorial where he played on the state championship hockey team.

He is a product of the Quincy Youth Hockey Association where he was taught -- and obviously well learned -- the fundamentals about goaltending.

Harvard defeated Minnesota 4-3 in dramatic overtime at St. Paul Minnesota to bring home the Crimson's first NCAA championship in any sports.

Chuckie, who had made some spectacular stops during regulation time, stopped Minnesota cold in the dramatic overtime.

McCAULEY

"All of us in Quincy can rightfully be proud of Chuckie," says McCauley. "He's only 18 but has a lot of poise. He's bright and he's articulate."

And, McCauley adds: "He's a real nice kid."

□

MAYORAL candidate Steve McGrath will open his campaign headquarters at the end of the month at Hancock and School Streets., Quincy Center, the so-called "lucky location."

McGRATH

Winning candidates who have had their campaign headquarters there include Mayor Francis McCauley (three times), Congressman Brian Donnelly, U.S. Senator John Kerry and State Senator Paul Harold.

The winning streak was snapped last year, however, when Congressional challenger Michael Gilleran moved in and was clobbered by incumbent Brian Donnelly in the election.

□

AND, JAMES SHEETS will open his headquarters Saturday, at 10 a.m. at 92 Washington St., a block away from the Thomas Crane Public Library, announces Thomas Koch, chairman of the Sheets Committee.

SHEETS

The public is invited to attend the opening and meet Sheets and his family.

Coffee and danish will be served from 10 a.m. to noon.

□

McCAULEY ALWAYS CONSIDERED the Hancock St.-School St. headquarters a lucky charm and the Quincy Neighborhood Club another one.

He made his campaign kickoff announcements and held his victory celebrations at the latter.

O'CONNELL

Peter O'Connell, who is running for mayor apparently thinks there may be something to that political magic about the Neighborhood Club. He has it booked for the night of Sept. 12 -- primary election night.

□

TIM CAHILL kicks off his campaign for re-election as a city councillor at-large tonight (Thursday) at a 7 to 9 p.m. reception at the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club, 252 Washington St.

CAHILL

Co-chairman are Anthony Falco and Frederick Smith, Jr.

□

KELLY

NEXT TIME YOU see Leo Kelly, call him "Professor." The former city councillor will be the instructor at a special course at Quincy Junior College on "Planning For Environmental Awareness" on Tuesday nights.

The course starts April 25.

□

QUINCY NATIVE Rich Hebert is scheduled to sing the Star Spangled Banner in Dodger stadium when the Dodgers play the Cincinatti Reds April 17.

HEBERT

Hebert, a headliner in "Cats" in 1984 has lately been on television and in other state productions. He's the son of Bill Hebert and Ann Hebert of Quincy.

□

JUDY BRAMS of Atlantic St., North Quincy will officially enter the School Committee race at an 8 to midnight campaign kickoff reception Friday, May 5 at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall, Hancock St. and Hollis Ave.

Tickets are $10 and may be obtained by calling Beverly Cullen, 328-1756. They will also be available at the door.

Mrs. Brams would be the third official candidate. The other two: Michael Preble and Ron Mariano.

□

STORK REPORT: Joseph Shea, candidate for the Ward 4 City Council seat and his wife, the former Josephine Brillo are parents of a daughter, Kathrine Emily, born March 29 at Quincy Hospital. Weight: 6 pounds, 12 ounces.

Mom, in case you don't know, is with Sheriff Clifford Marshall's deputy sheriff's staff.

New Incentive To Protect Flood Prone Property With Insurance

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey has issued a notice regarding a recent development with federal disaster relief legislation which provides new incentive to thoroughly protect flood prone facilities with flood insurance.

An amendment to the Disaster Relif Act of 1974, signed into law last November, eliminates the "first bite free" concept. Under the "first bite free," recipients of federal disaster assistance have not been penalized for failing to insure their flood prone facilities prior to a major flood disaster.

Instead, they have been able to wait for the disaster declaration and the subsequent federal assistance before having to buy the flood insurance.

As of May 22, there will no longer be a "first bite free" for these structures and their contents located in a special flood hazard area identified by the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) for at least one year at the time of the major disaster.

The amendment stipulates that where such facilities are damaged by flooding, the otherwise eligible federal disaster assistance must be reduced by the maximum amount of insurance proceeds which would have been payable had they been covered by flood insurance.

As a result, a flood plain building and its contents must be protected up to the value of the building and its contents or the maximum amount available under the NFI's standard flood insurance policy, whichever is less, in order to qualify for full disaster assistance.

On Free Cash: 'Don't Kill The Messenger'

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

Mayor Francis McCauley has been criticized by some groups for not using the so-called "Free Cash" for schools, fire, police, etc. In discussing free cash with people, it is apparent that many do not understand or do not want to understand the nature of free cash. It is exactly the same as a family's savings account.

Since a city does not receive its revenues in a consistent, even stream (excise and real estate taxes, and state aid), but must meet its expenses daily, it needs what a business would call 'working capital,' money to operate with when the revenue stream does not match the expense stream.

In 1982 Quincy borrowed about $45,000,000 dollars short term to meet its current expenses. Free cash was in the RED by almost $11,000,000. Interest costs for this borrowing totaled $1,600,000. Mayor McCauley knowing this was a terrible waste worked hard to turn around the free cash account to where it now has a surplus of almost $5,000,000 (April 4, 1989).

The McCauley Administration's financial policies have helped to raise the city's credit rating three levels, saving millions on future interest costs. The city did not borrow any money either this year or last year because there was free cash available to finance City operations.

Communities all around our state, hard hit by Proposition 2½, are laying off people and curtailing municipal services. This is not so in Quincy because of sound fiscal management. $5,000,000 in free cash sounds like a substantial amount, but with a budget of $118,000,000, it represents only 4.2% of the total budget. This is the equivalent of someone making $30,000 a year and having $1,300 in the bank.

Do you think that those cities with little free cash would have funded, and quickly remedied, the Central Middle School emergency which cost over $700,000? Do you think the State, which is spending more than it takes in, would have bailed us out?

Free cash, like a savings account, should be used for working capital emergencies and budget shortfalls, not for recurring expenses like teachers salaries. It would be irresponsible to buy a home and deplete your savings to pay the monthly mortgage, eventually you would have zero savings and you would lose the house. As in a well-run household, you first determine how much money you have then you spend it accordingly. A City must be run in the same manner.

Mayor Frank McCauley's message has been that the city needs to spend more money for education, Police, Fire, etc. This is why in 1983, Mayor McCauley asked the City Council for a Proposition 2½ override, and why in 1987 he asked the City Council for a sewer user fee. Where were his free cash critics then? Most were absent from those meetings. To the Mayor's critics, some of whom are my good neighbors and friends, "Don't Kill The Messenger," listen and understand the message and let us all work for a better, but fiscally responsible City.

Fond Quincy Memories of Marathon

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

Backward, turn backward, O Time in thy flight, and permit the few antiquated Quincyites extant who remember — to recapture the thrill of Quincy's one bright, shining hour in Marathon history.

A stunning upset that focused the attention of the distance-running world on our "City of Presidents" seven decades ago, when two running mates and bosom pals from West Quincy plodded across the finish line one-two in the 1919 version of the Patriots' Day grind in Boston.

Carl W.A. Linder, 29, a pattern maker at Fore River shipyard, broke the tape across the Exeter Street finish line of the B.A.A. Marathon in two hours, 29 minutes and 13 seconds. Sort of sluggish by today's fast-paced standards, but a clear-cut victory nonetheless.

And, for frosting on the Quincy cake, diminutive Willie Wick, 31 and a baker, and a fellow member of the Hurja A.C. with Linder, pounded home in second place, about a minute later.

To make it a long-to-be-remembered event locally, the only other Quincy entries in the endurance contest that started at high noon in Hopkinton, also turned in sparkling performances. For Henry Kanto wound up 10th and Otto Alenius finished 23rd. Ironically, Linder had been rejected by the U.S. Army for duty in World War I because of (get this!) flat feet! Interestingly, both Linder and Wick trained-by proxy-under the guidance of a professional Finnish runner, Willie Kolehmainen, who mailed them daily instructions from the "old country." And did that unique system ever pay off!

A Commendation For Local House Delegation

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

The Weymouth, Quincy, and Braintree delegation of the House of Representatives achieved unprecedented success during the recent budget debate on matters of tremendous concern to their communities, and their constituents should know of their accomplishments.

I write specifically of Representatives Robert B. Ambler of Weymouth, Robert A. Cerasoli of Weymouth and Quincy, Michael W. Morrissey and Arthur Stephen Tobin of Quincy, and Suzanne M. Bump of Braintree.

During the 10 days that the House debated this year's budget, there were close to three hundred amendments offered. Due to the fiscal constraints confronting the state, only a small number of these were approved. Collectively, these Legislators, through hard work and effective obbying, were successful in convincing their colleagues to support several amendments they offered to the budget from the House floor.

One amendment would require that the Massachusetts Water Resources Authoriy (MWRA) relocate its administrative offices to the Quincy Shipyard. As your readers may be aware, the MWRA, with the support of Governor Dukakis and Boston Mayor Ray Flynn, favored relocating its headquarters to Roxbury at a cost of $52 million, $26 million more than it would cost to relocate to the Shipyard.

The House approved to additional amendments which would directly assist Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree in the continuing effort to oppose the siting of a hazardous waste treatment facility in Braintree. One of these amendments would specifically earmark a $300,000 appropriation to fund technical assistance to these communities to effectively contest the efforts of Clean Harbors, Inc. to construct such a facility. In conjunction with this amendment, the legislators were also successful in attaching language to the budget which would suspend the Clean Harbors' permit review process when this funding is depleted.

Representatives Ambler, Bump, Cerasoli, Morrissey and Tobin did an outstanding job for their communities during the budget debate and should be congratulated for their effort.

Not Everyone Has Fallen For MWRA's Rhetoric

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

It's a really sorry day when an environmental group chastises U.S. Congressmen Barney Frank and Brian Donnelly for representing the interests of their constituents. In case anyone has forgotten that's what politicians are elected to do.

No one reprimands Senate President William Bulger for protecting his district by opposing the use of Spectacle Island for a sludge management facility. But woe is Walpole for steadfastly opposing a grit and screenings landfill in its own community.

It seems to me that the MWRA is more effective at conducting publicity campaigns than making sound siting choices. Save the Harbor/Save the Bay is convinced that the MWRA siting process has been fair.

What is fair about a process which resulted in the selection of three sites out of 12 in the Town of Walpole? Given these odds, how can any intelligent person not realize that Walpole entered the process at a distinct disadvantage?

From the onset of the Boston Harbor clean up, the MWRA has minimized opposition by persuading the media and the legislature that they are following due process. As we all know, the MWRA has plenty of ratepayers cash to sway public opinion. Is it fair for Walpole to drain its coffers to compete?

Before anyone else comes to the MWRA's defense, I suggest that they talk to any citizen in Walpole or Quincy and find out their side of the story. It won't cost a dime. I am encouraged that Barney Frank and Brian Donnelly have taken the time to do so. Thank God there's someone out there who has not fallen for the MWRA's rhetoric hook, line, and sinker.

'Irregularities' Probe Asked

April 13-19 1965 24 Years Ago

City Council President Jospeh J. LaRaia and Councillor Francis X. McCauley asked Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa to investigate what they called "reported irregularities" at the John F. Kennedy Health Center.

They suggested that the Mayor "determine the necessity of the statistician having the use of a city-owned car and the use of a home phone being paid for by the city."

TO STUDY BRETT DAM

The Metropolitan District Commission requested that a proposal by Rep. Joseph E. Brett (D-Quincy) for a dam and locks on the Neponset River be referred to an engineering study.

John J. Beades, executive assistant to MDC Commissioner Howard Whitmore, said the MDC generally favors the idea of developing the river but would like to see the dam in a different location.

Brett proposed that the dam be built at the site of the railroad bridge while the MDC thought it should be a mile downstream at Commercial Point.

Diana Principato Benefit April 15 At Bryan Post

On August 3, 1988, Diana Garrity Principato was struck by an uninsured drunk driver while walking across Sea St. in Quincy. She was paralyzed from the neck down and left without an income or an insurance settlement.

A separated mother of three young daughters, Diana is now struggling to put her life back together. She is receiving daily physical therapy at Braintree Hospital in hopes to regain some body movement, and living with a childhood friend, Michelle Degust of Quincy. Her children are being cared for by their father and grandparents while Diana strives to get back together with them.

Diana's family has found an apartment for her which will accommodate her wheelchair, but she will need to hire full time help in order to care for her daughters. Her friends have repeatedly come to her aid to help raise money for the cause.

Sheena's Restaurant in Abington, a former employer of Diana's, recently held a fund raising event for her at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Abington.

Docktor Pet Center in South Shore Plaza, where she was employed full time at the time of the accident, has also donated toward a raffle for Diana. Many other stores and restaurants at the Plaza donated toward the raffle as well.

Another fundraiser will be held for her benefit Saturday, April 15 at the Bryan VFW Post in Quincy. The buffet dinner-dance will be held from 7 p.m. to midnight.

Disc Jockey Ras Kelley has donated his time for the event, and Purity Supreme Supermarkets have donated the food.

Tickets are $15 per person and all proceeds will benefit Diana in her hopes to get back together with her family.

For ticket information, call the Friends of Diana Committee at (508) 586-5834 and ask for Cheryl or Bill. Tickets are also available at Docktor Pet Center in Braintree.

Health Quiz

Can Food Fight Disease?

True or False?

- Hot peppers help cure colds. Onions are good for the heart.
- Fish can lower high blood pressure.
- A cup of beans a day cuts cholesterol by 20 percent.
- Carrots can slash the risk of lung cancer in half even among former heavy smokers.
- Cabbage wards off colon cancer.
- Coffee can fight depression.
- Garlic revs up your immune system.

All the above are true, according to a new book, THE FOOD PHARMACY by medically oriented nutrition expert Jean Carper.

"Scientists are finding amazing medicines in foods," says Carper. "Knowing which foods work and how much of each you need to eat can help you to treat and prevent certain diseases."

Live A Little With Red Tart Cherries

One of the most colorful and tasty fruits for brightening up your cooking is red tart cherries. Cherries lend flavor, color, texture, and a gourmet touch to any menu. For nutritional value they contain significant amounts of Vitamin A, as well as potassium and Vitamin C. Their deep red color, tart taste, and versatility make cherries a favorite ingredient for any dish. From oriental stir fries, salads, and crepes to topping for cheesecake, ice cream, or plain yogurt, cherries will help you "Live a Little."

With cherries you can prepare a simple dessert for the family or an elegant finish to a fancy dinner party. Have fun and design your own cherry creation or send for this delicious Black Forest Cake recipe, made simply with chocolate cake mix, whipped cream, and cherry filling and topping. Also try these Cherry Sour Cream Tortes which are quick and easy but look and taste devine. And what could be more delicious than cheesecake topped with cherry filling and topping. (Add a teaspoon of almond flavoring to the cherries for extra pizazz!)

Let your imagination come up with other creative and exciting uses for cherries, such as flaming Cherries Jubilee, spicy cherry wine sauce served on roasted turkey, or cherry filling added to brownie mix for a moist, chewy cherry brownie. Cherry filling and topping goes easily over pound cake, angel food cake, Belgian waffles, and pancakes.

Red tart cherries are grown primarily in the Great Lakes States, where these large bodies of water maintain a more consistent climate for the temperamental cherry trees. The cherries are harvested during July and August and immediately frozen or canned for cherry filling and topping. Bakeries and food service institutions use tart cherries for making pies, tarts, danishes, and coffeecakes.

For a taste-tempting recipe brochure, including this magnificent Black Forest Cake, send to the New York Cherry Growers Association, Dept. NA, P.O. Box 350, Fishers, NY 14453.

Boston Landmarks Topic For Historical Society

A program entitled "New Life For Old Boston" will be featured as part of the "Quincy Remembers" lecture to be presented by the Quincy Historical Society, Wednesday, April 19 at 1:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

Speaker is Pauline Chase-Horrell, chairman of the Boston Landmarks Commission.

She will discuss recent efforts in the preservations of famous landmarks and will include a number of slides of well-known and not-so-well-known structures and locations.

The lecture is open to the public.

Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

'Love and Letting Go' Workshop at Health Center

A workshop entitled "Love and Letting Go" will be held Tuesday, April 25 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the South Shore Mental Health Center, 460 Quincy Ave., third floor conference room.

Sponsored by Family Support Services for families of the mentally ill, guest speaker will be Virginia Pomeroy, a licensed social worker.

She will discuss setting limits, grieving and why it is important, and knowing how and when to let go of a mentally ill relative from a professional and personal perspective.

The workshop is free and refreshments will be served.

For more information, call Program Coordinator Sonja Kenney at 849-7750, ext. 331.

Fr. Gary Sullivan To Speak At St. John's HNS Communion Breakfast

Fr. Gary Sullivan will be the guest speaker at the annual spring Communion-Breakfast to be held at St. John's Holy Name Society May 6 at 8:30 a.m. in St. John's Church.

Fr. Sullivan is completing his first year as parochial vicar at St. John's Parish. He was born and raised in Lowell and was ordained in 1978. His first parish assignment was in Brockton. In 1983 he was assigned to Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese as Associate Director, North Shore Office.

Fr. Sullivan worked closely with the Archdiocesan Urban Planning Office to help meet the housing and social service needs of homeless families. He secured funding, identified sites, and arranged staffing for three sheltering programs.

He has published his beliefs on such subjects as: "Homelessness and Social Welfare Issues"; "Social Justice and International Affairs"; and comments in the "U.S. Bishops Pastorals (Peace and Economy)."

He received a gubernatorial appointment to the statewide Foster Care Commission in 1986. This was followed in 1987 by a gubernatorial appointment to the Governor's Advisory Committee on

Fr. GARY SULLIVAN

Homelessness. He received a gubernatorial citation for his eforts in behalf of the homeless (including much lobbying to obtain the bare essentials of furniture for these needy families.)

Fr. Sullivan's interest in today's youth dates from the earliest years of his career when he was a Juvenile Probation Officer in the Somerville District Court, through a 1982 appointment as Assistant to the Executive Director of Youth Opportunities Upheld, Inc. in Worcester.

He was also appointed to the Advisory Committee on AIDS for the Massachusetts Catholic Conference of Bishops where he now serves as a consultant on policy and social service needs.

He authored a Religious Education textbook with a high school level topic of "Contemporary Moral Concerns." He revised the guidelines and training program for Eucharistic Ministers.

Fr. Sullivan is also a religious correspondent for radio and television media having been the religious programming and commentator for the Papal Mass on Boston Common in 1979.

Two of his articles as contributing writing to the Pilot have covered; "Liturgy and Worship" and "Lay Ministry."

He has been an instructor for Archdiocesan Workshops on Liturgical Ministries and has been a member of the Archdiocesan Liturgical Commission and Director of Liturgical Ministries for the Archdiocese.

Tickets for the Communion-Breakfast are $3.50 and may be obtained from committee members Fred Fostello, Ed Grilli, Fred Saluti or Frank Daly. Mass will be celebrated in the lower church followed by a catered breakfast in the social hall.

All men of the parish are invited to attend along with their sons and daughters.

'Family Night' April 16 At Houghs Neck Congregational

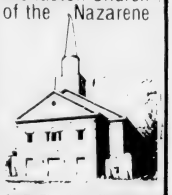
A special dinner and magic program will be held Sunday, April 16 at 4 p.m. at Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

The event is presented by the Church School and the Board of Christian Education, and Gloria M. Brummitt, Church School Superintendent and Gail Freel, chairman of the Board of Christian Education are co-chairmen.

The festivities will begin with a Sunday Night Supper in Fellowship Hall of the Church, prepared by Janet Little, assisted by Susan Catrambone and Susan Carr. There is no charge for the supper; however, families are asked to bring a "finger dessert."

Tarr Magic Productions will present the magic show for everyone's enjoyment and the show will star "Squiggey," the break-dancing rabbit!

The Church School children will make presentations to their guests. Displays of the year's activities will also be enjoyed, with special emphasis on a miniature model Palestinian Village made by the children as well as a video describing it.



In charge of decorations are the Church School Teachers, assisted by Hugh Christie. Room set-up will be accomplished by Martin Gordon and the Boy Scouts, assisted by Kenneth Stone.

Fellowship Sunday At United First Parish Church

This Sunday is Fellowship Sunday at United First Parish Church, "Church of the Presidents," at Quincy Center.

Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, Minister, will deliver a sermon entitled "What is This Church?" during the 10:30 a.m. service.

Valerie Yockey, Soprano, will sing as guest soloist, and Norman Corey, Music Director, will also play organ works by Rheinberger, Walcha and Bach. natalie and Bryan Donovan will serve as ushers.

Following the service, the Church will hold its annual Fellowship Luncheon for members and friends. Wayne and Debbie MacDonald will serve their famous clam chowder. The lunch is the finale of the 1989-90 pledge campaign to help support the church.

Historic First Parish Church, established in 1639, will celebrate its 350th anniversary this Fall. It was the church of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams, whose tombs are in the church along with those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine.

The church is located at 1306 Hancock Street in Quincy Center (opposite City Hall). Church School and child care are provided. For information call 773-1290. Visitors are welcome.

'Taking Risks' Sermon Topic At Bethany

There will be two services Sunday, April 16, in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will give the sermon on "Taking Risks" based on the scriptural texts from the Gospel of Luke 5:1-11 and from Philippians 3:7-14.

Lay scripture readers will be Lois Nordstrom in the chapel and Maria Sanchez in the sanctuary. The associate minister, Rev. Joel F. Huntington, will serve as liturgist at both services.

During the 10 o'clock service the sacrament of Christian Baptism will be administered to John Christopher Murphy, III, son of John Christopher Murphy, Jr., and Joann Stankiewicz Murphy. The godparents will be Russell Murphy and June Johnson.

At the sanctuary service the Chancel Choir, under the direction of the organist, Charles J. Blue, Sr., will sing as the anthem "Lift Thine Eyes to the Mountains" by Mendelssohn and as the offertory "Sing to the Lord a Glad New Song" composed by Cherubini.

The sanctuary service will be broadcast live at ten o'clock over South Shore radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes from pre-school through 8th grade. There are also provisions for babies in the Nursery and for small children in the Toddler's room, under the supervision of Bethany's early childhood coordinator, Pamela Ford Curran.

A fellowship hour will be held in the Allen Parlor beginning at 11 a.m. immediately following the late service.

Individuals and families from the area are most welcome to come and share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

For additional information concerning Bethany's programs and ministries, please contact the church office at 479-7300.

'Connection With God' Squantum First Church Topic

"Connection With The Living God" was the title of the sermon preached Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum by the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor.

It was the third in a series of three Easter sermons preached by Dr. Langevin this year.

The congregation and Chancel Choir were accompanied by Mary Ruth Scott on the organ and Janet Williamson on the piano.

Henry and Pat Sorensen were the greeters, Harry Holmes and Tore Wallin were the ushers, and Doris Longmire and Janet Sumner hosted the Fellowship Hour.

This Sunday the service will begin at 10:30 a.m. Members and friends of the Robert J. Nickerson Legion Post will be visiting the church to commemorate departed comrades. Sunday School and nursery meet during the service. Visitors are always welcome.

John Iacovelli, 73
Headed Adams Mansion Maintenance

A funeral Mass for John "Johnny" Iacovelli, 73, of Quincy, retired chief of maintenance at the Adams Mansion and a prize-winning gardener, was celebrated April 8 at St. John the Baptist Church.

Mr. Iacovelli died April 5 at his home after a brief illness.

He won the state Horticultural Award in 1975 for his work on the gardens of the Adams Mansion, which he maintained for 33 years. Last year, he was honored by the National Park Service for his work as part of the "Take Pride in America Campaign."

He began caring for the 10 acres of grounds as landscape gardener at the historic site in 1949.

Over the years, he received much praise for his work on the grounds. He is credited with turning the estate's greenhouse from a low-production operation to one that grows carefully selected flowers and vegetation.

He retired from the National Park Service in 1982, but continued to operate Johnny's Landscape and to visit the Adams garden often.

At home, he enjoyed growing tomatoes, string beans and tea roses. He called himself an old-fashioned gardener with no schooling.

Mr. Iacovelli's interest in gardening began when he was 13 when he worked for his father, who was also a gardener.

An avid stamp collector, he was a former president of the Granite City Stamp Club and a member of the Quincy Stamp Club.

A lifelong Quincy resident, he attended the Coddington School, Quincy Point Junior High School and went to trade school to become an automobile mechanic.

In his youth, he played football for the Quincy Pirates and the Canal Street Bears.

He was a member of the Torre Dei Passari of Quincy.

D. Scott Deware

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

How many times have you heard the expression, "One has to look at both sides?" The disposition to blame others for our inconveniences and trouble is a common vice.

In any situation where two people have difficulty with each other, it's likely that each is in some way responsible. There is rarely only one side to the picture.

Consequently, it's easy to put the blame on the other person. It's easier to do this because it's hard to face the part we may have played in bringing on the trouble.

The Bible wisely speaks of "going the second mile." Sometimes this is a difficult doctrine for us as human beings to accept, but isn't it a truly practical point of view?

For when we honestly look at the part we played in starting a quarrel and let the other person know we recognize our responsibility in it, the chances are considerable that the other person will let down his defenses. Perhaps then he will be equally ready to agree that he, too, was partly responsible for the difficulty.

Out of such mutual recognition comes a sound basis for working things out amicably . . .

He is survived by his wife, Helen (Lewis) DesRoches; a son, Richard DesRoches of Abington; three daughters, Ann Polemenkos of Texas, and Edith Hughes and Claire DesRoches, both of Quincy; two sisters, Rita Lucciano of North Reading and Olive Kelley, of New Hampshire; and six grandchildren. He was the brother of the late Raymond DesRoches, Earl DesRoches and Gertrude Hottenstein.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Katherine McBurnie, 85

A memorial service for Katherine (Campbell) McBurnie, 85, of Mount Laurel, N.J., formerly of Quincy, a bookkeeper for the Instant Whip Co. of 25 years, was held April 8 at the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Mrs. McBurnie died Feb. 16 in Mount Laurel.

She retired 20 years ago.

Born in Boston, she attended Quincy schools. She lived in Southport, Conn., and North Quincy before moving to Mount Laurel 30 years ago.

Wife of the late Robert McBurnie, she is survived by four sons, Walter McBurnie of Milton, David McBurnie of North Weymouth, Ronald McBurnie of Milton, David McBurnie of North Weymouth, Ronaid McBurnie of Mount Laurel and Robert McBurnie Jr. of Milford, Conn.; two daughters, Pauline Couillard of Danvers and Edith Olson of Fairfield, Conn.; a sister, Gwen Campbell of Randolph; 21 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Burial was private.

Marjorie Kenealy, 86

A funeral service for Marjorie (Bisset) Kenealy, 86, of Quincy, was held Monday at the Lydon Russell Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Mrs. Kenealy, a former secretary for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, died suddenly April 6.

She was born in Scotland and had lived most of her life in Wollaston.

Wife of the late Robert Kenealy, she is survived by a sister, Gertrude Bisset of Scotland; two sisters-in-law, Katherine McInnes and Mary Kenealy, both of Whitman; four nieces, Pauline Trailor of England, Judy Learson of N.H., Alyce Lindahl of Quincy and Cynthia Virusky of Virginia, and many other nieces and nephews.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association.

Candida Cellucci, 62

A funeral Mass for Candida (Gentile) Cellucci, 62, of Quincy, an employee in the dietary department at Quincy Hospital for 18 years before retiring in 1987, was celebrated Tuesday in St. John's Church.

Mrs. Cellucci died April 7 at New England Sinai Hospital in Stoughon after a long illness.

A native of Italy, she moved to Quincy 35 years ago.

She is survived by her husband, Donato Cellucci; two sons, Bruno Cellucci and Renato Cellucci, both of Quincy; three brothers, Donato Gentile of Pennsylvania, Biagio Gentile of New York and Fernando Gentile of Italy; and three sisters, Antonetta Rufo, Lucia Gentile and Marie Salvucci, all of Italy.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Finn Warns Cafe Regarding Three Charges

By JANE ARENA

The License Board took no action Tuesday in a hearing concerning redecorating at Le Disco, Inc., doing business as Chevy's Belair Cafe, 79 Parkingway.

But Police Chief Francis Finn warned that any money spent by the establishment on decorating would have "no bearing" when Chevy's faces charges stemming from three incidents in 1987.

"I don't think they should even be allowed to stay open," Finn said immediately before the hearing.

The 1987 incidents are:

On November 30, 1987, a woman coming from Chevy's, where she had been from 7 p.m. until closing, was seriously beaten after leaving the site. She registered a blood alcohol count of .245, the highest level ever recorded by Quincy police. (.10 is legally drunk).

A 25-year old Scituate man was arrested in Chevy's in 1987 for being intoxicated.

Four 22-year old Quincy men, Matthew Tobin, Timothy F. Tobin, Richard A. Miller, and William P. Marston, were killed in a car crash after leaving the establishment on Thanksgiving morning 1987.

"To sit here and listen to this (request for remodeling) when they're facing serious charges is ludicrous," Finn said, adding that Chevy's had been notified of the charges.

Finn said that the trial process has been slowed because Chevy's had requested information relating to "secret grand jury indictments" which was unobtainable. Finn said that "the information should be freed soon" and that the matter would come to trial.

Atty. Peter Eleey, representing Chevy's at the board, said that he wanted the board to address the redecorating issues at hand and that "we can address the other issues at that time."

Eleey told the board that minor alterations inside the establishment are planned, which would not change the seating capacity.

The board noted that if the seating capacity is unchanged by the alterations, no license or permit is required. Eleey said that his client wanted to show the board before hand that all city codes and ordinances would be adhered to in the redecorating.

The board briefly reviewed plans calling for the relocation of one of three bars in the establishment, the addition of a stage, and interior decorating including painting and wallpapering. Eleey said there are no structural or capacity changes involved.

The board noted that any menu changes would have to be reviewed by the city health department and that materials such as paints and wall coverings would have to meet city fire regulations.

Aside from this no license or permit is needed and no action was required by the board.

"I want them to know," Finn said, "that if they spend any money on remodeling that it will not hold any water with me in the hearing (for the other charges)."

Cahill Candidate For Re-Election To Council

Timothy Cahill will announce his re-election candidacy for councillor-at-large tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the Torre Dei Passeri Club in South Quincy.

Cahill, a lifelong resident of Quincy and a Democrat, is strongly opposed to the permanent siting of a sludge treatment plant at the Fore River Shipyard. He said he will closely monitor any planned activity at the shipyard by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

A resident of Ward 2, he lives on Summer St. with his wife Tina (Falco) and their three daughters, Makena, Nicole and Devin.

Cahill has served on the City Council for the past two years as chairman of the Downtown and Economic Development Committee, Tourism Committee and Youth Committee. He has fought vigorously for the revitalization of Quincy

TIMOTHY CAHILL

Square and plans to continue working on ideas to foster controlled growth downtown.

As chairman of the Tourism Committee, Cahill will soon unveil a tourism plan to the City Council. The plan will include the hiring of a full-time tourism coordinator, the creation of a visitors' center, and a transportation system to negate any adverse traffic impacts.

He was also instrumental in bringing the Jefferson Forum Student Volunteer Program to the Quincy Public School System. Through his initiative and with the support of his fellow councillors and the mayor, the schools were given a matching grant to assist with the start-up and successful continuation of the student volunteer program.

Cahill is an active member of the Ward 2 Civic Association and has served as a member of the Park and Recreation Board.

He coached high school wrestling at Quincy High School while working towards a degree at Boston University.

Gas Station Handicapped Complaint Placed On File

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday placed on file a complaint concerning the lack of provisions for handicapped drivers at Merit Gas and Oil, 238-252 Hancock St.

The complaint, brought to the board by Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, stems from an incident of a handicapped driver receiving full services at the gas station, being asked to get out of his vehicle to pay for the gasoline he had purchased. Cheney received the complaint from the city Handicap Commission.

Frederick Howard, Sales Manager for Merit Oil told the board that the establishment has a policy which does not allow for gas attendants to carry any cash, and requires all customers to get out of their cars and pay for the gas either inside the office or by way of a sliding door next to the kiosk.

Chairman John Gillis said that anyone buying gas at full service prices should not have to get out of his car because he is paying for full service, and that the handicapped especially should not be asked to leave their cars.

Howard told the board that the policy is designed to discourage theft.

The board also noted that the gas station has failed to comply with a city ordinance which requires that all handicapped drivers receive full-service at gas stations at the self-service prices. Building Commissioner Matt Mulvy said that a sign explaining the ordinance must be placed at all gas stations in the city.

Howard told the board that he was unaware of the ordinance and would take the board's suggestion that he review it.

Cheney suggested to the board that gas stations in the city "should be required to pick up a copy of the ordinance before being given a license from the board."

Howard told the board that he would comply with the ordinance after reading it, and would also make changes in the station policy to allow for the gas attendant to take money from the customer and go to the office himself for full-service and handicapped customers.

LaRaia: 'There Is A New Need For Leadership'

Speaking on themes he addressed two years ago while running for mayor, Joseph LaRaia kicked off his campaign for the city's highest political office last Friday at Morrissette Legion Post before approximately 200 supporters and well-wishers.

LaRaia, who nearly upset Mayor Francis McCauley in 1987's mayoral race, said there is a new need for leadership and a need to set new goals for essential priorities.

"We have to raise the levels of basic city services that the public expects in exchange for their tax dollar," he said.

Among the issues that LaRaia discussed were education, public safety, revitalizing Quincy Square, traffic and the reopening of the West Quincy landfill.

Referring to the sale of the Fore River Shipyard to the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority two years ago, LaRaia criticized McCauley for denying Public input in a deal between the city and the Authority for a temporary sludge facility.

"The unfortunate lesson to be learned here is that the Mayor's Office must work with elected representatives and the public, and that government to be beyond suspicion and mistrust must be open.

"I can assure you that my experience in government has prepared me to approach problems with foresight, moderation and openness," he said.

Discussing education, LaRaia said the city "must plan our educational needs and provide the dollars necessary to fund these programs."

Stating he will rely on educators and parents to advise him on educational matters, he added, "I do believe that there must be a progression of budgeting finances for our growing school population."

As for public safety, LaRaia promised adequate police protection and properly manned fire equipment. "The public wants safe neighborhoods and quick response on matters of public safety."

Like he did two years ago, LaRaia touched on the need to revitalize Quincy Square.

"Today, as we watch a further decline in the core retail area, we are witnessing its effect on small business, shoppers and taxpayers.

"Quincy Square is one of the few areas remaining that can be a catalyst for increased tax base and community activity."

To help the city's traffic problem which is resulting in expensive city services and burdening Quincy's sewer and water system, LaRaia said, "We must implement the short term solutions and utilize the lobbying ability of our local legislators to seek long-term remedies."

As for waste disposal, LaRaia said he would attempt to reopen the city's landfill instead of pushing for a trash disposal fee.

Noting that more than $4 million will be spent this year to transport household trash out of Quincy, LaRaia said, "We would not be shouldering any of this expense today if the administration followed the environmental directives of the state (Department of Environmental Quality Engineering) subsequently ordering the administration to close it down."

"If the state is unyielding on this issue then we should be reimbursed for our investment on this valuable resource."

As for reopening the landfill, LaRaia said, "I would prefer to review the potential for reopening the landfill if it is financially and environmentally feasable for limited local use."

LaRaia said he has taken a "leading position on the major financial issue facing us in this decade."

"That issue was the $28 million dollar payback settlement with General Dynamics. I opposed that settlement because it meant a yearly obligation at $2.8 million for taxpayers and a resulting drain on city services."

LaRaia said he tried to pursue a reduced settlement because at that time, General Dynamics was being investigated for fraud and corruption.

"Its public image was diminished nationwide," he said. "The city missed an opportunity to obtain a substantial reduction."

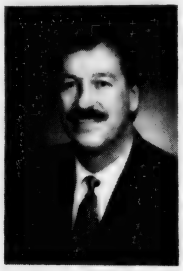
"On this issue, I relied on experience and public service to formulate sound judgments and foresight in assessing crisis situations.

"It is this experience that will enable me to manage the responsibilities of the Mayor's Office," LaRaia said.

Other announced candidates for mayor are Councillors Steve McGrath and James Sheets, and businessman Peter O'Connell.

Ron Mariano Candidate For School Committee

Promising to work "returning Quincy to a position of educational preeminence," Ron Mariano announced his candidacy for the Quincy School Committee before a large gathering of supporters last Wednesday at the Morrisette Post.



Mariano, a veteran Quincy Public School educator, cited his qualifications for this task, his background and his present position as the assistant director of the Massachusetts House Post Audit and Oversight Bureau.

"My teacher experience," said Mariano, "combined with my current responsbilities as a budget analyst and program evaluator will enable me to make decisions that are both educationally sound and fiscally responsible."

Continuing, he said, "Given Massachusetts' current fiscal woes, it is now more important than ever that we elect a school committee person who can balance educational needs with financial reality."

Mariano added, however, that fiscal responsibility does not mean a cutback in essential programs. "That's especially true in Quincy, where for the past three years, we have had a budget surplus."

"I want to assure that all critical programs are fully funded. I want a foreign language program that reaches all students in the middle school, and English as a Second Language program that will not only help the Asian student, but will increase opportunity for all of

RON MARIANO

Quincy's Asian citizens.

"I see art and music programs that will allow our students to develop and flourish to the best of their ability. I want to see a full science program that allows our students to perform experiments with the most up-to-date equipment — a science program that will help students understand and cope with today's more technical world," Mariano said.

He also said he would support an athletic program "that allows our students to choose from a number of sports."

"Our athletic programs should help our students to develop skills that make them competitive not only in sports, but in life. Our aim is to turn out not just athletes, but student athletes.

"I want to see a sense of pride restored to the youth of Quincy," he added.

A life-long Quincy resident, mariano was educated in the Quincy school system. He holds a bachelor of science degree from Northeastern University and masters degree from the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

He served as a teacher in the Quincy school system, at both elementary and middle school levels, for more than 10 years.

Since 1985, he has been employed by the Massachusetts Post Audit and Oversight Bureau as an assistant director.

In addition, Mariano is chairman of the War II Democratic Committee and past president of the Ward II Civil Association. He is also the assistant coordinator of the President's Youth Basketball program.

Stressing his dedication to Quincy and education, Mariano said, "As a teacher, I tried to make a different in my classroom; now I want to make a different in all the classrooms in the City of Quincy."

3 Quincy Residents Receive U.Mass. Degrees

Three Quincy residents recently received their degrees from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

They are:

James E. Spink, 6 Federal Ave., BA in arts and sciences; Michelle L. Trahan, 83 Curlew Rd., BA in legal studies; and Susan C. Foley, 103 Hamilton Ave., BA in arts and sciences.

Delegation Reaction To Georgia Sludge Facility

facility, which treats three tons per day, is one-twentieth the size of what is planned for the shipyard in 1995.

The Quincy facility would be situated less than 100 yards from homes on East Howard St. while the Georgia operation is 1,000 feet from the nearest home.

The Georgia operation is also located in an area surrounded by a 4,000 acre forest.

Odors from the pelletizing plant appeared to be less strong than those at the compost facility. The group said discerning the odors was difficult since there were open sewage storage tanks were located on the site.

Generally, members agreed the pelletizing plant emitted less odor than the compost facility.

A similar sludge-to-pellet facility will open at the shipyard in 1991.

Officials also commented on the feasibility of filing a lawsuit to block the MWRA's operation from coming to Quincy.

Here is what the Quincy group said about their trip:

ROBERT CERASOLI, State Representative:

"I thought it was very educational. I've been vociferously against the plant at the shipyard from the start and nothing has changed my mind.

"The pelletizing plant didn't seem to smell at all but the real problem was trying to detect where the odor was coming from," Cerasoli said, pointing out there are open sewage pits on the property of the treatment plants.

As for the composting plant, he said it "smelled horrendously. It even smelled inside the plant."

"(The Trip) hasn't changed my mind. I still oppose it. I saw what I expected to see. There were no surprises. I still think it's a long fight."

As for stopping the plant from coming to Quincy, Cerasoli said the city's best hope is for electing officials, including a new mayor and a new governor who will "butt heads with the MWRA."

"If we get a new mayor, the mayor may say the MWRA is not honoring the agreement," referring to an agreement reached by the city and the MWRA for the authority to operate an interim sludge facility at the shipyard beginning in 1991 or 1992.

"If we get a new governor, the governor may replace (MWRA Executive Director) Paul Levy and some of the board members with people who will deal with this issue in an honest manner.

"I think this is what has to happen. That's where our hope lies."

As for the overall cleanup of the harbor, Cerasoli said, "I think the clean up of Boston Harbor is going to go down in history as one of the biggest boondoggles in Massachusetts history.

"I'm afraid my constituents are going to pay an oversized part of what burden and I think the people who developed this whole idea of cleaning up the harbor is really a misnomer, because the harbor will continue to be polluted with toxic waste.

These people who say the harbor is going to be clean are a joke. It's not going to be clean. There's four feet of sludge at the bottom of the harbor and some towns are still dumping waste into it.

"We ought to switch gears and take a more realistic approach."

STEVE TOBIN, State Representative:

"The pelletizing facility was not so bad in terms of odors, but the composting facility was horrendous. You could not stand down wind without smelling the odors."

Tobin said Eric Buehrens, sludge manager for the MWRA, told him that "they've got the technology to filter the air so you don't have the smells, but I don't trust the technology."

Tobin said "I can't see that there would be times when odors are not there. It's definitely going to be offensive and it leads me to conclude how important it is for the MWRA to relocate their offices in Quincy, especially if the composting function will be at the shipyard.

"I would very much like to see composting done somewhere else or drop the composting altogether and rely soley on the pelletizing process."

He noted the Quincy operation would be 60 percent pelletizing and 40 percent composting and that composting was "basically a contingency against any problems they may have marketing the processed pellets.

"But if they're concerned that they can't market the processed pellets then they should wait until they're sure of a product they can market."

Concerning the possibility of a law suit to block the sludge facility, Tobin said, "It's certainly not too late for a law suit but law suits so far haven't really helped our cause.

"Law suits make me nervous. I'm from the old school and I believe that you should sit down, head to head, and talk things out rationally, man to man.

"Their assurances that they can control the odors of the composting leaves me unconvinced," he said.

"We have technoogy in a lot of areas which, for one reason or another, fails us. It's Murphy's Law–if something goes wrong, it'll probably go wrong for two weeks in August when it's hot and humid and all anyone can smell for two weeks are the odors of the composting facility.

"I am firmly opposed to the composting."

Tobin also thanked Melvin Newman, general manager of the Clayton Water Authority, Morrow, Georgia.

"They rented a shuttle bus for us so that they could take us on the tour. We were treated first class and I really appreciate what they did for us," he said.

MICHAEL MORRISSEY, State Representative:

"It was good to finally see the technology put to use. The pelletization plant was the more impressive of the two we saw. They're able, basically to do a very able job."

He said he is concerned about plans to use natural gas in the process at the Quincy facility rather than wood chips.

"Natural gas is much more expensive. They can save a lot of energy by using wood chips. They also recycle everything (by that process) They really have quite an advanced system."

Morrissey also said that, after treatment, the sewage water is "so clean you can almost drink it."

"The smell (in the composting facility) is very strong, kind of offensive. The workers said that you get used to the smell after a while, butr it was quite strong to us.

"As you got away from the plant there was still a smell, but it wasn't as bad. Our concern is that the MWRA will not be able to control the smell.

"Another concern is that other communities should bear some of the responsibility for it and not just Quincy."

Morrissey said he feels a law suit to block the plant would be a "great move."

"It may help to put more pressure on the Authority. I do think it's late, but I don't think it's too late for a law suit.

"I would advocate a law suit," he added.

JOSEPH "JAY" MacRITCHIE, City Solicitor and Quyincy's new representative to the MWRA Board of Directors:

"We saw both the pelletizing and the composting facilities. They are a lot smaller than the ones being proposed for Quincy," noting that the Georgia plants are about one twentieth the size of the MWRA's proposed plant at the shipyard.

"The pelletizing plant had no detectable odors but there were some odors to the composting. I wasn't satisfied with that.

"While inside the building, I kept my mouth closed and I felt my eyes watering. It was strong. A few people had to step outside once in a while.

"It's definitely something I wouldn't want to live next to. People's concerns in Quincy are certainly valid."

As for Quincy's next step in fighting the plant, MacRitchie said, "we're still in the public comment period on the long-term treatment plant decision. We're still trying to get that decision reversed.

"We're taking a long, hard look at the way the decision was made and I think the decision was flawed."

TED DeCRISTOFARO, Ward 1 Councillor:

"We're concerned about the offensive odors that will be emitting from the (Quincy) plant. However, I think the value of property is very, very important.

"And of course, I think if people saw where the (Georgia) plants were located, out in an area by itself with big trees all around it, certainly it has to be better than what's going to happen here and I definitely feel that they'll have a long way to go before they can make a plant here that will justify what they say it's going to be."

DeCristofaro said the MWRA claims the Quincy plant "is not going to have the problems that we saw down in Georgia and I have my doubts about that."

MICHAEL CHENEY, Ward 1 City Councillor:

"I think the composting was the most offensive. We did have an opportunity to speak with some of the neighbors and what we heard was really what we expected.

"Property values first stabilized, then decreased by as much as $20,000 in one case. They've had an ongoing problem with odors, some with the pelletizing plant but most around the composting plant.

"Most people seem to be very passive about it. They did file a law suit to try to block it, which prompted the county to move forward and make some improvements but they were really forced to do that," Cheney said.

"We're fearful because the plant is one 20th the size of (The Quincy) plant. We're really fearful of the odors and all of the stereotypes that come with it, the decline in property values, the stagnation in real estate and most importantly, the resue of the shipyard. It's too valuable a resource."

Cheney also expressed concern for the market of pellets produced at the Quincy plant which will be transported to the south. He said there are some differences between the pelletization process in Georgia and the one proposed by the MWRA. Pellets made in Georgia are also marketed in the south.

"The MWRA is talking about utilizing digested sludge. A Clayton County official told us that digested sludge is not marketable so their product is going to be worth a lot less than what Clayton County's product is worth."

As for compost, Cheney said the only market for this is local which could lead to heavy trucking traffic throughout the city.

"The MWRA hasn't addressed that issue so there are a lot of things to work out but most importantly, I think we all stand united coming back from that trip, that we're opposed to this and we'll do everything we can to stop it."

"After taking this trip to George, I'm convinced that this plant should go on Deer Island. It doesn't make any sense to drag the sludge all across the harbor and treat it at the shipyard and then drag the water al the way back to Deer Island.

"It just doesn't make sense and it's not good management practice."

PETER O'CONNELL, businessman and mayoral candidate:

"I believe all of the representatives from Quincy had a sense that the pelletization process was a better process and has less potential for causing community disruption from offensive odors.

"The composting plant was giving off odors that would be totally unacceptable to Quincy residents. It's important to note that the pellitization process is much more expensive and the MWRA may prefer to, for cost reasons, to push the composting as an option.

"At this time, we would be guarding against that and although pellitization is more energy intensive, it's the best of two options that we observed.

"I think it's critical that we develop a team approach to handle the MWRA and that the next mayor work very closely with the legislative delegation, our councillors and Congressman Brian Donnelly to safeguard the residents of the city," O'Connell said.

"It's very important that the next mayor be able to lead the fight to insure that the MWRAa builds the most technologically advanced plant possible and that procedures are established that safeguard area residents.

"I realize from reviewing the financial considerations the MWRA made in selecting Quincy as the permanent treatment plant that the only effective way to deal with the MWRA is to use technical and legal means to force the MWRA to provide financial concessions to the city so that the much needed funds to provide municipal services, both in education and public safety, are provided by the MWRA," he said.

O'Connell, the only mayoral candidate to visit the plants in Georgia, said he will deliver his message to residents in Quincy Point as well as the other sections of the city.

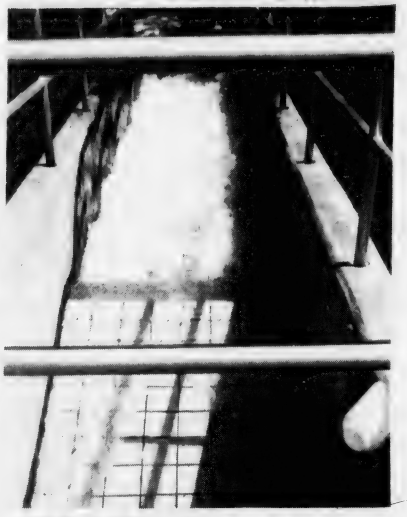
He also said he plans to visit other plants across the country to inspect sludge processing plants that are more similar in size and operation characteristics to the one being proposed for Quincy.

"I also intend to inspect a plant in Florida that the residents are having a major problem with, that cost $24 million, is two years behind schedule and is a composting plant."

143 Permits For Construction

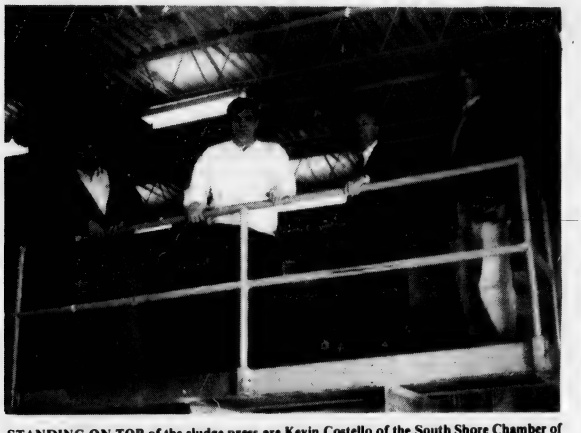
The Quincy Building Department issued 143 permits totaling $3,406,165 in construction costs during the month of March.

In March 1988, 104 permits were issued amounting to $3,544,815.



Last month, $81,618 in receipts were collected. Public safety inspection fees totaled $180.

The breakdown for permits issued this March is:



- One, one-family dwelling, $200,000.
- Two garages, $7,200.
- Seventy-eight residential alterations, $739,545.
- Twenty-nine other alterations, $2,017,,510.
- Six removals, $42,000.
- Twenty signs, $28,860.
- Seven miscellaneous permits, $371,050.

THE FINAL RESULT -- Water, after the sludge is treated and removed at a treatment facility in Georgia, is discharged into a stream that feeds into a river that supplies drinking water. Water from treatment plant is diluted in river water at a ratio of 25 parts river water and one part affluent from the plant. Water meets all EPA standards.

Sludge Law Suit 'Premature' Until After Review

(Cont'd from Page 1)

Compared to the Georgia operation, the plant being proposed at the shipyard would be about 20 times bigger.

Since the MWRA board voted to locate the permanent sludge operation in Quincy, several officials have advocated the city take the Agency to court.

The mayor has said a law suit is one of several options that is being considered.

As for the findings by the officials that visited the Georgia operation, McCauley said they "reinforce" his stand against composting at the shipyard.

"We feel that composting at the shipyward is not proper since its too close to a densely populated area. This administration has said all along that the long-term residuals should go someplace else," McCauley said.

The mayor said a composting facility would be better suited for an isolated place, such as an area in Stoughton that was once under consideration by the MWRA.

Stephen McGrath, City Councillor and mayoral candidate, reiterated Monday his position requesting the city's administration sue the MWRA to prevent the location of a permanent sewage treatment plant at the shipyard.

He noted that, particularly in light of comments and findings of those who visited the similar plant in Clayton County, that the location of this plant would be environmentally disastrous to Quincy.

"This plant is supposed to be "state of the art" and is a much smaller plant than that proposed for the city of Quincy. However, the smell generated by the plant is extremely offensive.

"I believe this confirms what I have been saying -- which is that the sewage treatment plant should not be located in Quincy," McGrath said.

"I am hopeful that all elected officials will be united behind their opposition to any sludge treatment plant being located in Quincy," he added.

Quincy JWV Installation May 7

The Quincy Post Jewish War Veterans Post will hold its 50th annual installation of officers on Sunday, May 7, at the Beth Israel Synagogue, 33 Grafton St., Quincy.

The installation will follow a 9:30 a.m. breakfast. The annual memorial service will also take place.

Commander to be installed is Dr. Bertrand N. Shaffer; P.C. David Minkofsky and PC Ralph Paull are senior and junior vice commanders; Dr. Stanley Kaiser, surgeon; Ben Rudner, judge advocate.

Paul Bailey, Herb Fine and Manny Halter will be installed as trustees; Jessie Lipton, finance Officer; PC Minkofsky, officer of the day; and PC H. Solomon, adjutant.

PC Irving Isaacson, master of ceremonies, will be assisted by Commander Shaffer, Paull, David Minkofsky, Harvey Solomon, Paul Bailey, Herb Fontaine and Edward Rubin.

Donnelly Says:

Hazardous Waste, Groundwater Protection More Important Than Harbor Cleanup

The clean-up of Boston Harbor is not the largest environmental issue today and revenue for the project could be better spent on other concerns, said Congressman Brian Donnelly during a visit to The Quincy Sun.

Donnelly, who was questioned by Assistant Editor Robert Bosworth and staff writer Jane Arena recently, also said the city should continue to fight the siting of two permanent sludge processing facilities at the Fore River Shipyard.

He also discussed his attempt to get the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to locate its headquarters at the shipyard.

Speaking on the estimated $6 billion clean up project for Boston Harbor, Donnelly said, "Maybe we ought to go back to the fundamental issue of exactly the allocation of resources.

"Is the clean up of Boston Harbor the single largest environmental issue of the next decade? I say not.

"I think it's an important one but there are other large environmental issues," Donnelly said, citing the purification and protection of groundswaters supplies and the clean up of hazardous waste sites as issues that demand attention.

"You don't drink any water out of the harbor. We have a potential crisis in terms of safe drinking water. We have one of the worst toxic waste sites in America in Holbrook and I can't get enough money to take the dioxins out of (that site).

"I'd like a bit of that $6 billion to do that," Donnelly added.

BRIAN DONNELLY

He also said that the threat to clean air is a larger concern than the harbor clean-up.

"The harbor has to be clean but I guess the fundamental question ought to be at what rate and at what cost?

"I think we are placing too high of a financial burden of the cleaning of the harbor."

Donnelly expressed his reservations over the clean-up because its costs will be passed on to home owners and business owners, the rate payers in the MWRA district. The cleanup, which is estimated at $6 billion now, could go higher, he said.

The harbor cleanup issue deserves close attention because it could result in water bills close, if not more, than $2,000.

Referring to the potentially high water bills, Donnelly said, "That is a non tax-deductible tax that every home owner and business owner in the MWRA district will have to pay." As a result, property values in the district will decrease and home and business buyers will look elsewhere.

To illustrate this point, Donnelly said home owners could be forced to pay an additional $2,000 per year for each year of their mortgage which in many cases is 30 years.

"That's $60,000 in additional cost before you actually own that home. Would you buy a home in Quincy or would move to a town like Sandwich or Bourne where they have their own sewer systems and their own well water? That would save you $2,000 a year.

"People simply are not going to be able to pay. They just can't afford to pay an additional $2,000 a year," adding that the cost will hurt the elderly and first-time buyers in particular.

Why do Quincy residents and others living in the MWRA's district face these estimated enormous costs?

According to Donnelly, past state government officials are to blame.

"The Commonwealth is in this position because of the absolute irresponsibility of past state governments," he said, adding that several treatment facilities should have been constructed years ago at several key locations, including at points along the Mystic, Charles and Neponset Rivers. Compared to the proposed site at the shipyard, these facilities would have cost less money to build.

Furthermore, Donnelly said if the state government had acted sooner, the federal government would have paid 80 percent of the plant construction because this is what the federal government used to do.

"Now, the federal government has extricated itself out of being involved in the construction of the sewerage treatment plants. Now the rate payers have to pay everything.

"It's a pretty sordid history in terms of government responsibility that we've ended up in the situation we're in," Donnelly said, adding that the state now should intervene and help rate payers afford the clean up.

As for the battle over the siting of the permanent sludge facility at the shipyard, Donnelly said Quincy should continue to fight since the final decision has not yet been made.

He also said filing a lawsuit is still a viable option but this action must be carefully reviewed before the first legal step is taken.

"I think up until the permanent decision is made we ought to be doing everything we can to get some sort of siting mitigation. Obviously, there has to be a financial mitigation paid to the city for the damage that the MWRA's presence will do to the city," such as damages caused by tractor trailers carrying "tons and tons of steel" through Quincy.

He also said Quincy will experience a "horrific transportation nightmare" with approximately 1,200 MWRA employees traveling throughout the city 24 hours a day.

As for a lawsuit, Donnelly said, "It would have to be proven to me that we have a real strong legal case on the siting. I don't think you ought to just proceed to court just to say you're doing something about it.

"At some point in time we're either going to win or we're going to lose and I think we ought to be responsible at that point in time to say we've either won or lost."

He also said that the MWRA, because of its enabling legislation, appears to be on much stronger legal ground.

But, he added, "let's wait until the board makes its final decision."

Donnelly also had some choice words regarding the issue where to site the permanent headquarter of the MWRA. Leaders in Quincy support the agency coming to the Fore River Shipyard while officials in Roxbury and Boston advocate the construction of a new facility at Parcel 18 in Roxbury near Ruggles Station.

As a staunch supporter of the Quincy site, Donnelly recently filed legislation blocking $59 million earmarked for the clean up unless the MWRA moves to the shipyard. Essentially, the congressman said he feels Quincy is sharing all of the burden for the clean up which is unfair.

"I'm withholding my support for additional federal monies until the disproportionate share of the burden is spread to other communities. I've since gone further saying than that saying minimally if the shipyard is to be the sight for all of the sludge disposal and the processing site for all the construction material then minimally the MWRA ought to move its headquarters to the Quincy shipyard."

As can be expected, his legislation was applauded by Quincy officials but criticized by leaders outside the city.

"I'm willing to take that criticism because this is a participatory democracy. I'm the representative for the people of this community and the (sludge facility) will have a fundamental, long-term impact on Quincy's image and our roads, our property values," adding that there are better, less urbanized places to put the facility.

Furthermore, Donnelly sympathizes with Roxbury leaders who want Parcel 18 to be developed, adding that it is the state's fault the land is empty.

Originally, the land was slated to be the site of southwest expressway which was scheduled to be built 20 years ago but never was.

"The question becomes, who ought to fund the redevelopment of the southwest corridor. Frankly, it was a state decision that cause the destruction.

"What's happening now is you have an agency funded only by the ratepayers within Metropolitan Boston that would have to pay the entire cost of a new building," estimated at $38 million, he said.

Donnelly, who has met with Roxbury leaders over the matter, will meet with them again after costs of a new building are known. "Then we can have a real specific debate on what's really the cheapest option."

Lastly, he said Quincy is better suited for the headquarters since the agency could move into an existing building, once used by executives at General Dynamics.

"They owned these buildings two years ago. They should have been in there two years ago."

Cap Undefeated Season

YMCA Girls Win E-Mass Swimming Title

The South Shore YMCA Girls Eight and Under Swim Team capped an impressive undefeated season recently by winning the Eastern Massachusets Championship in Brockton and the New England area YMCA Championship at Brown University.

With more than 20 teams from all six New England states competing, the girls scored a resounding victory by tallying 151 points. Their closest competitor was Beverly which finished with 108 points.

Pacing the girls attack in the meet's first event, the 100-yard medly relay was the quartet of Meredith Curley, Jill Stonehouse, Kate Palmeiri and Erin Murphy. In winning the event, the girls broke their own Eastern Mass. record set two weeks ago by three seconds with a time of 1:11:81.

Individually, Murphy (15.02) and Curley (15.07) placed second and third in the 25-yard freestyle. Angelina Cangiano took eighth (15.59), Stonehouse 18th (16.41), Murphy, 20th (16.33) and Palmeiri 23rd (16.46) in the same event.

Curley became the New England champion in the 25-yard backstroke with a time of 17.82 and just missed winning the 50-yard freestyle by a few hundredths of a second, finishing second (34.15) in a photo finish.

Murphy placed eighth in the 50-yard freestyle (35.41) and Cangiano ninth (35.73).

In the 25-yard backstroke, Stonehouse finished fourth (18.70) and finished fifth in the 25-yard breastroke (21.31).

Going into the final event with the outcome still in doubt, the girls needed a strong performance in the 100-yard freestyle relay.

The team of Curley-Cangiano - Stonehouse - Murphy never looked back as they raced to a convincing first place finish and the team championship with a time of 1:03.33. Their winning time was slightly slower than their best finish, 1:02.45. The New England record is 1:02.41.

After the victory margin was announced, the team, joined by six-year olds Caitlyn Powers and Jill Palmeiri who have practiced with the team all year, gleefully tossed in Head Coach Janet Keyes and Assistant Coach Cindy Shea to celebrate the hard-earned win.

Sports

Boys' Volleyball Future Looks Bright

Boys' volleyball is a comparatively new sport at Quincy and North Quincy but interest is picking up at both schools and a new volleyball program in the middle schools is credited with the hike in interest.

North Quincy is in its third varsity season and opened the season last week with a 2-0 (16-4, 15-8) victory over Quincy.

Coach John Perkins has seen turnouts improved each season. His first year there were 12 candidates, last year 18 and this spring he has 27 boys on the squad. "We even had 12 freshman report," he said.

North co-captain Charles Levering, Steve Ziokowski and Eddie Devin led the Raiders to their opening day win over Quincy, coached by Chris Prendiville.

Hiep Ngo and Kevin Glennon were outstanding in the win and co-capt. Kipp Caldwell also had a strong game. Caldwell and Ngo were on the Bay State Junior Olympic team last year.

Quincy was only 1-17 a year ago but should improve this year with seven Eastern Mass. schools having varsity teams for the first time. The seven new teams are Milton, Lincoln-Sudbury, Billerica, Lowell, Chelmsford, New Bedford and Natick.

North Quincy plays at Andover today (Thursday) and will host Weymouth North Friday. Quincy will be home to Weymouth South Friday and play at Waltham Monday.

Flavin Batting .500 For Bentley

Freshman Ed Flavin, former Quincy High outfielder, is the leading hitter for the Bentley College baseball team.

Flavin was batting .500 after five games with 10 hits in his first collegiate at bats.

Hegarty, Leonard Bosco Co-captains

Robert Hegarty and Michael Leonard of Quincy and John Harrington of Dorchester have been elected tri-captains of the Don Bosco High School spring track team.

Timberlake Takes Co-MVP Honors At B.U.

Quincy's Jeff Timberlake was one of several Boston University athletes to be honored as Most Valuable Players at the recent awards banquet.

Timberlake solidified his standing as one of the best point guards in school history. He handed out 238 assists this year, as single season record that led the North Atlantic Conference and ranked among the top 10 nationally.

He also became the Terriers' all-time assist leader with 778. He could also score with a 13.1 points a game average. He finished with 392 points, giving him 1066 for his career, becoming the 18th B.U. player to hit the 1000-point plateau and only the second player to do it while having over 500 assists. He was a first team all-conference selection and was named to the post-season all-conference tournament team.

Despite Two Losses, Brights Spots For Quincy

Quincy's baseball team, without a starter from last year's Eastern Mass. tournament team, is off to a slow start, losing its first two games, but the Presidents displayed good hitting in one game and excellent pitching in the other.

After being walloped by Weymouth North, 13-7, in their opener last week, the Presidents received an outstanding pitching effort from Dave Adams Monday but lost to Everett, 2-0.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team will host Medford at Adams Field Friday at 3:30, will be at Somerville Monday at 10:30 and will be home to Revere next Wednesday at 10:30.

Adams pitched a six-hitter and struck out 12 in his debut Monday, but a run in the first inning and another in the seventh sent him down to a tough defeat.

The Presidents could collect only two hits, singles by Jim Peters and Tim Mann.

The pitching collapsed in the opening game as Weymouth North exploded for seven runs in the second inning, added two in the third and four in the fourth.

Quincy had seven hits, including a home run and triple by Mann, who also walked.

Peters and Chris Beatrice had doubles and Mike Noonan, Bob Cinquegrano and Rich Kiesel singles.

"The opener was just a bad game all around," said Sylvia. "But the Everett game was very well played for such an early game. Adams pitched an outstanding game and it was a shame we couldn't score some runs for him."

DeBoer Hurls 4-Hitter

North Edged By Malden

North Quincy's baseball team finally got its season started Monday and, despite an outstanding pitching performance by junior Erik DeBoer, the Raiders lost a 2-1 squeaker at Malden.

North, idle last week due to two postponements, will play at Peabody Friday, will play at Weymouth North Saturday at 10:30 in the replay of a postponed game, will be at Arlington Monday at 10:30 and will be at Somerville next Wednesday, also at 10:30.

DeBoer pitched four-hit ball, struck out five and walked two. North also had four hits.

Malden scored both runs, one unearned, in the fourth, and North scored its run in the seventh.

George Rozanitis had two of the Raider hits and Tim Baker and Tony Anderlionis had the others.

"This was an extremely well-played game for so early in the season, especially with the bad weather we had been having," said North coach Leo Donovan. "The pitchers were way ahead of the hitters, but we'll get our share of hits. DeBoer was tremendous. He should have an outstanding season.

Quincy Girls Win Three In Ontario Tourney

The Quincy Youth girls hockey team, which finished fourth in the South Shore League, wound up its season with a strong performance in the 22nd Brampton Canadettes Dominion Ladies Tournament in Brampton, Ontario, Canada.

The team won three games before losing to the eventual tournament winner, Rochester Institute of Technology, in the semifinals.

The girls, coached by Mary Ellen Riordan and Nancy Craig, finished only four points behind the teams tied for second place in the league.

In the Canada tournament Quincy defeated Stoneham B team, 3-1, in the opener with Stephanie O'Sullivan scoring all the goals. Jean Gill had two assists and Melissa Mardr and Amy Bertrand one each.

Quincy then defeated Nobleton, 4-1, with O'Sullivan, Heidi Maguire, Nancy Craig and Gill scoring the goals. Craig, O'Sullivan, Maguie, Sally Curley and Janet Fennelly had assists.

Quincy topped McCallum and Brodeur, 5-2, with Craig having a hat trick and Amy Bertrand and Sheilah Graham the other goals. Maguire had two assists and Bertrand, Craig and Martha Bizzell one each.

Quincy lost to RIT, 4-2, with Craig and Maguire scoring the goals and Craig and Graham having assists.

"The team did a fabulous job with only ten players, then minus one after the second game due to an injury," said coach Riordan. "Nancy (Craig) and I were very pleased with the team's performance."

The team was awarded the league's "Team Sportsmanship Award" for having the fewest penalty minutes during the season.

Four Quincy players, Bertrand, Lisa Bent, Sally Curley and O'Sullivan, the league's third leading scorer, played in the league all-star game.

11 Varsity Returnees At North Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

Last season, after going to the second round of the Eastern Mass. Tournament in 1987, the North Quincy girls' softball team had one of its worst seasons at 3-16, but, with 11 varsity returnees, coach Barbara Webster is hopeful of far better things this spring.

"We just had a very poor year with a young team," she said. "We gave up far too many runs and scored very few ourselves. Hopefully this season we will be much stronger both offensively and defensively.

The Raiderettes were scheduled to open Tuesday against Malden and play at Medford today (Thursday). They will play at Peabody Tuesday and will host Everett next Thursday, both games at 10:30 a.m.

North's first Suburban League game will be April 24 at home against Brockton.

"I'm concerned about our games with Peabody and Everett because it is school vacation and we always lose girls who will be on family vacations," Miss Webster said.

A promising newcomer is Terri Gilmore, a junior catcher.

Promising newcomers are seniors Erin Dunn and Laura Rooney, junior Laura Dawson and sophomore Erin Dunn.

There is an excellent group of freshmen, including Cynthia Mitton, Melanie Moffett, Stephanie Ohlson, Breeda O'Connor, Tracy Linehan, Kellie Sartri, Cindy Wan, Susan Byrne, Susan McGonagle, Noreen McDonagh, Linda Connolly, Jeanette Currie, Winnie Lee and Jennifer McDonough.

"As you can see, we have good numbers, but the age old problem of April vacation leaves us in a real bind," the North coach said. "Before we start the league season there will be as many different lineups as games."

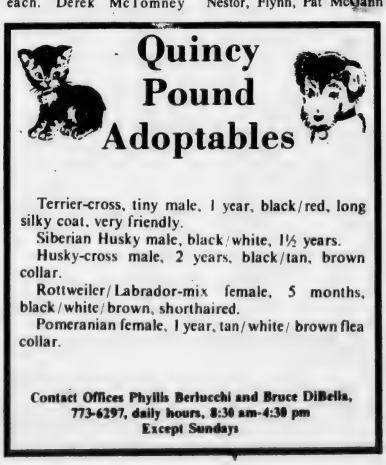
Hasson's Hat Trick Powers Balducci, 16-1

The Paul Harold Club defeated Martin Plumbing, 6-2, in the Mite House League.

Brian Correia and Matt Langille had two goals apiece and Matt Lewis and Mike Fitzpatrick one each. Betsy Stone had two assists and Kevin Cellucci, Fitzpatrick, Ryan Kreuger and Lewis one each. Derek McTomney scored both Martin goals and Chris Carthas had two assists and Paul Markarian one.

Jimmy Hasson had a hat trick to lead Balducci's over Rogan Hennessy, 6-1. Paul Flynn had two goals and Chris DiMattia one. Jim Parisi and John Masone had two assists each and Andrew Nestor, Flynn, Pat McGann and John Bertucci one apiece. John Barron scored for Rogan Hennessy.



Lydon-Russell topped Newcomb Farms, 6-1, as Jason Snaith scored twice and Bob Harvey, Kevin Regan, Jon Haddad and Brian Nolan once each. Nolan, Snaith and Matt Hill had two assists apiece and Steve Ford and Harvey one each. Brian Degan scored for Newcomb with Mike Gallagher assisting.

Bertucci had four goals to spark Balducci's to an 11-2 romp over Newcomb Farms. McGann had a hat trick, Hasson two goals and Owen Nestor and Masone one each. Hasson had three assists and Bertucci and McGann one each. Gallagher scored both Newcomb goals and Chris Cullen had an assist.

Martin Plumbing defeated Lydon-Russell, 5-2, with Brian Gates scoring twice and John Wall, Danny Murphy and Ryan Barrett once each. Chris Carthas had an assist. Justin Doty had both Lydon goals and Matt Allen assisted.

Chris Haidul and Bill Norris had two goals each and Billy Griffin one as Rogan Hennessy downed Harold, 5-1. Lewis scored for Harold.

Quincy, North Ponder Proposed Pilgrim Conference

By TOM SULLIVAN

When the Quincy and North Quincy sports teams move to the Old Colony League for 1990-91 season, it will be part of a general realignment of leagues for 28 South Shore and Cape Cod schools.

Representatives of 27 schools (Sandwich was the only school not represented) met last week at the Pembroke Country Club and drafted a plan to form the Pilgrim Conference.

The conference would encompass three leagues, Old Colony, South Shore League for large schools and the Cranberry League for the smaller South Shore League schools.

The proposal is designed to ease the concerns of schools with declining enrollments and to address the general subject of realignment in Southeastern Mass.

Under the proposal Quincy, with 1378 in grades 9-12, and North Quincy, with 1225, would join Plymouth (2067), Silver Lake (1747), Barnstable (1436), Taunton (1425), Falmouth (1337), Weymouth North (1326) and Bridgewater-Raynham (1293) in the Old Colony League. North Quincy would be the smallest school and Quincy would be number five in enrollment.

Marshfield, Hingham and Weymouth South would move from the Old Colony League to the South Shore League and join Whitman-Hanson, Dennis-Yarmouth, Randolph, Middleboro, Duxbury and Scituate.

The Cranberry League would consist of Rockland, Hanover, East Bridgewater, Norton, Norwell, Sandwich, Abington, Hull, Carver and Cohasset.

The 27 schools voted unanimously to discuss the conference proposal with administrators and coaches, then take the plan to their school committees for votes and report to the Pilgrim Conference Realignment Committee in early June.

The Randolph School Committee wasted no time in approving the proposal at last week's meeting after athletic director Bill Gould presented the plan.

Quincy athletic coordinator Marty Finnegan, along with principals Lloyd Hill of Quincy and Peter Chrisom of North Quincy, attended the meeting.

"This is very interesting and it is a step in the right direction," said Finnegan. "Some of the school officials were not happy with the overall proposal, but it is a good move to get schools to meet other schools with similar enrollments."

The major reason for Quincy and North Quincy moving from the Suburban League to the Old Colony League was facing Brockton, which is the biggest school in the state, and other schools with much larger enrollments.

Finnegan was to present the proposal to the Quincy and North Quincy athletes and coaches this week, discuss it with the principals and bring it before the School Committee at its next meeting.

The plan asks for a four-year commitment from all schools in all sports, with a review of the conference after the third year.

With nine teams in the Old Colony and South Shore Leagues, the plan would let all schools keep traditional Thanksgiving Day football rivalries. Possible abolition of them has often blocked plans for realignment plans.

"I told the committee it was vital that the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving game continue," said Finnegan.

"There is a need to do something," said Marshfield Principal Peter Deftos, chairman of the Pilgrim Conference Realignment Committee. "Cape Cod schools are getting bigger, while schools like Duxbury, Marshfield and Scituate are getting smaller and a school like Hull wonders if it will have a program at all.

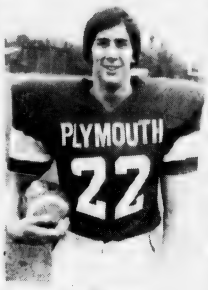
Weymouth North principal Edward Knight is concerned about putting Weymouth North and Weymouth South in different leagues.

Hanover athletic director Harry Gerrish sees the proposal as a positive step for the smaller schools.

"This looks like a move in the right direction, although it's not etched in stone," he said. "There will be a lot of talk about it within our own groups — between coaches, principals, athletic directors and the community. It isn't finished, but from what I see, it looks pretty good for the small schools."

Dudek Gets Another Chance With Jets

North Quincy's Joe Dudek, who led the Raiders to wins over Quincy in 1979 and 1980 and who broke the NCAA record for career touchdowns at Plymouth State College (79, breaking the mark set by Walter Payton), thought his chances of making the National Football League were ended last year when he was cut by the Denver Broncos following the signing of Tony Doresett.



However, Dudek will get another chance of making the pros when he reports to the New York Jets' training camp at Hofstra University on Long Island in June.

The Jets have invited Joe to training camp as a specialist playing on passing downs and on kicking teams.

Dudek plans to report weighing 200. He now weighs 193 and feels comfortable.

"People say I'm not big enough," said the 25-year-old Dudek. "But I'm 6-1, so I'm one of the bigger running backs. Then I see all these little scatbacks weighing 180, and I'm not big enough?"

After setting the NCAA touchdown record and leading Plymouth State to four straight New England

JOE DUDEK

Conference championships, Dudek played in the Japan Bowl but wasn't drafted by any NFL teams.

He signed with the Broncos as a free agent but was cut. He was asked to return during the players' strike but he held out and refused to cross the picket line.

"I held out until I eventually decided that I had to pay the bills. (He was working on construction and was giving up $5000 a week). My teammates understood. I showed sympathy by staying out and they knew why I came back."

Dudek, a veteran of three Denver training camps, helped the Broncos get to the 1988 Super Bowl by playing well in two games during the strike. In one nationally-televised game he ran for 128 yards and two touchdowns in a Denver win.

He was on the disabled list during the Super Bowl but received a Super Bowl ring, something an awful lot of players can't boast of.

Dudek currently is living in an apartment in Derry, N.H., where he works out daily with former North Quincy and Plymouth State teammate Steve Lee, who blocked for him at both schools.

He works with a liquor distributor. "It's a short career in football and it's not my future," he said. "There are 40 or 50 years after football. If my future is sales and the beer business, that's fine.

"Now my goal is to get in shape for the Jets' camp. If you don't work out, you don't get in shape and you don't make the team. It's that simple."

• Squirt House

It Was Johnson Over Quincy Sun

Due to a scorer's error, it was reported in last week's Quincy Sun that The Sun had defeated Johnson Motor Parts, 4-3, when Johnson actually won the game, 4-3, to increase its Squirt House League lead to five points over The Sun.

Paul Princiotto scored the winning goal with just one second left in the game. Jimmy Gallagher and Sean Cahill had the other goals and John Manning, Martin Hickey and Gallagher had assists.

There were no Squirt House games last week as teams were playing in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The revised standings: Johnson. 12-6-5; Quincy Sun, 8-7-8; Burgin Platner, 8-11-4; Doran & Horrigan, 6-10-7.

Hennessy Returns

48 Turn Out At North For Girls Track

By TOM SULLIVAN

Coach Jeff Hennessy greeted 48 candidates in his first season back as North Quincy girls' spring track coach after five years at UMass/ Boston.

The Raiderettes opened the season yeasterday (Wednesday) against Milton Academy and will open the Suburban League season May 25 against Cambridge Rindge and Latin at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Hennessy hopes to return North to its winning ways after five seasons at .500 or under including a first-ever loss to Quincy.

Several outstanding athletes have turned out and Hennessy expects good balance over the 14-event lineup. When he last coached at North in 1084, the girls were undefeated Suburban League champions and placed second to Falmouth in the state Class B championships.

"We just want to bring the program back to what it was both for boys and girls," Hennessy said. "We have several clinics planned, the Quincy Track Club is registering an unprecedented number of kids and middle school sports are back, so it looks promising."

Hennessy is being assisted by Earl Metzler, but he explained that boys' coaches Peter Chrisom and Dan Cuddy are also working with the girls and Ken McPhee has helped with both the weight training program and with getting kids to come out for track. "It is an ideal situation from a coaching standpoint," he said. "We also have the new track at the stadium and Kavanagh Stadium to work out so now we just have to get the kids out."

Leading the teams are Capts. Robin Guilfoy, Karen Cashman and Bridget Toland. Guilfoy will run sprints and throw the shot and discus, Cashman will run middle distances and do jumping events, and Toland will run the mile and two-mile.

Several other seniors will help out in field events including Deirdre Murphy and Karin Reister in the throws and Holly Rendle in the sprints and jumps.

Becky Zadig will sprint and throw the javelin. Other sprinters include junior Erica Norgaard and freshmen Tammy Coull, Cheryl Kelly, Amy Wong, Tricia Hughes, Jill McLellan, Kelli Gott and Meghan Bryan.

Hurdlers include Tristen Mastrogiacomo, Kelly LeBlanc, Kara Feeney and Nicole Sapienza.

Middle distance runners, who will be divided between the half-mile and hurdles, include sophomores Amanda Young, Kara Sullivan, Tara Miles, Kaitlin Barry, Stephanie Head and Brenda Clark, and freshman Cindy Walsh.

Throwers include seniors Guilfoy, Murphy, Reister and Zadig, sophomores Miles, Mastrogiacomo, Sullivan, Head and Barry and freshmen Claire McCarthy and Tara Guarnieri, McLellan and Zapienza, all of whom will switch between shot put and discus, or discus and javelin.

Jumpers include seniors Cashman and Rendle, sophomores Young, LeBlanc and Miles and freshmen Coull, Kelly, Wong, Hughes and Jennifer White.

Fore River Sweeps In Olindy's League

Fore River Motors was the Team of the Week in Olindy's Junior All-Star Bowling League, sweeping six points from Marchionne Insurance.

The team had the high single of 383 and a new high three of 1076. Carl Boomhower rolled 79-246, Brian Wilkosey 100-269, Randy Urich 91-274 and Jim Davis 88-212.

The team standings: Lombardi's Auto Cleaning, 45-15; Mike's Auto Body, 40-20; Scarry Realty, 37-23; Quincy Savings Bank, 33-27; Tony's, 31-29; Eco Muffler, 29-31; Goodhue's, 29-31; Fore River Motors, 28-32; Marchionne Insurance, 27-33; Dom's, 22-38; Patriot Glass, 20-40, and Finian's, 19-41

Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

Spring is the time to tune up your car for warm weather months ahead

The dog days of summer are on their way, and it's time to take the moth balls out of your swimsuits. But, while you are preparing yourself for the hot months ahead, don't forget to get your car in shape as well.

Since it is often difficult to know when your car needs attention, the following suggestions from Car Care Council will aid you in knowing what needs to be done to your auto and when to do it.

1. Watch to see if your engine is hard to start, uses gas excessively, is sluggish, smokes, or is excessively noisy.

2. Be sure that your cooling system is in good condition. The advent of more hot weather could bring about the failure of a hose, belt or other components. How long has it been since you checked your antifreeze/coolant?

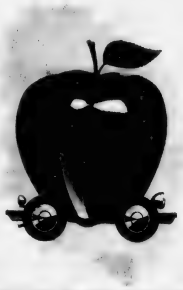
3. How about the condition of your tires? Heavy loads at high speeds on hot surfaces are hard on tires. To avoid failure, make sure tires have plenty of tread and are properly inflated.

4. How's your oil? Oil is not only a lubricant, it is a coolant as well. And clean, well filtered oil will help your engine survive the heat.

5. Check your transmission. Does it slip when you shift gears? Is it noisy? Does it shift erratically? For those who tow a trailer, it is especially vital for your transmission to be in the best working order possible.

6. Be sure that brakes stop evenly, and are not making any "funny" noises.

7. Watch to see that lights are working and that they are focused correctly. Also check turning signals and windshield wipers for smearing or streaking.



Now that you've determined some of your car's problems, you will need to find a competent auto repair shop. If this task seems overwhelming, it doesn't have to be. The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence, an organization that is highly respected in the automotive industry, is an independent, non-profit group which gives voluntary certification exams to technicians.

Motorists can be assured of finding competent automotive service and repair by asking for ASE certified technicians when visiting service stations, car dealerships and independent shops.

Businesses that employ ASE certified technicians usually display the ASE outdoor sign, a large white sign with a distinctive blue seal onto which are printed the initials A, S and E.

Even if your car is in tip top shape, safeguarding it from summer heat is very important. The most common complaint from summer drivers is that the heat affects a car's radiator, causing it to boil over. However, automotive experts believe that heat can affect the entire car, not just the coolant in the radiator.

Tires that are "overheated" can blow out or shred if the recommended air pressure is not maintained.

YOUR CAR—the apple of your eye—may be rotten to the core, warns Ziebart. Used Car Rust Protection takes care of hidden corrosion that can result in rust-throughs.

Strong sunlight combined with pollutants and salt can damage a car's finish. Washing your car regularly is the best way to combat this problem.

Keeping your car in the best condition possible with regular checkups is the best way to assure a car's longevity and the best way for you to enjoy a safe, happy spring and summer!

Spring is here... and it's time for your car to shed its winter coat of sludge, salt

Spring is here and it's time to get rid of that old winter coat—the winter coat of sludge and salt on the family car, compliments of another long winter.

And, chances are that, unless you took extra good care of your car during those winter months, the winter coat might be quite heavy.

But before rushing out to the driveway with pail, sponge and dish liquid in hand, consider this—your dish liquid is formulated for glass and china, not metal. Its high level of alkalinity actually promotes corrosion.

So, first start with a detergent specifically formulated for cars. Armor All Car Wash, just introduced, has an innovative formulation that actually enhances the wax shine.

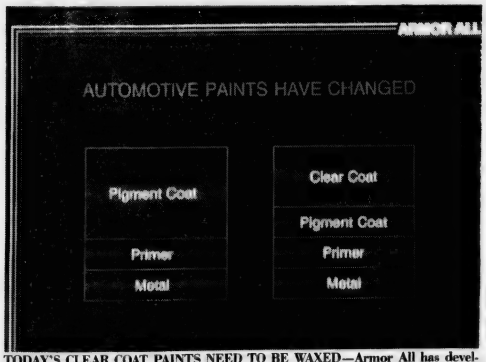
Selecting the proper car wax is equally important. Not long ago the auto industry moved to a new, multi-layered paint system. Nowadays, after the vehicle's body metal gets a coat of primer, a thin coat of color paint is applied, then the manufacturers apply a thick layer of clear acrylic or urethane enamel.

This clear layer is regular paint minus the pigment used in paint of other eras. It is tougher and more resistant to wear, and provides a much brighter gloss. But it can be damaged if you use a car wax that is too harsh or has abrasive ingredients.

In days before clear coat, as the paint oxidized, cars got that bleached-out look, as red-colored cars became pink or dark blue cars became sky blue. At that time, car wax was designed to remove the unattractive wax layer and restore the original color.

Today's clear coat paints still need to be waxed, but harsh abrasives damage the clear coat and expose unprotected paint. That's why it's important to use a car wax with the right ingredients.

One manufacturer, Armor All Products Corporation, has developed an industry first—an exclusive formula car wax, specifically designed for today's clear coat finishes.



"We saw the opportunity to create a product that addressed a problem that many consumers were encountering with their old standby wax," said Dr. Jim Latty, Armor All's vice president of research & development.

"But we had our work cut out for us. It took over eight years of studying wax and 18 months of development to come up with a formula for a wax that not only delivers a great shine, but won't damage a car's clear coat finish."

The Armor All development search took the researchers to the jewelry industry, where they located polishing agents five times smoother than those normally used in car wax. In fact, these polishing agents are the same ones used by jewelers for gold and delicate crystals.

"After taking a good look at what was ahead of us, we developed a wonderful combination of super-fine abrasives for polishing, mineral spirits for cleaning, fine waxes for a great shine and a combination of silicones for durability and smooth application," Latty adds.

So, remember, unless you plan to invest in a new "wardrobe" for your car, be careful when taking off that winter coat.

TODAY'S CLEAR COAT PAINTS NEED TO BE WAXED—Armor All has developed an exclusive formula car wax, specifically designed for today's clear coat finishes.

Beacon, Emmott's In Title Showdown

Beacon Sports and Emmott's Electric will play for the Executive Hockey League championship Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Senior League championship game will follow approximately 9 o'clock.

In the playoff semifinals Monday night Don Harrington had a hat trick to lead Emmott's over P.J.'s Flyers, 6-4.

Mark Boulter had two goals and Rick Joyce one. Ed Nolan, Paul Veneziano and Joyce had two assists apiece and Boulter one. Jim Gilmore, John Ryan, Stan Lisowski and Ed Lenihan had the Flyers' goals and Peter Janis, Dave Mullen and Ralph Gibbs had assists.

Beacon Sports topped Adams Sports, 3-1, as Kevin Jago had two goals and Chuck Behenna one. Fred Cashman and Artie Boyle had assists. Skip Manganaro scored for Adams and Mike Flaherty assisted.

In the previous games, goalie Artie Boyle, who had the best goals-against record during the regular season, posted another shutout and Kevin Jago had a hat trick as Beacon Sports topped South Shore Bearing, 5-0.

Behanna and Jack Duffy had the other goals. Bob Boyle, Artie's brother, had two assists and Peter DiBona, Charlie Watt and Joe Verlicco one each.

Emmott's Electrical defeated P.J.'s Flyers, 5-3, on goals by Jack Valle, Dick McCabe, Boulter, Venezeano and Marty Tolson. Tolson and Joyce had two assists apiece and Ed Dwyer, Valle, McCabe, Gibbs and Boulter one each. Lisowski, Janis and Bob North scored for the Flyers and assists for Gilmore and Jim Connolly.

Skip Managanaro and Dave Peters had two goals each to five Adams Sports a 4-2 win over Grumpy's Pub. Dennis O'Connell had two assists and Flaherty one. Doug MacLean and Mike Manganaro scored for Grumpy's and Mark Paolucci and Mark Matanes had assists.

Beechwood Knoll, Atlantic Clash For Championship

The championship of the annual Quincy Recreation Department Basketball Tournament Senior High School Division will feature Beechwood Knoll against Atlantic.

The two long-time opponents will tap off next Tuesday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m. at North Quincy High School gym.

Atlantic advanced to the championship behind Desmond Bellot's 18 points in a 62-54 win over Montclair. Jim Wood led Montclair with 18 points mostly coming in the second half. Brian Curran had 13 while Dan McLean tossed in 10 for the bulk of Atlantic scoring. John Shea had 12 and Kevin MacDougall eight to round out the top three scorers for Montclair. Longtime Montclair Coach Gerry Pratt also praised the playmaking of Garry Glenn and Scott MacDougall for his outstanding defense.

Atlantic coach George Dunn has his club back in the finals after an absence of several years. He pointed to the rebounding of Bill Warren as the key to his team's success. He was also pleased with the passing of son Scott, who lead both teams with nine assists.

In a preliminary game of the single elimination tournament Atlantic had defeated a well-Coached Point team, 76-51. Keith Douglas was top point scorer with 12, while Mike Gunther had nine. Atlantic's Angelo Kyranis had 23 to lead all scorers. Mike Duran had 14 and Brian Curran 13. Followed closely by Dan McLean with 12. Scott Dunn was tops in assists with 12.

Rick Radzik's Beechwood team advanced with a first round win over Sterling while Squantum was defeating Merrymount, 57-48. The Squantum win did not come easy as a tough Merrymount pulled within two points in the final two minutes. Merrymount's Rick Keddy had 21 while Matt Donovan and Mike Flavin each had seven. Steve Keddy followed closely with six, Brian Sullivan four, Chris Pay three and Lap Cheng one, in a balanced scoring attack.

Squantum was lead by Dave Hutchins 22 and Derek Nickerson 20 with most of Hutchins coming in the critical last few minutes. Dan Hobbin had six points and 12 assists while squantum Coach Teddy Stevenson was pleased with the play of Ed Stanton.

Mark Righini of Sterling got 14 points from Chris Beauchamp and 10 from Chris Beatrice but could not hold on as Beechwood advanced 56-34. Behind Jamie Green and Mike Danick who had 14 and Jackie Green with 11. Chris Kyler also had nine, all three-pointers, as Jack Kelly in his usual fashion played all of his 10-man roster. Kelly also cited the defensive play of Dave Murphy. Joe Malvesti had six and Jason Buckley 2 to round out Sterling's scoring. Peter White was top rebounder for both teams.

In the Atlantic-Beechwood semi-final Beechwood jumped out early and could not be stopped as they advanced, 68-59. Jack Green lead all scorers with 20. Jamie Green six and Mark Kelleher played solid defense. Derek Nickerson, Ed Welby were the top Squantum point getters.

The annual Recreation Tournament is made up of participants from Recreation centers across the city. The tournament is held at the conclusion of the department's 25-week winter program. Participants cannot have played on a high school varsity team. All teams are coached by Recreation leaders of the Quincy Recreation Department.

The following six-seven months focus on taking on tasks of great responsibility. Meaningful relationships are further enhanced through the rest of 1989.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Lots of fun is happening surprisingly close to home. Influential acquaintance comes to your assistance after the weekend. Business dealings require a well-crafted game plan.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Cultural events are highlighted through the weekend, then personal relationships dominate your time. Be super thoughtful if providing a romantic setting. Disputes are amicably settled.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Platonic friendship is a highlight of the week. Small differences of opinion can get out of hand, especially on the job scene. Some surprise travel may be on tap after the weekend.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Compromise is the key word, both at home and in work setting. Chance to reconcile with relative should be seized promptly. You excel in the role of guest speaker.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Minor professional disappointment may prove a blessing in disguise. If planning any kind of moves, it's best to double check every detail. Family-related mystery is solved at last.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Artistic gifts really shine; this is a perfect week for setting up a drawing board or an easel. Co-worker is surprisingly willing to back you. Partner is unusually sentimental.

LEO — July 23 - August 22
Several intriguing invitations find their way to your door. New assignment may be more demanding than expected, but giving it your best shot may have special rewards.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Taking your concerns to the top people can bring satisfying results. Social life is more promising than it's been of late. Home-improvement plan is spotlighted at this time.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Matters recently put on hold are again moving--and at considerable speed. Volunteer assignment may lead to a new friendship. Your optimism proves contagious, expecially on the homefront.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
New neighbors or co-workers are delightfully upbeat, but this is not the best week for distractions. New responsibilities, both at home and at workplace, demand your special attention.

SAGITARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Detective work pays off, and may lead to a coup on the job front. A few unexpected expenses may lead to moneybelt-tightening. Romance continues on the upswing.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Professional status may be elevated thanks to a recent achievement. Home life is much livelier, owing largely to a string of semi-expected guests. Key phrase this week: be curious.

Wollaston Glee Club Spring Concert April 20

The Wollaston Glee Club, under the direction of Edward A. Munro, and accompanied by Marion Carpenter-Worden, will present its annual Spring Concert at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, Sunday, April 30 at 3:30 p.m.

Among the songs performed by the Glee Club will be "Waltzing Matilda," "Man and His World," "Yellow Bird," "June Is Busting Out All Over," and "Up The Street."

Carlton Haynes, 18, a senior at Milton High School, will perform a piano recital at the concert. Haynes was the winner of the Wollaston Glee Club music Scholarship Contest, in the memory of Lewis B. Carlson, a past president of the Club. $500, donated by Margaret S. Carlson will be applied toward Haynes' future musical education.

15 Artists To Exhibit At National Fire Protection Assn.

The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) headquarters, Batterymarch Park, will host the seventh annual Art For Heart benefit art exhibit for the American Heart Association Sunday, April 23 from 3 to 6 p.m.

The event will feature the work of fifteen artists, 12 of whom are Massachusetts residents, on exhibit and for sale.

This year's exhibit will also feature selected prints from the late Corita, who is best known for her rainbow design on the Boston Gas Tank in 1971 and the "Love" U.S. postal stamp she designed in 1985.

The $10 admission fee to the exhibit is a tax-deductible gift to the American Heart Association. For further information, call the NFPA at 770-3000.

Industrial Revolution Historical Society Topic

The regular members meeting of the Quincy Historical Society will be held Thursday, April 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Speaker will be Dr. Robert Brown of the Museum of American Textile History in North Andover. He will discuss "The Industrial Revolution in New England."

Industry rescued New England's failing agricultural economy after the turn of the 19th century, and transformed many towns like Quincy into industrial cities.

Dr. Brown will consider the general outlines of this transformation and will draw upon specific examples of local industrialization.

The meeting is open to the public and refreshments will be served.

Program at YMCA Pace & Race

The South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy, will offer a Pace & Race Running Program beginning in April.

This is a 10-week training program designed for runners of all levels. The purpose of the program is to educate, motivate and train runners properly for road races as well as enhancing physical fitness.

The program will consist of two supervised group runs per week, a pre and post health fitness evaluation, information on local road races and lots of encouragement.

Interested participants should call Gayle Pizza at the South Shore YMCA, 479-8500, for more information.

Wilderwalks Program For Familes At Crane Library April 18

The Thomas Crane Public Library will host a performance by Wilderwalks, featuring storyteller Diane Edgecomb and musician Kevin Skorupa, Tuesday, April 18 at 7 p.m.

Their participatory program is ideal for families with children age five and older.

Wilderwalks specializes in seasonal stories and songs and their folklore represents several traditions including New England, the British Isles and the Scandinavian countries.

Edgecomb has a background in children's theater and education. She has performed for "A Spider's Web," a WGBH Radio production, and has also received a Year's Best Actress Award for her work with the Tufts Arena Theatre.

Skorupa plays several instruments including the cittern, the tin whistle, the harp and guitar, and has performed in the Boston area for ten years. He also writes all the original music for the Wilderwalks stories.

The event is being funded by the Quincy Arts Council.

WILDERWALKS CELEBRATES SPRING with story and song at the Thomas Crane Public Library Tuesday, April 18 at 7 p.m. Storyteller Diane Edgecomb and musician Kevin Skorupa encourages audience participation in their program.

Cultural Fair At QHS

Plans are underway at Quincy High School for a Cultural Fair to be held at the school during the week of May 1-5.

The multi-cultural awareness week was initiated by students and is being planned by a committee composed of students and faculty.

Current plans call for contests, posters, announcements in various languages, workshops, concerts, and displays. An important contribution will be made by speakers from the "Children of War" program, who will relate their experiences growing up in war-torn nations.

Cultural groups being represented at the fair include Chinese, Vietnamese, Cambodian, Lebanese, Italian, Israeli, Irish, Polish, French, German, Hispanic, African, Greek, and Scandinavian.

Cheri Condon Accepted At Conservatory

Cheri Ann Condon, daughter of Richard and Rosemary Warren of North Quincy, has been accepted for the fall semester at The Boston Conservatory for music dance and theater.

Condon has been accepted into the Bachelor of Fine Arts program, majoring in musical theater.

Recreation Dept. Ceramics Display In Quincy Sun Window

Thirty-six boys and girls from all areas of Quincy have ceramic creations on display in the Hancock St. window of The Quincy Sun, as part of the Quincy Recreation Department annual exhibit of projects done in a 20-week winter program.

The display, which will continue until April 22, has artistic pieces created by participants at the Recreation Departments two locations for instructional ceramics. All youngsters are age eight to middle school.

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch said: "We appreciate the cooperation of The Quincy Sun for their annual support of this project. This annual public display is an important way towards recognizing each youngsters achievements. The creative talents of these participants are often over shadowed by the highly publicized sports programs we offer."

Preble Kicks Off Campaign For School Committee

Michael Preble, a 22-year old community activist and student at Quincy Junior College, formally kicked off his campaign for School Committee at a fundraiser Monday at the Legion Post.

A lifelong Quincy resident and community activist, Preble said issues he will address include the school budget, special education and school building maintenance. He also said he'll work towards improving the quality of education in Quincy.

MIKE PREBLE

"Through the course of the campaign and through research and attendance at (School Committee) meetings I have found that everyone seems to have a different set of priorities. All of these different priorities boil down to one common goal: the quality of education," he said.

Stating that "each person has a different definition of quality education," Preble said, "I see the School Committee's role as the one who has to sift through the different definitions and combine them all into one common area. I see that as a pyramid.

"One point of this pyramid is personnel, one point of the pyramid is facilities and the last point are the resources. All three points revolved around the students who are in the middle of this pyramid.

"Like the pyramid one point is no more important but equal and no side can stand without the other two," he said.

"With this in mind, I see the main concept of the school committee as the budget. The ones who set it up and the ones who administer it. The budget is the tool that groups all this together," he said, adding the school budget contains the largest number of personnel in the city, thus providing the biggest service.

Preble pointed out that 35 percent of the total city budget goes to the school department. "These are not small numbers."

Addressing the budget, Preble said, "I am not saying that we should take money from another area but we have to have a balance of all the areas to make up the formula of quality education.

"Money is everything in a budget and you get what you pay for," he added.

Preble also said that without personnel, the school system would not function.

"Continuing education is an important area to enable us to keep our teachers as up to date as we can in the areas of math and science. The students that are being taught in the school system today have to be able to face the challenges before them in the 21st century," he said.

Preble said he stands for making the school system "as attractive as possible" to new "specialized" teachers. "This can only be accomplished through a compensation package that is competitive in the market today.

"If Quincy wants to remain second to none in education than we must recruit more teachers like the ones that we have, which are second to none," he added.

As for maintaining school buildings, Preble said, "We must come up with a system of maintenance catered to the needs of the individual buildings and not just a system.

"If elected, there will be no band-aids put on, the area will be fixed."

Finally, Preble said "I see a bright future for our young people. I want to make quality education a reality for every student in Quincy."

He is a member of the Houghs Neck Community Council, Quincy Citizens Organization and Mass. Tax Payers Association.

To all persons interested in the estate of PHEBE SANDS, of Quincy, in said County, a person under conservatorship.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the First and Final account(s) of Elden D.J. Zuern and Joseph G. Zona as Conservators (the fiduciary) of the property of said Phebe Sands has-have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the 17th day of May, 1989, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this sixth day of April, 1989.

QHS Students Tutoring English As Second Language

More than a dozen student volunteers in grades 10 through 12 are presently tutoring English as a Second Language (ESL) and Bilingual students at Quincy High School.

All ESL students are recent immigrants from Asia, South America and Greece who are primarily tutored in English but several are also helped in math, science and computer courses.

The volunteers are members of the Thomas Jefferson Forum, a high school based community volunteer program.

QHS students volunteer one to three hours a week after school to improve the skills of their non-English speaking classmates.

Students involved say it is a rewarding experience and it has given them more insight into the difficulties non-English speaking students encounter.

PRAYER OF APPLICATION TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, who light all roads so that I can attain my goal, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and who in all instances of my life are with me; I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you and even in spite of all material illusion, I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Repeat this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the favor will be granted even though it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after favor is granted without mentioning the favor.

Now You Can 'Adopt' A Traffic Island

As a way to help beautify the city, Quincy has begun an "Adopt An Island" program, announce Mayor Francis McCauley and Councillor Timothy Cahill.

Traffic islands and small city-owned green spaces can be adopted by businesses, residents, non-profit organizations and service clubs.

Sponsors will be responsible for planting and maintaining the islands from May through the first frost in the fall.

The city will provide each island with a sign indicating the sponsor's name.

A list of available islands has been inventoried by the Park Department. Applications are now available.

The mayor became familiar with the "Adopt an Island" program while visiting Peabody for a Massachusetts Mayor's Association monthly meeting.

As chairman of the Downtown and Economic Development Committee, Cahill has been concerned with the upkeep of city green spaces, especially in the downtown area.

Both McCauley and Cahill said this program will aid in the beautification of all city neighborhoods.

For more information and applications, contact Brian Buckley of the Park Department at 773-1380, ext. 267.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro has expressed his support for the program and has already been responsible for beginning the program in his ward.

The Ward 2 Civic Association and Quincy Neighborhood Services are maintaining the new Veterans Park at the corner of Southern Artery and Washington St.

VOLUNTEERS APPLY PRIMER to a three-story house on the grounds of St. John's Church Saturday. The house, which will open May 1 and house eight women on an affordable housing basis, will be given a second coat this Saturday.

Thanks To Volunteers:

Affordable Housing Home For 8 Women A Reality April 25

An extensively refurbished three-story boarding house located on the grounds of St. Johns Church in Quincy Center will be dedicated Tuesday, April 25 at 9 a.m.

The home, which will house eight women on an affordable housing basis, is scheduled to open May 1, said Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's.

The dedication, to include a blessing by Bishop Daniel A. Hart, will culminate the efforts of several dozen volunteers who have donated their time and services for the affordable housing project.

The refurbishing project began last July when the house, donated by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, was moved from Bigelow St. to St. John's Church. Since then, the house, built by Henry Faxon at the turn of the century, has undergone extensive renovations inside and out.

Moving and refurbishing expenses have totaled $130,000, Rev. McCarthy said. Money for the renovations was secured through the Quincy Planning Department, Quincy Neighborhood Housing and the state's Office of Economic Affairs.

With the renovations, the house and the land lot are worth an estimated $700,000, Rev. McCarthy added.

The project represents a partnership between the City of Quincy and St. John's Church. It is also the first completed project of Quincy Affordable Housing, an organization formed by mayor Francis McCauley two years ago.

"This is the first project of its kind. Hopefully with some more cash, there will be a lot more," Rev. McCarthy said. "It was a tremendous effort by everyone."

Tuesday's dedication will also feature remarks by Mayor McCauley, Rev. McCarthy and Robert Quinn, former president of Quincy Affordable Housing.

City Plans Foreclosure Action

150 Delinquents Owe $377,000 In Real Estate Taxes

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city is preparing to take foreclosure action on approximately 150 delinquent real estate tax titles if the taxes totalling about $377,000 are not paid.

Deadline to pay 1988 outstanding real estate bills is Thursday, May 4 at 10 a.m., said Dana Childs, Tax Collector Treasurer. Once the deadline passes, the city can take the first legal step toward foreclose, Childs said.

"The next step is the actual taking of tax titles. From there, the foreclosure process begins at land court (in Dedham)," he said.

"We have had some forclosures in the past," Childs added.

The real estate tax titles range from homes and business to vacant lots and "some that are balances left when the taxpayer paid the original bill late," Childs noted.

Mayor Francis McCauley, who has aggressively pursued delinquent tax revenue during his seven years in office, said the money is important to the city's fiscal status.

The mayor said delinquent tax money, once collected, goes into the city's "spending stream."

"The more taxes we collect, the better our free cash situation. We have aggressively collected delinquent taxes. When they're not paid, we take foreclosure action.

"The less uncollected tax money we have at the end of the year, the better off the financial condition of the city," McCauley said.

Since McCauley took office, the city has collected approximately $7.8 million in delinquent tax money. During the six and half years prior to the McCauley administration, the city collected slightly more than $2 million.

From Jan. 4, 1982 to June 30, 1988, the city collected $7,876, 764 in delinquent tax revenue. Of that amount, $5,877,680 was in tax title money and $1,999,084 was interest.

The mayor pointed out that when he took office in 1982, the city had 651 delinquent tax cases totalling more than $7 million. About $1.6 million of this amount was money legally withheld by General Dynamics that resulted from tax abatement cases during 1977 to 1980.

However, since 1982, the city has increased its delinquent tax collections by 283 percent, or $5,820,401.

The mayor noted that despite new cases every year, the city has had good success collecting delinquent tax revenue.

"We go after this money. We've had some good success. We have an aggressive policy of collecting taxes, especially delinquent taxes.

"I think we've done a pretty good job on it," he said.

In the three years that Childs has been in charge of the bills, this year is the highest total of delinquent tax title money. It is also the earliest the list has been compiled in three years.

Childs credits the efficiency to the department's computer.

"We keep getting better because of the computer. At this particular time, the computer printed all the tax forms. Previously, these were typewritten," he said, adding that the tax title cards used to

Quincy Runners Finish Marathon Despite Heat

Sen. Paul Harold was one of many Quincy runners in the Boston Marathon and, running Boston for the sixth time and his ninth marathon overall, he had his worst outing, finishing in 4 hours, 55 minutes.

"I was shooting for under four hours, but the heat was too much," he said. "If you drank too much water you would get cramps and if you didn't drink enough, you'd get dehydrated. It was pretty miserable."

Thirty runners left the South Shore YMCA to run in the marathon and among the Quincy finishers were Bill Mullen, Herbie Green, Quincy High principal Lloyd Hill, Dana Ahern and two Quincy police officers, Steve O'Brien and Charlie Santoro.

A number of Quincy women ran and the first Quincy finisher among them was Diane Murphy, who finished 153rd in 3:21.22.

Donna Dealmeida finished in 3:44.19, Karen Lehive in 3:52.03, Mary Przbylowicz and Peg Roesler both in 4:07.37 and Elaine Crowley in 4:15.31.

Fifteen members of the Quincy Auxiliary Police, under the direction of Tony Siciliano, assisted the Hopkinton Police Dept. along with two marked cruisers and with the Quincy Civil Defense Communications unit which set up all communications for outside department participation.

DeCristofaro Suggests 'Shipbuilders Park'

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro has requested the city's Park and Recreation Board to consider changing the name of Victory Park on Southern Artery to Shipbuilders Park.

DeCristofaro has also requested that some type of memorial indicating that this site is dedicated to Quincy shipbuilders be established.

"The dedication and expertise of the men and women of Quincy in the science and technology of shipbuilding for over a century, both during peacetime and wartime, is a great source of pride to the City of Quincy and should be preserved," DeCristofaro said.

Historic District Extension To Be Discussed Thursday

The proposed Quincy local Historic District extension will be discussed at a public information hearing on Thursday, April 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor confernece room of the new City Hall.

Patricia and Michael Kenyon, who made the preliminary survey and prepared the plans, will explain details of the proposed extension.

Joyce I. Baker, Quincy Historic District Commission chairman, will also speak.

City Councillors, Quincy Center merchants and residents of the areas affected are expected to attend and express their opinions.

Historical Commission Hearing April 24

The Quincy Historical Commission will hold a public hearing Monday, April 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Planning Office conference room, City Hall annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy.

Purpose of the hearing is to consider a request from Joseph Palumbo, 46 Presidents Ave., to change the parking space allotment from two spaces to four spaces accomodating the change from a single-family house to a two-family house.

Save Gas and Money... Shop Locally

PLANS FOR THE Summit View affordable housing complex, to be built in West Quincy, were unveiled at a ceremony last week. Three hundred and nine apartments will be built on the site of an old granite quarry in West Quincy. Amy Anthony, secretary of Communities and Development, announced the project as Quincy officials look on. From left, Sen. Paul Harold, Mayor Francis X. McCauley, Rosemary Wahlberg of Quincy Housing Authority; and developer Stephen Ricciardi.

Conditional OK For Self-Service Point Car Wash

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted with conditions a request from Charles C. Hajjar for a self-service, coin-operated car wash at 576 South St.

Hajjar originally requested a 24-hour license, noting that a West Quincy car wash operates 24 hours. The board said that the West Quincy establishment received no opposition from abutters.

Hajjar agreed to limit the hours of operation to 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro told the board he is concerned about a buffer zone between the car wash and neighboring residents. Hajjar said he plans to put up hedges and a fence and the board stipulated that it be in place by the third week of May. Hajjar agreed.

The board also stipulated that Hajjar contain the lighting at the site to his own property and ensure that it does not shine on the property of neighbors. After 11 p.m. security lights only wil be allowed on.

Building Commissioner Matthas Mulvy told Hajjar that there must be signs for customers stating that steam-cleaning and de-greasing of car engines would not be allowed at the site. Mulvy said there must also be an emergency phone number posted for customers.

L.P. Gangi of 577 South St. and Mrs. P. Keene of 588 South St. were present at the meeting. Mr. Gangi asked the board if the hours of closing could be earlier due to frequent problems with fighting in the area. Police Chief Francis Finn suggested that a condition of the license state that, if there are any problems with the police at the site, the hours of operation would be cut. Hajjar agreed.

The board granted the license stipulating that all the conditions of lighting, signage, hours of operation and landscaping be met.

$1.8 Million Block Grant Recommendations Before City Council

The City Council was expected to vote on the Quincy Planning Department's recommendations for spending next year's $1.8 million community development block grant money Tuesday night.

The Planning Department has recommended that $378,880 be used for neighborhood public improvements.

The money includes $33,500 for tot lots in Kincaide Park and Germantown; $16,380 for pedestrian walk renovations on Sea St.; $229,000 for street improvements and $100,000 for downtown traffic and pedestrian improvements.

The recommendations were submitted by Mayor Francis

FRANCIS McCAULEY

McCauley. They wer prepared after aseries of meetings of residents, neighborhood, civic and community organizations, department heads and councillors.

According to Kevin Shea, one of the city's assistant planners, the location of the street improvements will be decided in conjunction with the City Highway Department. Shea said the money reserved for downtown improvements is being used as Quincy's share of a matching state grant.

If the council approves the recommendations, the Quincy Housing Partnership-Development Corp. would receive $127,500 or enough money to assist six families through a home-ownership program established for moderate-income families.

The Planning Department also recommended that $278,127 be earmarked for public services, of which $122,934 would go to the Council on Aging to continue its elderly outreach program. The other $155,000 would to to the city's community centers to hlep them carry on their activities.

Also included in the package was $80,000 to Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services. Of the amount, $50,000 would to into its loan fund and $30,000 would pay a rehabilitation specialist to inspect homes of applicants seeking renovation loans and to write reports of his visits.

Another $450,000 was reserved for planning and administration costs and contingencies.

Youth Goes Through Plate Glass Window

A youth escaped serious injury after he went through a large plate glass window at Bernie's Modern Formal Shop on Hancock St. Saturday afternoon, the store owner said Tuesday.

According to Bernie Reisberg, priprietor of the formal shop, a youth went through a four by seven foot glass window after "fooling around" with two other youths outside the shop last Saturday. The youth suffered some cuts and was taken to Quincy Hospital for treatment.

Reisberg did not know the names of the youths. A spokesperson for the Quincy Police Department said no report was issued on the incident.

Reisberg, who was working at his store at the time of the incident, said the youth is very fortunate to be alive.

"He could have been decapitated very easily if one piece of glass had fallen on top of him. The impact was enough to cut himself up and crack the entire window," he said., noting the glass is "a good quarter of an inch thick."

Asked whether the incident resulted from an argument, Reisberg said, "it wasn't a fight as far as I know but there have been fights (in the area) in the past."

"These fights do happen. They fight and they horse around. I'm grateful it wasn't worse. Saturday's incident didn't even surprise me," he said.

Reisberg said he was not surprised by the incident because the Quincy Square area near his store is fast becoming a favorite place for youths and teenagers to congregate. He and other members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association have requested more security from the Quincy Police Department.

Reisberg, who describes the area as a "hot spot," has called for police assistance, including 911, several times. He said the youths "fool around" and "horse around" in the area and sometimes "hit his windows."

"The (police) response is there but sometimes the cruiser just drives on by. The longer we wait to disperse these kids, the worse these so-called gangs are going to get," he said, adding that more security is needed in the area.

"I hope we don't wait until there is a very severe accident because this kid did come close to being decapitated," Reisberg said.

The broken window was boarded up Saturday and replaced Tuesday. Reisberg said the youth who went through the glass apologized and offered to pay for the window.

Reisberg said he did not know the cost to replace the window.

ANNUITIES
(Part 2)

There are several different types of annuities that you can purchase from an insurance company. They are as follows: Flexible Premium Deferred Annuity, Single Premium Deferred Annuity, and Single Premium Immediate Annuity.

Today, I will discuss the Flexible Premium Deferred Annuity, which is also very popular for IRA accounts. This type of contract is very desirable with people who would like to deposit their money at different intervals during the year such as monthly, quarterly, semiannually, and annually.

The title "Flexible Premium" describes this annuity perfectly. You can pay the same premium each time, change it, or even skip a deposit if you so desire. All monies deposited with the insurance company are guaranteed. Any interest earned is deferred from taxation, which means it stays in your account giving you the great advantage of compounded interest. However, if any of the funds are withdrawn, they must be reported on your tax return as income in the year of the withdrawal.

With most insurance companies, there is a penalty if monies are withdrawn during the first seven years of the contract. These penalties will reduce in rate each year.

Ward Primaries Mean A Lot

Steve McGrath and Jim Sheets haven't even suggested it could help them in this year's four-way mayoral race.

But some political observers definitely think it would.

By "it" they mean a good primary face-off for city councillor in Wards 1 and 4.

McGrath, Sheets and the other two major contenders — former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and businessman Peter O'Connell — know that every vote will count in the Sept. 12 primary.

And every voter that comes out that day will be a plus for one of them.

When McGrath decided to run for mayor he left a city council at-large seat open. And when Sheets got into the mayoral field, he left the Ward 4 seat vacant.

As a result back then, it looked like a get-out-of-the-way rush of candidates for Cheney's Ward 1 seat and for Sheets' Ward 4 seat.

McGRATH

SHEETS

The prime beneficiaries of primary fights for those two seats seemingly would be McGrath and Sheets, observers felt.

A good primary in the two wards would bring larger voter turnouts in the Sept. 12 primary, in those two wards.

McGrath figured to benefit in Ward 1 where his campaign chairman, former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly lives and still has a strong following. Kelly, it was thought would reap a lot of those votes — especially in Houghs Neck — for McGrath.

But, despite the open seat in Ward 1, there are only two official candidates: Peter Kolson and Marcia Olinto.

Unless another one gets in, there will be no primary for Ward 1 councillor. This could mean fewer voters going to the polls from Ward 1.

In Ward 4, a good dozen potential candidates were being mentioned as Sheets announced for mayor.

But most of them quickly vanished leaving Tom Fabrizio and Joseph Shea as the only two official candidates at the moment.

Keith Westerman is expected to make it a threesome at an announcement party April 29 at the Hollow Restaurant, Adams St., Quincy.

This will mean a primary in Ward 4 but nothing like the one visualized when there appeared to be six contenders warming up.

Sheets, who is winding up his 16th year as a popular Ward 4 councillor would benefit from a red-hot council primary which would bring out a guaranteed larger vote than a no-primary or three-candidate primary would.

Wards 1 and 4 may yet have a primary but if they do, they won't be the biggies anticipated earlier. But it appears, they may be the only ones.

Incumbents Ted DeCristofaro (Ward 2), Larry Chretien (3), Charles Phelan (5) and Thomas Nutley (6) have no opposition at the moment and none in sight.

There's more movement in the City Council at-large field with Susan Gallagher of Willow St., Wollaston planning to make her announcement April 30.

That will bring the at-large field to five. The others: Incumbents Patricia Toland and Tim Cahill, Mike Cheney and Denis Tardo (Cheney will wind up with an incumbent designation on the November ballot.)

The five candidate lineup is still two shy for a primary face-off. Seven candidates are required with three seats involved.

Of course, the four major mayoral candidates are generating a lot of voter interest and should produce one of the largest turnouts in recent years for the Sept. 12 preliminary election.

But this year, every vote counts. Any voter who doesn't go to the polls Sept. 12 for lack of a ward primary fight, could hurt a candidate he would like to see as Quincy's next mayor, and help one he doesn't.

Perhaps even more so in Wards 1 and 4.

MAYORAL CANDIDATE Peter O'Connell has a unique "Fun-Raiser and Family Day" at Marina Bay and Fenway Park coming up Saturday, June 24. Quincy Kiwanis Club Celebrates 65th Anniversary

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy will celebrate its 65th anniversary tonight (Thursday) with a Ladies Night-Dinner Dance at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

A social hour will be held at 7 p.m. followed by dinner at 8 p.m.

In keeping with the motto of Kiwanis, "We Build," the Kiwanis Club of Quincy has spent 65 years of giving, sharing and helping to build a better community.

Since its inception in 1924, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy has expended over $380,000 in charitable donations, camperships, scholarships, YMCA Building Fund, Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center and countless other worthwhile causes.

Two maior traditional meetings take place each year as a result of Quincy Kiwanis. Each year the members host a pre-Thanksgiving goodwill luncheon prior to the annual Thanksgiving Day football game between Quincy and North Quincy High Schools. The other event is the annual joint meeting around Memorial Day of all Quincy service clubs, Lions, Rotary and Kiwanis.

At Thursday night's gathering Legion of Honor members will be recognized and one of the members will receive his Red Blazer which indicates his personal contribution to the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center. Representatives of the Trauma Center will be among those in attendance.

Job Burnout Workshop At QJC April 25

Takes Issue With Letter Regarding Edison Edgar Station

(Editor's note: The writer of the following letter, is responding to a letter which appeared in The Quincy Sun and several other newspapers regarding the Boston Edison Edgar Station in North Weymouth)

Mr. Gerard Londergan
Hull Municipal Electric Board
Hull, Massachusetts

Dear Mr. Londergan:

Your letter, which recently appeared in several area newspapers, concerning our future plans for the retired Edgar Generating Station in Weymouth, is incorrect in a number of areas.

Boston Edison Company has begun a very conservative process of licensing the site for potential construction of a new plant in the early 1990's should the demand for electricity require it. We have no plans to reactivate the old plant.

This insurance policy is but one aspect of our flexible approach to resource planning that allows Boston Edison to meet the future needs of customers at the least cost with a combination of demand and supply options. This balanced planning process was approved by the state's Energy Facilities Siting Council.

In addition to planning for the possible addition of modern electrical generating capacity, our resource plan emphasizes energy efficiency programs. Our customers now have more than 20 different demand-side management programs to choose from.

We are also a leader in encouraging the development of alternative sources of power by non-utility developers. In fact, during periods of record use, these programs have allowed us to shave our peak by 50 megawatts.

Nevertheless, if electricity use continues to grow at higher than expected rates, we will have a site pre-licensed that will cut two to three years off the amount of time needed to build a plant to meet that growth.

This flexible strategy is hardly characteristic of a dinosaur mentality as you charge. In fact, we do adapt to change and will continue to do so to meet our customers' energy needs.

As for Pilgrim II cancellation costs, the DPU allowed recovery of $12.5 million for 11.5 years which equals $143.7 million, not the $400 million you charge.

I am also surprised that as the commissioner of a municipal light board you fail to realize that the DPU does not guarantee any utility a profit. The commission sets the rate of return a utility may try to earn.

If you, or other members of the Hull Municipal Electric Board would like more information, I would be happy to arrange for a personal presentation to your board.

L. Carl Gustin
Senior Vice President
Boston Edison

'I Am Truly Impressed'

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

The youth of our communities seem to get a lot of bad press. We as adults, I think, like to believe that none of them will make anything of themselves in the future. We talk and hear about all the children and the things that they do wrong, but little is mentioned, when they do good. I can bear witness to the fact that our kids can be good too!

When was the last time you heard that an assemblage of 300-400 High School youths didn't include drugs, drunkeness, fights, and destruction? I have seen it!

When did you last hear that a group of youths this size was well-dressed, extremely well-mannered, had un-impeachable conduct, were considerate, and were caring for others? I have seen it!

When have you ever heard of this many youths together, that were intensely serious about being on time, working well with others, making every minute productive, using their abilities to the fullest, and doing, all of this without some prodding? I have seen it!

When was the last time you heard about this many kids together, without police or security guards at every corner, without someone shouting constant instructions and reprimands, and without idle youths roaming through hallways, getting into trouble? I have seen it!

I have seen all of these things in one place, in one day! Was it a dream? Not at all! It was all very real. I observed first hand, all of these wondrous things. The event that I was attending, as a participant and observer, was called: "The 9th Annual Development Conference of the Southeastern/Metro Region of Jobs for Baystate Graduates." It was held on April 11 at the Sheraton Mansfield Hotel in Mansfield.

This conference is an annual event, designed to test the students in this program on the skills that they have been learning all year in their individual JBSG chapters at individual high schools. Quincy is blessed with two such programs, one at Quincy High and the other at North Quincy High. Skills such as: Decision making, Career vocabulary, Personal survival, Resume writing, Telephone techniques, Communications, Public speaking, and Employment interviews, are all part of the training and competitive events.

This is only the tip of the iceberg. Students are instructed all year, on how to be a good employee, and while being employed, how to create a successful career for their own future - no matter what the job.

As a businessman and parent my exposure to this program was brought about by my daughter, Amy, who early in the program was bubbling with enthusiasm. I mean this girl was actually excited to no-end about a subject in school! She's a good student and all, but still, excitement for a school subject! It had to be investigated by this parent.

The next thing I knew, I was slowly becoming involved. Although my involvement has been brief so far, and my overall knowledge on the basic program has to be considered limited, my attendance at the conference and the actions of these young adults, has now pulled me in by "hook, line, and sinker." This is a program that we should all take a real hard look at, and throw community support behind.

The business people of Quincy should really become involved, in time and money. We in business have been complaining of the poor product that is entering the job market from our schools. We complain that this product of the schools being sent to us for jobs is really unprepared, and the attitude of the people coming to us really leaves a lot to be desired.

We complain that the young person entering or attempting to enter our companies doesn't understand or care what it takes to be a good employee. This can very much be turned around with a program such as this. Not only do they instruct and prepare these young people, but they follow up on their progress, after leaving school. The success rate speaks for itself.

Board Seeks Removal Of 15 Crime Comic Books

April 20-26 1949 40 Years Ago

Quincy's Literary Review Board called on Police Chief John J. Avery to remove from the city's newsstands 15 crime comic books that had earned the board's disapproval.

The Rev. Joseph D. Parkman, chairman, said the board had ordered the offending magazines off the stands a month ago but the publishers told him they would be withdrawn only by police action.

The books were among a list of 44 that had been deemed by the board to be "blue prints to juvenile delinquency."

Rev. Mr. Parkman also complained to Atty. Gen. Francis E. Kelly about circulars being mailed into Quiancy advertising "lusty reading for he-men and mature women."

And, for good measure, he blasted authorities in Boston for permitting "sexy, passionate, lurid, exotic novels, art studies of nudes, including life in a nudist colony" on the newsstands.

"It's almost futile to clean house here when you can get them next door," he said.

2 Nuns At St. Joseph's To Celebrate 50th Anniversaries Sunday

Two nuns from St. Joseph's Convent, Quincy point, will observe their 50th anniversary in religious life on Sunday, April 23 with a Mass at St. Joseph's Church.

Sister Mary Loyola Bender from Owensboro, kentucky, and Sister Eileen mary Cunningham from Chelsea, Mass. entered the Sisters of Providence at St. Mary-of-the Woods, Indiana, in 1939.

Since St. Mary-of-the Woods Mother House is just outside Terre Haute, "Larry Bird Country," the Sisters are great admirers of the athlete. When Larry Bird became part owner of the boston Connection Hotel (formerly the Sheraton) in Terre Haute, he dedicated one floor to St. Mary-of-the Woods College, and other floors to Rosepoly Technig College and the Indiana State University.

The two sisters live at St. Joseph's Convent, Quincy Point. There are now 13 retired Sisters in this Convent. The total years these Sisters have worked for the Sisters of Providence total 631 years.

St. Joseph's Church has two convents, one beside St. Joseph's School and the other on Beechwood St. with three nuns who work in the school.

These two convents with 16 nuns are reminders of the past when there were numerous vocations for those wishing to be sisters, according Rev. Joseph Downey of St. Joseph's Church.

Their little chapels are the hope of the future where these nuns pray hard that a few more young ladies will walk in their footsteps and possibly enter the convent and become future teachers in our parochial schools, Rev. Downey continues.

The nine churches in Quincy are now in the middle of a drive for vocations, "Called by Name," in which they are looking for more vocations to the priesthood and sisterhood.

Licensed Practical Nurse Week

This week has been proclaimed "Licensed Practical Nurse Week" by Mayor Francis X. McCauley.

Noting that LPN week has been observed each April since 1979, McCauley said licensed practical nurses are educationally prepared to provide direct nursing care to citizens throughout the state.

"Licensed practical nurses are licensed practitioners responsible and accountable for providing quality health care to all patients placed in their charge. Through participation in continuing education, LPNs expand their basic nursing knowledge and skills to provide current quality nursing nursing care at all times," the mayor said.

Pointing out LPNs perform nursing functions in all areas of health care, McCauley said, "Licensed practical nurses are valuable and contributing members of the health care team."

"It is appropriate to pay special tribute to all the licensed practical nurses who provide skilled, cost effective, quality nursing care to the citizens of Quincy," he added.

Water Water Everywhere But Is It Safe To Drink?

Testing the Waters: a Consumer's Guide to Choosing Drinking Water in Massachusetts, released by the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASSPIRG), tells consumers how to determine the source and safety of their drinking water and provides information on bottled water and home water treatment devices.

"With over 100 public and private water supplies lost to contamination, and hundreds more at risk, Massachusetts' consumers deserve to know what they are drinking," said Margie Alt, MASSPIRG's Toxics Program Director and one of the report's co-authors.

"People should 'shop around' for drinking water the way they comparison shop for consumer products. They need to know that they're getting what they pay for from their taps, their bottles, or their treatment devices."

The consumer guide, an updated version of a previously released MASSPIRG report, includes a list of DEQE certified labs and prices for various tests. For those consumers looking into options beyond their tap, the report lists test results of waters bottled in Massachusetts. And, the guide discusses home water treatment devices and warns consumers about common pitfalls and scams in purchasing such products.

"Some sellers of home water treatment devices use deceptive sales practices and misrepresent the results of in-home water tests in order to frighten consumers into buying high-priced and potentially inappropriate products," according to Ellen Citron, MASSPIRG's Consumer Protection Program Director and co-author of the report.

"In addition to educating consumers, the legislature should pass H.4004, a bill designed to curb these abusive sales practices."

A Taste of Olé

Dips are a fast alternative when it comes to selecting an appetizer. They're also great to keep on hand for impromptu guests or when the munchies strike.

A wonderful flavor combination is found in Fiesta Dip, a creamy mixture of sour cream, chopped tomato and green chilies, seasoned with instant onion soup mix and chili powder. Using instant soup mix means you can make a small batch of dip, just right for one or two. If you're serving a crowd, be sure to double the recipe!

FIESTA DIP

2 envelopes Lipton® Onion Cup-a-Soup® Instant Soup
½ pint (8 oz.) sour cream
½ medium tomato, chopped
3 tablespoons chopped green chilies
¼ teaspoon chili powder

In small bowl, blend instant onion soup mix with sour cream. Stir in tomato, chilies and chili powder; chill. Serve with tortilla chips. Makes about 1 cup dip. NOTE: Recipe may be doubled.

A tasty way to fix steak is to marinate it in French dressing for a short time, then broil as usual.

First Parish Church To Celebrate 350th Anniversary

United First Parish Church (Unitarian) of Quincy, "Church of the Presidents," will celebrate its 350th anniversary this year.

A series of events is being planned for the fall, including a city-wide service of celebration, a reunion dinner, concerts, and lectures.

The parish was established in 1639, the year before the town of Braintree was separated from Boston. The original denomination was Puritan, the only denomination allowed in the 1600's. Today United First Parish is an active Unitarian Universalist church.

The present imposing granite structure in Quincy is the fourth church building. It was dedicated in 1828 and replaced the Hancock Meeting House, a wooden structure built in 1732 and so-named because John Hancock's father was minister at that time. John Adams, second President of the United States, was responsible for much of the planning of the current church building. He gave the land on which it stands and much of the granite of which it is built. He died before the building was completed, but his son John Quincy Adams, sixth President of the United States, was a member and attended services when he was in Quincy.

John Adams and his wife Abigail, and John Quincy Adams and his wife Louisa Catherine are buried in the crypt at the church. This National Historic Site is the only church in the country where two Presidents of the United States are interred.

Each year, United First Parish Church welcomes visitors from the fifty states and many countries of the world.

Rev. Fred Lawson To Be Honored At Reception At Covenant Congregational

Covenant Congregational Church will honor Rev. Fred Lawson, pastor, with a retirement program and reception on Sunday at the church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., at 4 p.m.

Pastor Lawson was ordained over 40 years ago and has served at Covenant Congregational Church for 12 years. He has also served in five churches in different parts of the country.

After graduating from North Park Theological Seminary in Chicago, he completed his internship at the Covenant Church in Granby, CT.

He has also served in churches in Omaha, NE, Marquette, KS, Oberlin, KS, Woodstock, CT, and Pennock, MN. Pastor Lawson also served at the Childrens Home in Cromwell, CT and the Covenant Camp in Estes Park, Colorado.

During his ministry in Quincy, Pastor Lawson has established the Tuesday morning Chapel at Granite Place and has also been instrumental in arranging for the Quincy Crisis Center Mobil Home to be parked in the church parking lot.

Attending the program on Sunday will be Rev. George Elia, the Superintendent of the East Coast Conference of the denomination, as well as Covenant ministers from the district. Greetings from the President of denomination will also be read.

Mayor Francis McCauley as well as other city officials have been invited to the program and invitations have been sent to members of Pastor Lawson's former churches.

The program will include choral and organ music and the reception with refreshments will follow in Person Hall.

The program and reception were arranged by the church board, headed by Kenneth Nelson, Chairman.

'The Work of Peace' Sermon Topic at United First Parish

This Sunday Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, will deliver a sermon titled," The Work of Peace" during the 10:30 a.m. service at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents," in Quincy.

Dr. Bennett will offer reflections in response to a press conference with distinguished visitors from the Soviet Union to be held at the church today. The press conference is being hosted by the Congressional District II SANE/FREEZE Committee.

The combined choirs of All Souls Church in Braintree and United First Parish Church, under the leadership of Norman Corey, will sing anthems by Mozart and Brahms. Corey will also play organ works by Bach, Heredia, and Rutter. Matthew Mallow and Thomas Keto will usher.

Visitors are welcome and are invited to the social hour following the service. Bob and Erma Rimmer will host the social hour.

At noon, Dr. Bennett will lead a discussion group — "What is This Church?" — about the Unitarian Universalist liberal religious tradition and principles and about First Parish, what it is and what it might become. Newcomers and those thinking about membership are encouraged to attend.

United First Parish Church will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. The tombs of the two Presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, and those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine are in a crypt within the church.

The church is located opposite City Hall. Church School and child care are provided. Call 773-1290 for information. Visitors are welcome.

'No Need To Apologize Anymore' Sermon Topic at Bethany

Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, has two worship services each Sunday, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

This Sunday, the senior minister, Rev. J. William Arnold, will deliver the sermon at both hours on the topic, "No Need To Apologize Anymore."

Lay scripture reader for the sanctuary service will be Barbara A. MacFarlane. The associate minister, Rev. Joel F. Huntington, will serve as liturgist at both services.

The sacrament of Christian Baptism will be administered during the ten o'clock service to Wendell Richard Cosgrove, son of Wendell C. Cosgrove and Nancy Jean (Ross) Cosgrove.

During the sanctuary service the Chancel Choir, under the direction of organist Charles J. Blue, Sr., will sing as the anthem, "How Lovely are the Messengers" by Mendelssohn and as the offertory, "Ye Sons and Daughters of the King" by Eric Thiman.

The service will be broadcast live direct from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 a.m. over South Shore radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through 8th grade. Nursery care for babies and toddlers is provided.

At 11 a.m. following the worship service, there will be a Fellowship Hour in the Allen Parlor. Individuals and families from the area are most welcome to come and share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

For additional information concerning Bethany's programs and ministries, please contact the church office, 479-7300.

'The Good News' Sermon Topic At Wollaston Congregational

Nickerson Post Members Attend Squantum Church Service

"Living to Glorify God" was the title of the sermon preached Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, with veterans from the Robert Nickerson Legion Post in attendance.

The Legionnaires were led by Commander John J. Walsh, Senior Vice Commander Donald Pitts, Junior Vice Commander Richard W. Anderson, and Chaplain Richard Hendry. Chaplain Hendry read the roll call of deceased post members, after which Dr. Langevin gave a memorial prayer and a post bugler played taps. The veterans werre accompanied to the service by their wives, and other family members and friends.

The congregation was also celebrating the 100th birthday of one of its members, Katie Crossman. Dr. Langevin led the worshipers in a special prayer in her behalf. She was escorted to the service by a large group of family members.

Cynthia Stanton and Craig Zaehring read the scripture lessons for the morning. The Chancel Choir sang.

Greeters for the morning were Joan and Katherine Hansen. The ushers were Tore Wallin, Harry Holmes, Steve Williams and Bill Scott. Drucilla Warnes and May Lewis hosted the Fellowship Hour.

Sunday the service will begin at 10:30 a.m. Sunday School and nursery meet during the service.

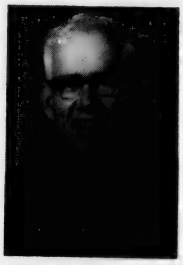
Religious Vocations Pilot Program Here In 9 Catholic Parishes

Under the direction of Bernard Cardinal Law a new pilot program to increase religious vocations has been initiated in the nine Catholic parishes in Quincy.

The parishes are: St. Ann, St. Boniface, St. John the Baptist, St. Joseph, St. Mary, Star of the Sea, Most Blessed Sacrament, Our Lady of Good Counsel and Sacred Heart.

The program is entitled "Called By Name" and involves the personal contact of young men and women who have been recommended to local clergy as possible candidates for religious vocations.



For three consecutive Sundays homilies given to each congregation by the pastors and the parochial vicars at all Masses will focus on the need for religious vocations.

Fr. Cornelius Heery, Vicar for the Quincy Vicariate and Pastor of Sacred Heart Church, is coordinating the unique program.

"The parishes of Quincy were selected by the Chancery for this pilot project because they exemplify the spirituality and zeal that would be most helpful in carrying on this program over a period of time in a regional area," Fr. Heery pointed out in announcing the goals of "Called By Name."

A highlight of the program will be a half hour telecast to be shown on Cable Talk, a public affairs feature of Quincy Community Television Channel 3, on Thursday, April 27 at 9 p.m.

Telecast participants include: Fr. Heery, and Fr. Dan O'Connell, parochial vicar, Sacred Heart, North Quincy; Fr. Joseph Downey, Pastor, St. Joseph, Quincy

Fr. CORNELIUS HEERY

Point; and Fr. Bryan Parrish, parochial vicar, St. Mary, West Quincy. John Noonan, Editor of St. John's News, is the moderator.

The program participants discuss the role of today's religious in our society, the training and education needed, various ministries in the parishes, goals and objectives, and some reasons for making personal contact with potential candidates for the religious life.

For many years, the burden and responsibility of fostering church vocations to the priesthood, diaconate, and religious life was focused mainly on one person-the vocation director. At the same time that other church responsbilities came to be shared, a single and often part-time person continued to be responsible for all vocation awareness and recruitment for a diocese or religious order.

With the development of pastoral councils, parish councils, boards, committees, and commissions, various aspects of the Church's mission have been delegated and shared. "Called By Name" is aimed at involving all church units and laity in the vocation recruitment program.

Fr. Heery explains the background and success of the program in other parts of the United States.

Fr. Downey recounts his years as a pastor and points out that he is the pastor in all nine parishes with the longest period of service.

Fr. O'Connell and Fr. Parrish are two younger priests and they relate their experiences and callings to the priesthood.

Qualities for consideration of a vocation are as follows:

- a good healthy relationship with God.
- an ability to articulate faith and principles in his or her own words.
- an ability to be a team member and to work with a variety of people in all age groups.
- an ability to work with ethnic groups.
- an ability to maintain healthy friendships with men and women.
- a willingness to live out of an option for the poor and the most in need (not just the materially poor).
- a willingness to become bilingual.
- the distinction of being a real church person who accepts and lives out the teachings and morals of the Church.

Candidates selected through this Called By Name project will have the opportunity to meet and dine with Cardinal Law at his residence to explore in further detail with other church leaders the various religious career requirements.

Sal Giarratani Candidate For School Committee

SAL GIARRATANI

Sal Giarratani of 184 Atlantic St., North Quincy, a political activist at the local and state level for nearly 20 years, has announced his candidacy for School Committee.

In making his announcement, Giarratani said his Irish-Italian background makes him more empathic with educational concerns of all Quincy parents and children attending the city's public schools and with the diverse ethnic population of Quincy.

"Today, Quincy public schools are responsible for properly educating all kinds of kids. Traditionally, the school system has been serving a large Irish and Italian-American population, but now we are seeing a large Asian influx into our community.

"Can our school system also meet the needs of Asian immigrant children and the children of Asian immigrants? And is the system providing all the necessary educational tools it can in helping all our public school students whether they are Quincy-born or recent arrivals?

"Our schools are being impacted by recent city demographics and are the School Committee and City Hall ready to meet the challenges facing us as we head into the next century," Giarratani asked.

A self-described "conservative Democrat" until 1978, he then changed parties and became a Republican. After moving to Quincy in 1984, he became involved in the Quincy Republican City Committee and today he is active in the Quincy Republican Party organization.

In his announcement, Girratani said he is concerned about proper funding for the school system.

"Surpluses are nice but quality education for our children cannot and should not be sacrificed on the chopping block to balance a city budget.

"The children represent this city's future and without a good educational system in place and properly funded, we are mortgaging their future and our credibility," he said.

A former resident of Charlestown, he has served on the Charlestown Economic Development Corporations Board of Directors and the Executive Board of the JFK Family Service Center.

A graduate of St. Francis deSales School in Roxbury, Boston English High School and Boston State College, he has been employed by the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health since 1972. He now works as a DMH police officer at the Massachusetts Mental Health Center.

Giarratani is also a political columnist for the Post-Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Boston's North End.

He is married to the former Fay Hamblin of North Weymouth and they have one daughter, Nealia Elspeth, age 2.

THE ACTIVE LIFE

Spotlight On HEALTH AND FITNESS

Make The Most Of Your Years Through Nutrition

Living life to the fullest is what makes life great!

Whether you're 16 or 60, you should take advantage of every opportnity. You can add much to your life by staying healthy with correct eating habits and adequate exercise and sleep. Proper nutrition is essential for everyone and the "Golden and the "Golden Ager" is no exception.

Statistics indicate that many people over 65 are not receiving the necessary nutrients to keep them healthy. The following points can help initiate a more nutritious lifestyle:

- Make it a point to consume three nutritious meals a day. Don't be misled into thinking that it is too much bother to plan and prepare them. Nutritious foods actually aid your body in promoting and preserving good health. Therefore, it is important to eat correctly.
- Be sure that your daily diet contains enough protein. Many times, people feel that meat is too expensive and don't include it in their diets. However, poultry and fish can be good buys. Other inexpensive protein sources are tofu (soybean curd) and textured vegetable protein (TVP). These can be combined to extend meat or vegetable dishes.
- Include plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables and whole grains in your diet. They have what is called "staying power" which means they help you feel satisfied for longer periods of time. These foods also provide the bulk and fiber necessary to keep your system functioning properly.
- A vitamin-mineral supplement may be advisable to ensure that you are receiving all necessary nutrients. Consult your physician on this.
- Last, but not least, start a daily exercise routine. It does not have to be overly strenuous. A simple stretching routine or walk around the block can do wonders for the way you feel.

The important thing is to start today. Get excited about staying healthy, whatever your age.

Air Pollution Tips For Exercisers

Be aware of the quality of air you breathe.

For information about air quality refer to radio and television weather reports, check the weather page of your local newspaper, or contact your local air pollution control agency.

On days when the ozone level (smog) is unhealthy, exercise early in the morning or evening when smog levels are lower.

On days when pollution levels are at a dangerous level, do not exercise. The possible damage to your health will far outweigh any benefits from exercise.

Avoid exercising near congested highways. Running in a typically polluted urban area for half-an-hour is equivalent to inhaling the carbon monoxide from a pack of cigarettes in a day.

Stay at least 30 to 50 feet away from cars. At traffic lights, move ahead of the exhaust pipe of the first car, or stay behind the last car until the light changes.

If you experience symptoms such as tightness in the chest, coughing or wheezing, stop exercising immediately. Because of the large amounts of air taken in during exercise, exercisers can be particularly affected by air pollution.

For more information on air pollution and your health, contact your local American Lung Association at (508) 947-7204.

SKIN CARE TIPS

Use Your Sun Sense

You may be looking forward to a "fun in the sun" getaway during the cold weather months, but don't let your skin pay the price. It's important, say dermatologists, to protect your skin with a good sunblock while you're relaxing on your tropical isle. It's also important to keep your skin smooth and supple once you're back home.

A new sunscreen lotion not only offers the traditional benefits of sun protection, but also contains a moisturizer that helps prevent the dryness and tightness associated with sun-dried skin. New Vaseline Intensive Care Moisturizing Sunscreen Lotion comes in a choice of five waterproof SPFs (sun protection factors).

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

What is success? Making a million dollars? Marrying the right person? Climbing up the ladder of prominence faster than any of your neighbors or business acquaintances? ...

No ... These things in themselves do not constitute success. Success is not a thing to be acquired ... rather it is a spirit by which every right thing is dominated. We ran across this poem which expresses this thought quite beautifully. Read it. We think you will like it ...

"Success is not in the way you walk the paths of life each day;
It's in the little things you do, and in the things you say.
Success is not in getting rich, or rising high to fame.
It's not along in winning goals, which all men hope to claim.
Success is being big of heart, and clean and broad in mind;
It's being faithful to your friends, and to the stranger, kind.
It's in the children whom you love, and all they learn from you;
Success depends on character, and everything you do ..."

Jennie A. Crowley, 101

Received Birthday

Citation From Reagan

A funeral Mass for Jennie A. (Whelan) Crowley, 101, of Quincy, was celebrated April 13 at St. Williams Church, Dorchester.

Mrs. Crowley who had lived in Dorchester 40 years before moving to Quincy 12 years ago, died at home April 10.

On her 100th birthday, Mrs. Crowley received citations from Mayor Francis McCauley, former President Ronald Reagan, and Gov. Michael Dukakis. She also received a handwritten letter from Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Born in Lismore County Waterford, Ireland, she met her husband, the late Timothy J. Crowley on the boat to the United States when she was 16. She married when she was 24.

Mrs. Crowley made 16 trips back to Ireland and was one of the first Irish immigrants to fly home for a visit instead of going by boat. The trip took 12 hours one way and Mrs. Crowley was the subject of a newspaper article about the trip.

She is survived by a daughter, Kathleen T. Crowley of Quincy, and 10 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren. She was the mother of the late Jennie A. Murray, Timothy J. Crowley and Michael J. Crowley, and the grandmother of the late Edward Crowley, Daniel Crowley and Kevin Crowley, who died 13 years ago.

Funeral arrangements were by the Murphy Funeral Home, Dorchester.

Memorial donations may be made to the Committee of St. Catheridge Home, Lismore, County Waterford, Ireland.

WEEK OF: April 20

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You're a natural host, with a gift of providing a warm and inviting environment. A self-indulgent streak is characteristic. The next twelve months see you involved in activities that benefit humanity and, in turn, benefit yourself. Romance is a frequent theme of late '89, early '90.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Several key appointments are on tap this week. New friends are unusually persuasive, but take some of the advice with a few grains of salt. Great time for planning social events.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Communications improve noticeably, both in work environment and on the homefront. News from a faraway friend may lead to a reconciliation. Artistic endeavors are favorably spotlighted.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Information arriving now must be carefully sorted before you act on it. Tensions on the homefront begin to ease, thanks to the intervention of an elder statesman. Financial planning is a must.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Supportive co-workers now benefit from your encouraging words and actions. Platonic relationship is spotlighted. Romancewise, however, there may be some misinterpreted messages. Compromise is crucial.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Conditions improve both in the immediate neighborhood and on the career scene, but this is not the week for coasting. A major social event is on tap, and you may prove the witty hit of the evening.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Academic interests are spotlighted as you enroll and/or excel in a personally important course of study. Job skills benefit from updating. Romance, meanwhile, accents an old-fashioned approach.

LEO — July 23 - August 22
Maintaining a high profile can lead to more projects than you bargained for. Younger relatives see you as a role model. A surprisingly shy streak may surface after the weekend.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Some choice opportunities open up for local travel and may if fact lead you further afield. Partner shows an improved sense of humor. Be warned of prying neighbors or colleagues.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Friend may be unexpectedly judgmental but it's best for you to keep your own judgments to yourself. Several celebrations may be announced at once. Decorating projects are back on track.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Artistic tendencies win you the attention of an important admirer; the key, however, is to please yourself first. Moves and travel both benefit from extra-thorough planning.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Week accents new opportunities to get to know a 'distant' friend. Partnership ventures may be mildly financially rewarding. Individualistic streak surfaces after the weekend.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Buying, selling and, especially, bartering are favorable activities. Expect some snags in communication; it's important to follow up on all outgoing messages. Love life perks up.

Quincy Looking For First Win

The Quincy baseball team, without a starter from last year's tournament team, is 0-4, but the Presidents are losing close games and are not being blown out.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team, whose game was postponed Monday at Somerville due to wet grounds, will play at Arlington Friday at 10:30 and will host Waltham Monday in its Suburban League opener at 3:30 at Adams Field.

The Presidents lost to Medford, 5-3, last week despite a fine pitching performance by Rich Kiesel, who went the route, giving up six hits and striking out three.

Tim Mann continued his solid hitting with two hits and two RBI and John Fahey drove in the other run.

In their previous game the Presidents lost to Malden, 9-6.

Jim Peters' two-run double gave Quincy a 5-4 lead in the fourth inning, but Malden bounced back.

Junior pitcher Steve McGinnis allowed six hits and struck out four in a five-inning stint. Quincy had trailed, 4-1, before Peters' hit.

Malden scored four runs in the sixth to wrap up the win.

North Shells Weymouth S., Blanked By Arlington

The North Quincy baseball team, after displaying its best attack of the year last Saturday, had its bats silenced Monday when it dropped a 5-0 decision to Arlington, dropping its record to 2-3.

Leo Donovan's Raiders will host Everett Friday at 10:30 a.m. and Weymouth North Saturday at the same time at Adams Field and will open the Suburban League season Monday at Brockton at 3:30.

Billy Warren, making his first start Monday, pitched well against Arlington but the Spy Ponders scored four unearned runs. Warren struck out five and walked two.

Last Saturday, Erik DeBoer, who lost a 2-1 squeaker in his first start, pitched four-hit ball, struck out 13 and walked only two in a 9-3 victory over Weymouth South.

Tony Anderlionis led the potent attack with four hits, including two doubles. Kevin MacDougall had three hits and Jim Glynn and DeBoer had two each.

In their previous game the Raiders lost to Peabody, 6-2.

David Hines' single in the sixth inning broke a 2-2 tie. Trailing, 2-0, in the third, North's Jim Bryan drove in Anderlionis to cut the lead in half.

North tied the game in the fifth when singles by Bryan and Kevin MacDougall were followed by an error. Bryan and MacDougall had four of the Raiders' six hits.

Earlier MacDougall pitched a four-hitter and drove in two runs with a double as North blanked Medford, 3-0. MacDougall struck out six and walked two. He scored the third North run on a sacrifice fly by George Rozanitis.

Vecchione, Murphy Win H.N. Road Race

Heavy rain was blamed for the fewer than usual entrants in the annual "marathon" for all ages sponsored by the Houghs Neck Legion Post on Sunday.

However, 24 wet but determined runners completed a course shortened from the usual three miles to a route on Sea St. from the Post Home at 1116 Sea St. to the Quincy Yacht Club and return.

Taking top place was Tom Vecchione, Sr., men over 30 years. Sue Murphy and Donna Vecchione took first and second place for women 25 years and older.

Tom Vecchione, Jr., age 10, Brian O'Donnal and Bill Dunn, both 11, were top winners for boys 9 through 14 years; Julie Dorsey, 10; Heidi Daggett, 14 and Sandy Buonopane, girls 9 through 14 years.

Adam Vecchione, 5 years, Jacob Shields, and Danny Dorsey, 6, took honors for boys 1-8; and Gina Pope,8, for girls, 1 through 8.

Trophies and certificates were awarded the various winners.

The Committee, including judges, was headed by Commander Ray LaRue and John Duffy, athletic chairman; John Christensen, Bill Morrill, Danny Shields, Brian Young, Bill Macmanus, Jim Healy, Dave Kilduff and Stan Younie.

Quincy Legion Tryouts May 6

The Quincy Legion baseball team will hold tryouts Saturday, May 6, at 10 a.m. and Sunday, May 7 at 1 p.m. at Kincaide Park.

In the egent of rain, tryouts will be held the following weekend at the same place and times.

North Girls Defeat Medford

The North Quincy girls' softball team, hoping to rebound from a 3-16 season, defeated Medford, 9-7, last week to even its record at 1-1.

Barbara Webster's Raiderettes host Everett today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m., will be home to Brockton Monday at 3:30 and will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Wednesday at 3:30.

Crystal Moffett hit a bases-loaded triple in the seventh inning for the winning runs against Medford.

Kristen Drake pitched three-hit ball and also had two hits for the North girls.

The Raiderettes had lost their opening game to Malden, 8-2, despite the six hit pitching of Drake, who struck out four.

Meanwhile, Jim Piccini's Quincy girls were walloped by Arlington, 18-6, to drop their record to 0-2. The First Ladies had lost their opener to Everett.

Arlington took a 7-1 lead after two innings and never looked back. Quincy rallied for five runs in the third inning on five bases on balls and singles by Christine Barrett and Kim Holt, but the Spy Ponders then broke the game wide open.

Jen Dondero was the losing pitcher for Quincy.

Quincy hosts Medford today (Thursday) at 10:30 and will be at Waltham Monday.

North Off To Good Start

The North Quincy boys' volleyball team is off to a fast start under coach John Perkins and took a 3-1 record into Tuesday's match at Weymouth South.

The Raiders faced Waltham yesterday (Wednesday) will go to Lincoln-Sudbury Friday, will host Braintree Monday and will be home to Boston Latin next Wednesday.

North suffered its first defeat, 2-1 (15-7, 11-15, 15-10) to Weymouth North last week.

Kipp Caldwell and Nie Ngu were outstanding in the North loss.

After defeating Quincy in its opener, North Quincy defeated Lowell, 2-0 (15-8, 15-7), with Mike Doherty and James Waltermier doing some strong serving and Caldwell, David Lopez and Steve Tobin turning in strong performances.

The Raiders improved to 3-0 with a 2-1 (15-8, 11-15, 15-1) victory over Andover.

Waltermire and Charles Levering each had eight service points, Steve Zilkowski turned in steady offensive play at the net and Caldwell, Doherty and Ngo had strong games.

Meanwhile, the Quincy boys, coached by Christ Prendiville, have had little success, dropping to 0-4 last week when it lost to unbeaten Weymouth South (4-0), 2-0, (15-9, 15-8).

The Presidents had previously lost to North Quincy, Dedham and Weymouth North.

Quincy faced Lowell yesterday (Wednesday), will host Andover Friday, will be home to Boston Latin Monday and will play at Braintree next Wednesday.

Snug Harbor, Montclair In Title Showdown

Two offensive-minded teams will tap off for city championship of the Quincy Recreation Department Middle Schools.

Snug Harbor, with a 62-point per game average and Montclair, with 55.5 points per game, have advanced to the final game in the annual single elimination tournament.

Montclair advanced to the finals by defeating Atherton Hough, 57-46, and Beechwood Knoll 54-28. In the Atherton Hough game, Rob Kane had 18 for the Kristen O'Brien and Steve Bottary-coached Atherton. He was followed closely by Brian McPartlin with 11 including a 3 pointer in the final 20 seconds. Chris White had 7 while the coaches praised Kevin Nichols and Mike Kane for their outstanding rebounding at both ends of the floor.

For Montclair it was Sean Donovan with 20 and Liam higgins with 18 for 38 of the teams 57 points. George Writz had 7. Coach Gerry Pratt was quick to point out the playmaking of Keith Lentini and the rebounding of Nick Mastrogiacomo.

Montclair met Beechwood Knoll in the semi-finals and took a big height advantaged to a 54-18 win over a scrappy Beechwood Knoll team. Mike McDonald with 12, Mike Patch 10, and Chris DuPill 7 were Beechwood's top scorers. Coach Jack Kelly had high praise for Tony Liccardi and Joe Welby for their rebounding and defense play. For Montclair it was Higgins with 19 and Donovan 18, followed by Mastrogiacomo with 8. Jamie O'Connell was outstanding on defense while Mike MacDougall was credited with running the half court offense.

Will Hughes has spread his scoring around on a well-balanced team as Snug advanced by Quincy point, 77-24. Danny Melzard had 14, Harold Martel 13 and Ed kenny 10 to lead a Snug Harbor team that had 10 members score. Sean Heron and Tim Byrne also chipped in eight each. Janice Sullivan, the Point coach, brought 15 participants on her young team and played them all as she gained valuable tournament experience for her team. Walter Spadorcia and Charles Landview ere top scorers with 8 each. Sullivan also praised Jim Smith who took control of the offense. Mike Sarno for his strong man to man defense and Jonathon Gangi as top rebounder.

In the tournament semi-finals Snug Harbor defeated Atlantic, 51-32. Eddie Kelly top scorer for both teams with 19. Teammate Sean Heron had 14 and Harold Martell 9 to round out Snug's top three. B.J. Sylva was filling in for long time Atlantic coach Geroge Dunn and got 15 points from Eric Zimmerman and 10 from Shawn Warren. Steve Manning showed outstanding hustle at both ends of the floors.

Atlantic had advanced to the semi-finals by defeating Merrymount, 41-30. In that game Dan Coughlin-coached Merrymount, used a variety of defense in keeping the high scoring Atlantic in check. Mike Kane had 12, followed by Jim Manton 10 and Jim Keddy 7 to lead Merrymount. Jason Tobin was the team's leading rebounder. George Dunn got 18 from Sean Warren, 8 from Steve Manning and 5 from Steve Bryne. Mark Sinclair had 12 rebounds, mostly on the offensive end of the floor.

The annual Recreation Tournament is held at the conclusion of the Department's 25-week winter program. Team members are participants in recreation centers in all areas of the city. All teams are coahced by recreation leaders of the Quincy Recreation Department.

67 Turn Out At North

By TOM SULLIVAN

Peter Chrisom, coach of the North Quincy boys' track team, greeted a record turnout of 67, the most ever in school history and will have the biggest squad in the Suburban League.

The Raiders will open the season next Tuesday a Newton North against Cambridge Rindge and Latin, always a league powerhouse.

North isn't expected to come away with the league title, but with the numbers of outstanding freshmen and sophomores, the team will be a challenger in years to come.

The team is led by senior captains Brian Barrett, who will run the distances; Jim Chou, a hurdler and triple jumper; George Gavros, a half-miler, and sprinter Quan Le. Distance runner Dan Kallenberg is the other senior.

Running the distances will be junior Andy Wohlrab, sophomores Chris Ballum and Mike Vermette and Mike Giese.

Hurdlers include freshmen Greg Buck, Marc Larson, Mike Yea, Garvin Chan, Shawn Doherty and John O'Donnell.

Throwers are junior Jim Ferrara, sophs Chris Lineman, Adam Strout, Dave Thompson, Matt Swierk and Evan Kiley, and freshmen Jim McTiernan, Steve Oakes, Mark Socuzzo and Dave Raftery.

Jumpers are Jim Chou, Chris Melchin, Art Nurse, Desmond Bellott, John O'Donnell and Bruce Ho. Most of the sprinters and hurdlers will be trying a jumping event as the season progresses.

Chrisom, who coaches the throwing events, is assisted by Dan Cudddy, who will supervise the middle and long distance runners. Girls' coaches Jeff Hennessy (hurdlers) and Earl Metzler (sprints) also help out. Indoor boys assistant Ken McPhee supervises the weight training program and former North standouts Eileen Crehan and Michelle Millane help out with the throwers on a vuluntary basis.

"We open up against the iron early," said Chrisom. "But we have scheduled several freshman-sophomore meets and we'll just try to bring our kids along. We are young and inexperienced, but the future looks bright for our program."

TRICIA DIMINICO, left, received honorable mention and Carrie Hughes was named to the Eastern Independent Division 2 Basketball League all-star team and was the high scorer for the Woodward School girls' team. The Woodward girls finished fourth in the league.

North Girls Defeat Milton

The North Quincy girls' track team got off to a good start last week with a 74-54 non league victory over Milton Academy.

The Raiderettes, with Jeff Hennessy back as coach, will open the Suburban League season next Tuesday by hosting Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 3:30 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Karen Cashman was a triple winner and freshman Tricia Hughes won the 440 in her first varsity effort to spark North to the win.

North Quincy winners were Robin Guilfoy, 200 (28.4); Hughes, 40 (1:08.9); Cashman, 800 (2:41.6); Bridget Toland, 3000 (13:58); Cashman, high jump (4-2); Cashman, triple jump (27.8) and Deirdre Murphy, shot put (30-1).

150 Delinquents Owe $377,000 In Real Estate Taxes

produce legal advertisements were also computer generated.

The real estate tax payment notice procedure is a multi-step process.

First, the formal bill is mailed out. If left unpaid, a second notice, or demand, is sent out which adds a $5 charge and 14 percent accrued interest to the original bill.

Next, a final notice is mailed to delinquent taxpayers. This notice has no additional fee but includes the demand charge and additional interest.

Advertising of delinquent taxpayers follows stating the official deadline for tax payment. After the deadline, which this year is May 4, foreclosure can begin.

In addition, Childs said late taxpayers can avoid foreclosure by paying their bills as soon as possible. He said a fee would be assessed to those who pay after the May 4 deadline.

Furthermore, interest on tax bill increases after the deadline, from 14 to 16 percent.

Childs said he is hoping the 1988 delinquent taxpayers come forward with payment soon.

He said the frequent notices and advertising help the city's collection efforts.

"The sooner you send out a notice, the better the response. The sooner you can start the collection process, the better off you are," Childs said.

'I Am Truly Impressed'

Of all the students in our state that have gone through this program, 89% have successfully gained good employment, and stayed in the working world of adults. Now that's what I call productivity in education. It works! More and more students should be encouraged to become involved, and the business community can help to make this happen. It is a real investment that will pay dividends for all of us in the near and distant future.

My hat is off to all the students at this conference, for a job extremely well done. You have made yourself very proud, and proud you should be. My sincere gratitude, support, and compliments to the two Job Specialists in Quincy (Michele Porte' of North Quincy High and Stacey Broigoli of Quincy High) for creating such a successful program in our Quincy Schools, especially with what so little they had to begin with. I am truly impressed!

(Cont'd from Page 1)

The house has eight single bedrooms, dining room, living room and kitchen with a common bathroom on each floor.

Inside, hardwood floors were refinished, rugs laid down, walls and ceilings repaired, new windows and moldings installed and new heating and plumbing systems put in.

Some of the inside work was done by six inmates and one correctional officer from the Norfolk County Jail Alternative Site in Braintree, McCarthy said.

Outside, the house was given a coat of primer by eight volunteers last Saturday. The house will be painted white with black shutters this Saturday.

Those helping to paint the house include: Businessmen, and Mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell, John Palmer, Edward Duff, Ralph Pickering, John Pickering, Marshall Whitehurst and John MacKinnon. The group wielded paint brushes and scrapers from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Besides the paint, the house received a new roof and new clapboards in some sections.

The house also contains cooking appliances as well as a washer and dryer.

Once they have moved in, tenants will pay 30 percent of their income to live in the home with the rest subsidized by the state.

The first tenants were scheduled to be selected this week by a committee. A list of potential tenants was compiled from Quincy Affordable Housing.

According to Rev. McCarthy, the volunteer effort saved about $50,000 in refurbishing expenses.

Others who donated their time and services to the project are;

Richard E. Salvaggi, architect; Lambrian Construction Co., general contractor; O'Connell Management Co.; Don Gordon; Veronica Collins, Quincy Planning Department; William Lawless, Fred Salutti Jr.; Caritas, Inc.; Rosemary Wahlberg; RJB Management Co.; Derbis Brothers, General Contractors; Shaughnessy Crane Service; Elaine Walsh, Susan Troy, Geraldine Whitehurst and St. John's Church.

Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

• Continued for two weeks a hearing on a request from Bernard E. Van Tassell, Jr. 1147 Sea St. for a license for an electronic dart game. The board wants to inspect other South Shore area establishments which have the game.

• Postponed until May 2 a hearing on a request from John L. Palizi of New England Auto Recovery & Towing, Inc. 734 Furnace Brook Parkway for a towing business at 153 Brook Road.

• Postponed until April 25 a hearing on the request from William MacDonald of the Adams Heights Mens Club, 63 Bower Rd., for a one day all-alcoholic license for June 25.

• Placed on file a request from Paul F. Ricciardi, 218 Willard St. for a license to store 13,344 gallons of gasoline in tanks of cars garaged at Saville Ave. a total of 1,113 automobiles. The board noted that changes are occurring in the project which relate to the number of cars garaged at the site and issues must be resolved with the building department. The request will have to be re-advertised, the board said.

• Granted a request from Sister Georgina Barry of St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, for a license to hold a crafts show and flea market on Saturday, May 13 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. to benefit the school. The board waived the need for an appearance and stipulated that the health commissioner be contacted in regard to food and clothing for sale.

'Dream Keepers' Concert At NQHS April 28

A spring concert entitled "Dream Keepers — Creative Artists of the World," will be presented Friday, April 28 at 8 p.m. at the North Quincy High School Auditorium, 318 Hancock St.

The concert is being sponsored by Quincy Community Action Programs Inc., South Shore Coalition for Human Rights and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

The event will feature eight jazz artists from various countries including China, Australia, Chile, Japan, East India and the United States.

Tickets are $4 for senior citizens and students and $7 for all others.

The program is funded in part by the New England Foundation for the Arts, with additional support from New England Telephone, the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Featured performers are:

Herb King, percussionist, is a native of Savannah, Georgia. His professional career began at age 19, playing drums in Miami resort hotels, with the Royal American Shows Tours, and in Europe. He is well-versed in numerous musical styles and has worked with such diverse performers as Gladys Knight, Sam and Dave, George Coleman, Slide Hampton, Helen Humes and Sheila Jordan.

Before coming to study at the Berklee College of Music in the early 1980's, Yasko Kubota taught piano and organ in the Yamaha School of Music in Japan for several years. She has gained recognition and acclaim across New England for the quality and intensity of her work and is a recipient of the Chick Corea Jazz Artist Award.

Director and coordinator of the concert, Semenya McCord, is both jazz vocalist and music educator, bringing a wide range of knowledge about the history of jazz and about diverse cultures to her work. Chosen by Boston Woman Magazine as one of Boston's "100 Most Interesting Women" in 1986 and as "Outstanding Jazz Vocalist" by the Boston Music Awards in 1988, she has devoted herself to the promotion of jazz music and jazz education through working with schools throughout New England.

Born in Sydney, Australia, Mike Peipman studied at the New South Wales Conservatory of Music before coming to the United States to earn a degree from the Berklee School of Music. Peipman has performed with Cab Callaway, Tony Bennett, Anthony Davis, Clark Terry, the Brecker Brothers and the Four Tops. He is currently featured with the White Heat Swing Orchestra, and touring and recording with George Russell's "The Living Time" Orchestra.

Alejandro Rivera was born in Santiago, Chile, and played an active role in the New Chilean Song Movement of the late 1960's. He performed and recorded throughout Spain until 1976, then moved to Paris and formed the South American jazz group, Tamarugo. He also performed and arranged with flutist Una Ramos and with Ravi Shankar in a Casablanca music festival. He moved to Boston in 1981 and has performed at the Hatch Shell on the Esplanade, "First Night" celebrations, in Boston and Worcester, the Museum of Fine Arts, at Harvard and MIT and on the WGBH classical music program - Morning Pro-Musica. He currently directs a Boston based group, New Directions in Latin American Music.

Actress and singer Lisa Thorson has been performing in nightclubs, concerts and theatres in New England for the past twelve years. In 1988, she was a featured performer at the Boston Globe Jazz Festival. Lisa has a B.A. in Fine Arts in Musical Theatre from the Boston Conservatory. She is an advocate for artists and artist accessibility, and has been a consultant to the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities.

RICK KENNEDY (center), treasurer of the Providence Ronald McDonald House, receives a $6,000 donation from Quincy Paperama employees Eileen Giddings and Ken Spacone. The Providence Ronald McDonald House is a "home-away-from-home" for families of children receiving treatment at Rhode Island Hospital. It also accommodates parents of newborns hospitalized at Women & Infants Hospital of Rhode Island's Special Care Nursery.

LWV Mayoral Candidates Debate On Ch. 3 April 27

The League of Women Voters and Quincy Community Television will present "A Quincy Mayoral Candidates' Debate" Thursday, April 27 at 7:30 p.m. on Quincy Community Television Channel 3.

The debate will repeat Friday, April 28 at 7 p.m. on Channel 53 and Sunday, April 30 at 8 p.m. on Channel 3.

Candidates Joseph LaRaia, Stephen McGrath, Peter O'Connell, James Sheets and William Jensen will address the issues of public education, civil rights and human services.

Each candidate will also have a closing statement.

Mary Quinn of the LWV will moderate the debate and questions will be asked by League members Alicia Coletti, Patricia Herbert and Ruth Paven.

McCauley On 'Newsmakers'

Mayor Francis McCauley will be guest on Quincy Community Television's "Newsmakers" program tonight (Thursday) at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 3.

The main topic of discussion will be the city's fiscal 1990 budget and how cuts in the budget will affect city services.

Program moderator will be Steve Farquhar, general manager of Continental Cablevision. Panelists are Bob Bosworth from the Quincy Sun, Herb Fontaine of WJDA radio and Eric Schwarz from the Patriot Ledger.

This episode of "Newsmakers" will be shown again Tuesday, April 25 at 6 p.m. on Channel 3.

Nicholas Barbadoro, Norfolk County Clerk of Courts, will be the "Newsmakers" guest Thursday, April 27 at 8:30 p.m.

'The Birds' On Ch. 3

A contemporary adaptation of Aristophane's "The Birds" will be presented by Quincy Community Television and the Communications Art Department of Eastern Nazarene College Friday, April 21 at 5 p.m. on Channel 3.

This "slapstick tragicomedy" pokes fun at political corruption, greed and drawbacks of the technical age. The show focuses on the need to laugh at ourselves in a very entertaining way.

School To Get Out Two Days Earlier

The Quincy School Committee has voted to change the last day of school for students kindergarten through grade 11, from June 23 to June 21 this year.

June 21 will be a full day and lunches will be served.

Teachers are to work a full day Thursday, June 22, which will be the final day of the school year.

Other calendar changes are:

Tuesday, May 9 originally scheduled as a release afternoon for all schools, will be a full day for staff in-service and work sessions for all teachers.

Teachers will not report to school May 9. All teachers other than those in Quincy High and Quincy Vocational-Technical School are requested to attend the Learning Materials Fair at Broad Meadows Middle School in the afternoon.

Tuesday, May 30 will be Teacher Institute Day. Students will not report to school.

All staff members should plan to participate in the approved in-service and work-session activities of the day.

Central Students Awarded Special Plaque For Raising Money In Classmates' Memory

The Central Middle School Student Senate will be awarded a special plaque by Mary Mahoney, a coordinator of the Boston Floating Hospital annual Marathon.

Central students participated in the Marathon last May while others raised money for the event in memory of classmate Peter Grippi who died in June of 1987.

Peter entered Central in September of 1986 with Leukemia in remission. The illness surfaced again and, although his treatments meant absences from school, Peter was determined to keep pace with his classmates academically.

His love for athletics and sports had to be curtailed, but his sense of humor never failed him.

In Peter's memory, Central students raised money for the playroom at Floating Hospital, a room designed to provide games and other activities for patients who are waiting for treatment or who have received treatment for serious illness.

The following poem was written by sixth grade classmate of Peter's, Kenny Drinkwater, in the spring of 1987:

Peter is a nice guy
And his grades are high
He's not active in play
But everyone knows that's O.K.
He never curses or swears
As a matter of fact, he really cares
Pete plays the drums in a band
So I think we should give him a hand
When Pete is sick - it puts us down
Knowin' that Peter's not around.
Pete likes hockey and football,
But he likes hockey most of all.
Sitting in that hospital room
Must really be gloom.
Fighting for your life must really be hard
So it's nice to send an occasional card.
Pete is a real good friend to us
He is someone we trust.
Peter always shared everything he had,
He never gave you anything bad.
His spirits were always shining true,
When it came to Central he was never blue.
Peter's love was something we will all treasure,
He gave love we cannot measure.

Chamber Opposes Advance Payment Of Taxes By Corporations

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Rd., Quincy, has gone on record as opposing House Bill 5274 which calls for advanced payment of taxes by corporations.

"Although understanding why this legislation is being proposed to make up for shortfalls in the existing state budget, we do not feel this to be sound fiscal or public policy," said Kevin Costello, Government Affairs manager for the Chamber.

"We will not delve into why a state budget crisis exists nor will we discuss in detail our further recommendations for cuts to be made in non-essential services.

"What we would like to state categorically is that the business community which directly or indirectly provides all the revenues through which government may provide services, should not be asked to balance the state budget as well," Costello said.

"We believe that H 5274 would have a deleterious effect on smaller companies and on seasonal companies, both of whose revenue stream may not be strong enough when they are asked to pay their tax bills in advance.

"Nor do we believe H 5274 should even be considered until the House and Senate have worked out their fiscal year 1990 budgets and until the extent of any possible increase in the fiscal year 1989 budget deficit is known," he said.

Fair Housing Seminar April 26

The South Shore Regional Fair Housing Committee, covering Quincy, Braintree, Milton, Weymouth and Hingham, will hold a seminar on Wednesday, April 26 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Braintree Town Hall, JFK Memorial Dr.

Keynote speaker for the event will be Norfolk County District Attorney, William D. Delahunt.

The seminar will offer workshops to explain and describe the role of a Fair Housing Committee and or organizing strategies for such a group, a workshop on compliance with Fair Housing Laws and on Fair Housing activities in a variety of towns in the South Shore area.

The seminar is intended for local officials and community leaders, but all are welcome to attend. Admission is free.

Deadline For Christmas Parade Theme Extended

The deadline to submit a theme for this year's Quincy Christmas Parade has been changed from April 21 to Friday, April 28, announces George White, chairman of the Christmas Festival Committee.

Entries should be mailed to Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., North Quincy, Mass., 02170.

The 28-member committee will select the winning theme Wednesday, May 3.

The individual submitting the winning entry will be invited to participate in the traditional parade and will be presented with a gift of appreciation from the committee at the awards ceremony following the parade.

The parade has attracted approximately 250,000 people annually.

White noted that the theme should be appropriate for float builders to work within. "Remember, it is a season of happiness and the theme should create an environment in keeping with the spirit of Christmas," he said.

Past themes include "Children's Stories," "Christmas in Toyland," "Visions of Christmas" and last year's winning entry, "The Enchantment of Christmas."

QHS Students Volunteer Program 'Coastal Concerns' Topic

Soviet Union Visitors Here Thursday

Congressional District II Sane/Freeze of Massachusetts will hold a press conference with two Soviet Union visitors today (Thursday) at 9:30 a.m. at President's Church, Quincy Center.

Dr. Tatyana Mazaeva, a research fellow at the Moscow Institute of World Economics and International Affairs, and Victor Borisyuk, head of the U.S.A. desk of the Institute for Study of the United States and Canada, will discuss the topic "Can Massachusetts Learn from Soviet Economic Conversion Plans?"

The conference is an opportunity to question knowledgeable Soviets on what their government has done in the area of reduced military spending.

Susan Gallagher Candidate For Council At-Large

SUSAN GALLAGHER

Susan Gallagher of 21 Willow St., Wollaston, will announce her candidacy for councillor-at-large Sunday, April 30 at 3 p.m. during a tea at her home.

Gallagher is strongly opposed to the operation of a permanent sludge plant facility in Quincy. Because the city is also hosting a temporary sludge plant, she said she will fight for reduced water and sewerage rates for city residents.

As for bolstering the city's economy, Gallagher said additional revenue could be created by revitalizing Quincy Square as well as promoting tourism.

By attracting visitors to Quincy, the tax burden would be alleviated for city residents as well as for small business owners, she said.

The wife of William F. Gallagher, they have two children. Todd is a student at Central Middle School and Megan will attend St. Chrystostom's Pre-School in September.

An active member of St. Chrystostom's Church, she is currently serving in her fifth year as a vestry member. Gallagher is also on St. Chrystostom's Pre-School Board of Directors.

Originally from South Boston, she moved to Milton when she was 16.

A graduate of Milton High School, she attended Bunker Hill Community College. After graduating from Bunker Hill, she attended Suffolk University.

She holds a degree in criminal justice.

DeCristofaro Calls Recycling Meeting

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro scheduled a recycling meeting for last night at 7 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse on Nevada Rd.

The meeting was to notify residents of the proper way in which the paper recycling program will be conducted beginning May 1.

Paper recycling has the potential to save the city more than $100,000 its first year but it all depends on citizen participation, DeCristofaro noted.

Some Opening Remarks From Quincy Savings Bank.

BFI Cleans Southwest Streets

The Lincoln School and several streets were cleaned and swept at the expense of Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI) recently.

This resulted from South West Quincy Community Relations Committee meeting, where area residents including Tom Fabrizio, a candidate for Ward 4 councillor, had gathered to meet with representatives of Browning-Ferris to voice their concerns on various issues.

Browning-Ferris responded by providing brooms, receptacles and manpower. Citizens of Brooks Ave., Intervale St., Roberts St., Gilbert St., Brook Rd., and Caledonia St. directed the team from Browning-Ferris.

The Lincoln School property was swept and cleared of dead grass and weeds.

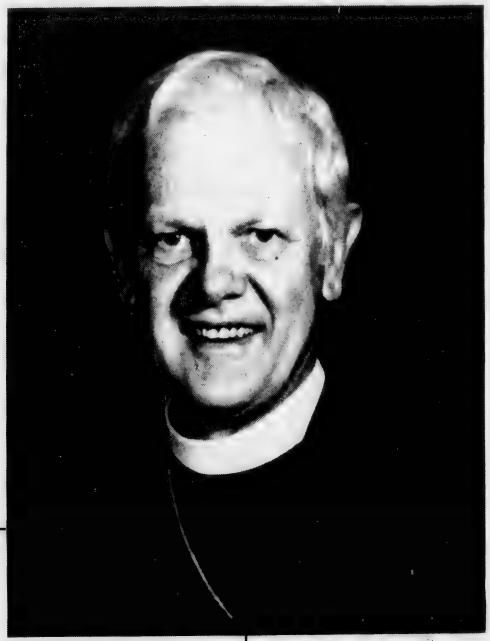
Greetings To Our Members And Friends

An anniversary is always an occasion for celebration and thanksgiving, but a 100th Anniversary is a special time for celebration. It is, therefore, a very real and gracious privilege to invite all of our members and friends in the community to join us in our year long celebration.

For 100 years Faith Lutheran Church has been in existence as a Christian witness here in Quincy. For 100 years within this Body of Believers the Gospel has been proclaimed and the Sacraments celebrated. During these years, hundreds of God's children have been baptized, young people have been confirmed, couples have been married, and faithful saints have been laid to rest. During these years Faith has presented a powerful witness to Jesus Christ and carried out a faithful ministry in His name. During these 100 years, thousands of people have considered Faith their church home, and have worshipped within its buildings and knelt at its altar to receive the assurance of forgiveness.

Now we celebrate this centennial. Now we give honor and tribute to those saints of old who through the Holy Spirit's leading brought this church into being and in whose faithful labors God was glorified and His Kingdom advanced. But as we review the past with its fond memories and associations, let us also consider the present and rejoice that God has called us to serve Him in this day as well.

Somewhere I read that Longfellow, the poet, wrote of one who had entered a little chapel and come across this inscription:



"Look not mournfully into the past, it comes not back again. Wisely improve the present, it is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future without a fear and with a manly heart."

Something of that same spirit is true as we look at our 100th anniversary. It is our calling to improve the present and to go forward into the future with optimism.

It has been said that you and I live in difficult times for the Christian Church. The pressures of our day, along with depersonalization, supposedly work to make the church irrelevant. But to make such a comment is to understand the church to be an institution, a building, or an organization. Such is not the Church! The Church is the people of God who recognize themselves to be bound together in a family. It is rather an exciting time! A time when the Church can declare again the worth of every individual — the fact that we are loved and called to love each other. The Church is as relevant as each new day.

So it is that we look forward to the next 100 years with great excitement and anticipation. We thank all who have been a part of our ministry and extend an invitation to all to be a part of our future.

Your Brother in Christ,
P.J.

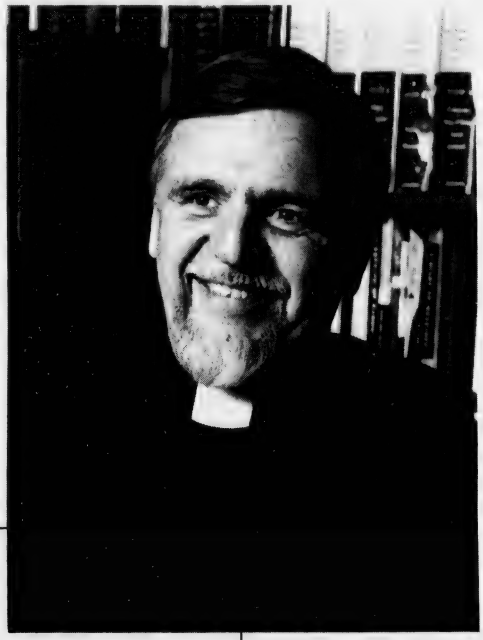
Dear Members of Faith Lutheran Church Congregation:



On this happy occasion of your 100th anniversary, I join you in heartfelt thanksgiving for the labor and the love which have brought us to this day. I pray that the grace of God will be with each of you at Faith Lutheran Church as you begin your second century of witness and service in Quincy. As you celebrate I would lift up for your reflection the beautiful words of the hymnwriter Georg Neumark:

"If you but trust in God to guide you,
And place your confidence in Him,
You'll find Him always there beside you,
To give you hope and strength within.
For those who trust God's changeless love,
Build on the rock that will not move."

May all your endeavors ever be built on that rock which is Christ.

Cordially in Christ,

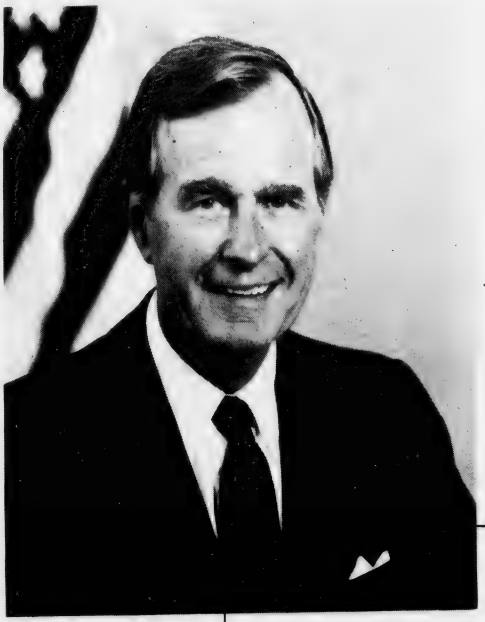
Dear Sisters and Brothers of Faith Lutheran Church:

It is with great joy that I recognize your celebration of 100 years of faithful ministry. You have had a wonderful history born out of the faith of immigrants from Finland and Sweden coming together to gather around God's holy word and Sacraments. You have seen these two ministries come together in a common witness and you look forward to years of faithful ministry to the new community of people that exist all around you in your parish area. I pray that God will bless you with the same kind of faith and commitment to your present calling as has been demonstrated through the years from the day of founding.



I look forward to being with you to celebrate first hand on Sunday, September 10, 1989.

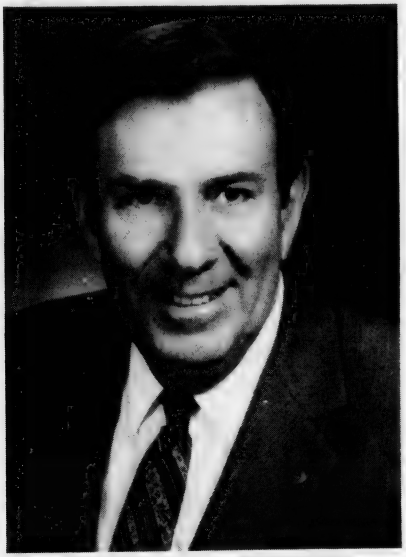
Dear Members of the Faith Lutheran Church Congregation:

I am especially pleased to offer you my sincere best wishes in honor of the Faith Lutheran Church's 100th Anniversary Celebration, a hundred years of devout inspiration, deep commitment to the community, and of providing unselfish support and protection to those fellow human beings in need of assistance.

The good things you have accomplished through worship, financial support, educational and social programs, enriches the community at large and especially your parishioners as you begin your Centennial Observance. Certainly, the Faith Lutheran Church has encouraged many of its parishioners to live by that higher standard --Christ's Standard-- that instills in all of us that desire to help our fellow man and make our community a better place to live.



Those early Scandinavian stonecutters, who founded the church in 1889 and appropriately constructed the church building from Quincy granite, must have known they were building a house of worship, not for a mere hundred years, but for the ages. Congratulations and kindest regards on this centennial and the ones to follow.

Dear Faith Lutheran Church Congregation:

I am pleased to have this opportunity to extend to you my most sincere congratulations on the celebration of the Faith Lutheran Church's One Hundreth Anniversary. The passage of time has brought many changes to both your congregation and to the surrounding community. The small band of immigrant artisans and stonecutters who founded the church, created not only a beautiful house of worship, but also a legacy of community service and social awareness. This legacy is carried forth today through the many service and education programs your congregation supports. It is your efforts which have made Faith Lutheran Church not only a place of worship but a vibrant and valuable asset to the city of Quincy.

Please accept my congratulations on your achievements, and my best wishes for your continued success for many more years to come.

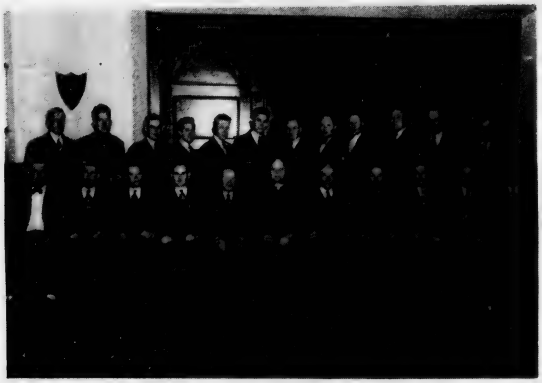
Very truly yours,

PAUL D. HAROLD
Senator

FAITH LUTHERAN CHURCH, formerly Salem Lutheran Church on Granite St., affectionately known as "The Church On The Rock."

FAITH CENTER, formerly Trinity Lutheran, 65 Roberts St. is the location of the Dr. Charles Djerf Christian Pre-School, minister and secretary's office and where a variety of church activities are held.

Two Churches...One Faith



During the latter part of the 19th century, there was an immigration movement of Scandanavians to America.

Groups within this movement of Swedish and Finnish nationality, settled in Quincy where they entered into the life of the community. The majority of the men were employed as quarry workers and carpenters, and the women generally serving as cooks and maids to the established members of the community.

Members of both the Swedish and the Finnish groups met regularly and each group organized a separate Lutheran Church based on ethnic origins. The Swedish people formed the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran Salems Church and the Finnish people formed the Finnish Evangelical Lutheran Church. During the greater part of the first fifty years, both congregations were very ethnically oriented until they gradually evolved from Swedish-speaking and Finnish-speaking churches into English-speaking churches. These two churches eventually merged into one Lutheran church.

In 1974, several meetings were held and, with help of God, the congregations voted and the two churches merged. The merged church was called Faith Lutheran Church and Rev. James Kimmell was its first pastor. On November 10, 1974, Faith held its first joint service embarking on a new future enriched by a long and deep Faith of its forefathers.

To commemorate the past 100 years, our church has been completely renovated — from ceiling to floorboards! We have many activities planned to build and inspire our commitments for the next 100 years. All are welcome at our house of worship — people of all faiths and nationalities! The common thread of Christians binds us together — faith in our Savior Jesus Christ.

'The Church On The Rock'

Early Notes From Salem Lutheran Church

During the 1880's, a group of Swedish Lutherans living in Quincy gathered together and formed the Swedish Lutheran Mission Society in order to study the Bible and worship God in their own community rather than travelling what was then, the long distance into Boston. Meetings were held in various public halls and members' homes.

On Jan. 29 and 30, 1889, the sixty members of this Swedish Mission Society met to organize themselves into a congregation. The constitution of the Augustana Synod was read and accepted. The congregation voted to name their new church "Salem," a Swedish word meaning "Peace." Mr. C.O. Young was called to serve as its first preacher. The official incorporation of the church took place on August 22, 1889 and the church was given its official, or legal, name, the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran Salems Church.

The church had only thirty-seven members when Mr. C.O. Young started his work but at the end of the first year, it had increased to sixty-eight and continued to grow. The church continued to meet in various locations including Plummer's Hall on Hancock Street in Quincy, MA. In Mr. Young's greeting at the Forty-Fifth Anniversary he wrote:

"I wonder how many there are of the old members of the church who remember the first meeting in Plummer's Hall. Mrs. C.F. Carlson, the Nelson girls: Emma, Anna and Caroline Lofgren, John F. Johnson, Andrew Nelson and others helped me to paint the old chairs we had gotten from the skating rink — the paint had not quite dried by Sunday morning and everyone brought a newspaper to sit on — and the blessed times we had in that hall together, so that we almost regretted leaving it when the church was built."

Building The Church On The Rock

After meeting for three years at various locations, a special meeting was held on July 9, 1891 and it was voted to purchase the lot on which Faith Lutheran Church now stands. The lot at 201 Granite Street was purchased for the sum of $1,000. Plans for the new church were drawn up by William R. Lofgren, a charter member.

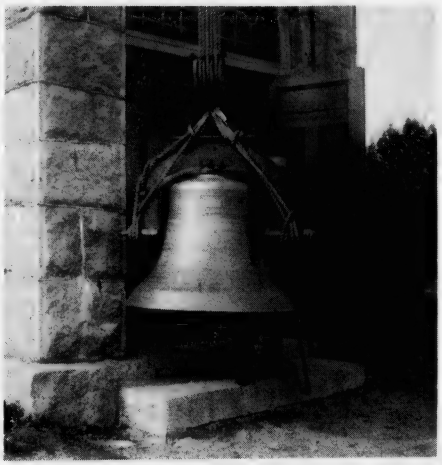
During the Spring and Summer of 1892, there was a general strike at the stone quarries. Many of the men of the congregation were quarry workers and they decided to utilize their time and talents in building the church.

Members of the church and Swedish people of the community put in 8-10 hour days at the site. Granite rock was hand hewn from the site where the church was to stand. Dynamite and hand-drill were used.

The rocks were rehewn after being quarried and set aside for the construction of the outer walls with smaller stones being reserved for areas around windows and doors.

Mr. C.O. Young, minister at the time, wrote in 1934:

"How many are there left in Quincy who belonged to my quarry gang? They will recall that there was a general strike among the stone workers in Quincy the summer we built the church; so we could not solicit money for the church, but I used to go evenings to the various homes and boarding houses where the men lived and get a gang to work on the church lot quarrying stone the next day.



Sometimes I would turn the drill while others wielded the sledge hammers, till the holes were deep enough to fill with powder. Then we attached the fuse and covered over with railroad ties, lit the fuse and ducked down the street while the blast went off."

After sufficient stone had been quarried for the church, the contract was given to Anton Carlson to build the stone work for $2,345 and the contract for the wood work was awarded to William R. Lofgren for $3,100.

The cornerstone was laid in 1892 by The Reverend Dr. L.P. Ahlquist, president of the Conference. The Church was completed in 1894 and dedicated on February 24 and 25, 1894.

The Boston Globe, February 23, 1894 wrote:

"Just five years ago this month, thirty seven Swedes, professing the faith propounded by Luther and the recognized state religion of their own country, organized the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran society of this city. Today, though small in numbers, they are strong and united in their religious belief, and as a lasting monument to their fidelity in this respect, there stands on the corner of School and Granite Streets one of the prettiest churches in the city."

ON JULY 20, 1895, the bell in the church steeple was dedicated. It was donated by Henry H. Faxon, a prominent Quincy businessman. Inscribed on one side of the bell is: Presented by Henry H. Faxon 1985. "And the rain descended, and the floods came and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock." Matthew 7:25. On the opposite side: "Members of the Church Council at the erection of this church: Carl Young, Carl F. Carlson, August Viden, Joseph F. Johnson, Fritz Swanson, W.R. Lofgren, Anders Nelson, J.A. Hallquist, C.G. Hallberg. W.R. Lofgren, Builder. "Are vare Gud i hojden och frid pa jorden, till manniskorna ett godt behag!" Luke 2:14. Translated from Swedish: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men with whom he is pleased!" Through the years, the Church has come to be known as "The Church on the Rock" both because of where it is built and also because of the inscription on the bell.

THE ORIGINAL STRUCTURE without the vestry is shown in this copy of a pre-1914 postcard.

REV. EDGAR H. MALSTROM was pastor from 1925 to 1948, serving during a difficult time--the depression and World War II. During the depression he spent his meager salary (he never asked for a raise in 15 years) buying coal and food for parishioners in need. Many benefited from his ministry and generosity.

REV. JOHN A. BERNHARD came to Quincy July 2, 1899 and was installed into the church in December. He served as pastor until Janaury, 1906. During his pastorate, church membership increased from 286 (including children) in 1899 to a little over 400 in 1906. Born in 1864, he died in 1921.

Memories Of A Finnish Sunday School

By BILL TUORI

Before Faith Lutheran Church, there was Salem and Trinity. Before Trinity, there was the Finnish Evangelical Lutheran Church. Life for a child in the 30's in a church and Sunday School organized by Finnish immigrants was no bed of roses. Yet, there are pleasant memories of this facility that helped to set a foundation in the lives of many children that remains strong today.

Sunday School was held an hour before the worship service, both of which were a mixture of Finnish and English. The hymnals presented a special challenge to the kids who had their problems just trying to learn how to read in English. The old hymns were printed in Finnish with a German script. After a while, you learned how to fake it, this was not the method endorsed by the Quincy School system.

The music was usually accompanied by a teacher on the piano because no one wanted to pump the bellows on the organ.

The class consisted of children in the first grade in school until you reached at least 14 years of age for preparation for your first confirmation. Duirng these years only 2 books were used — a Finnish primer and the catechism of the Lutheran church (also in Finnish). The joys of audio-visual aids were unknown. The use of films was discouraged; it could lead to liking such sinful things as the Saturday morning show at the State Theatre in Quincy Square.

There was a collection of biblical posters that fascinated the children. But none of them showed what the children really wanted to know — "What did God look like?" So, one of the kids brought in a copy of an Italian painting that portrayed Him with a white beard, long hair and a flowing robe. He looked just like our minister — Pastor Heiman. For a long time I was convinced our pastor was God.

Every Sunday morning, I met my friend Arthur at the Finnish Bakery at the bottom of the hill. Together with our dogs "Bookie" and "Cookie" we went to Sunday School. We always left them outside to wait for us, because the dogs were unfortunately heathen and not good, baptized Lutherans.

Arthur and I usually had 2 nickels each to take to Sunday School — one for the collection and the other for candy at the variety store at the top of Nelson Street. One day Arthur dropped one of the coins and it rolled into the sewer grate. Arthur looked sadly down the hole and said — "Well, there goes God's nickel!"

In class, good Finnish children were expected to know their lessons and be seen and not heard. Consequently, dialogue between students and teachers was kept to a minimum.

I suspect that between the rigid atmosphere and the difficulty of learning in a foreign language, I missed a lot of the religious education imparted in today's Sunday School. But this was more than offset by being thoroughly instilled with the knowledge that the Church and the school were holy places of worship.

Christmas was special, if not a little confusing. Like all kids, I had a pretty good idea who Santa Claus was, but when a Finnish Sunday School has a Christmas party, the guest of honor was not Santa, but the Finnish version of Saint Nicholas, "Joluo Pukki." He dressed and spoke differently from the Santa I was introduced to at Sheridan's Department Store in the Square. But he gave out gifts just the same. Do you know that you can learn to say — "I've been a good boy" in any language with the right motivation?

The most important day in the life of a Finnish Lutheran boy is your first communion. It represents the end of a major part of childhood — attending Sunday School. It meant being presented before the congregation, questioned on your knowledge of the catechism and being given the bread and wine just like the grown-ups. In my family it meant one more thing — long pants. I didn't have to wear knickers and knee socks anymore. Could there be any more proof of reaching adulthood?

Many years have gone by since that day. My faith has expanded. I've listened to thousands of sermons and messages in church. But one way or another they all express the same thought we all learned in Sunday School — "Jesus loves me; this I know, for the Bible tells me so."

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS throughout the church were donated by parishioners.

Faith Reaches Out

TO THE COMMUNITY:

Faith runs the Dr. Charles Djerf Christian Child Development Center, a Christian nursery school for 3 and 4 year olds.

Faith makes regular monetary contributions to the Protestant Social Service Bureau, and also contributes canned and packaged foods to their Pantry Shelf. Several of Faith's members participate in the P.S.S.B. Walk-a-thon each year.

Faith takes it's regular turn in preparing and serving a meal to any members of the community who find it difficult to make ends meet. These meals are served at the Quincy Free Restaurant in the Central Baptist Center.

Faith's pastor, James Kimmell, was instrumental in beginning the Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services in Quincy. Several members of Faith served on its board.

Pastor Kimmell also serves as a Commissioner of the Quincy Housing Authority and as the Protestant Chaplain of the Quincy Fire Department.

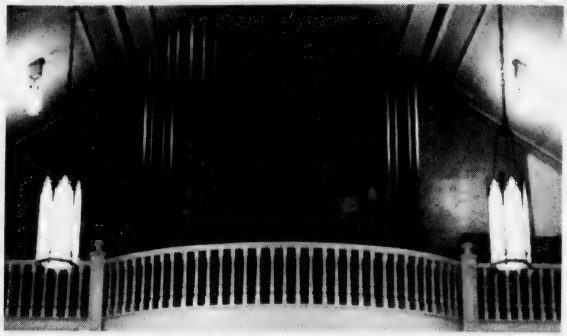
TO THE EXTENDED COMMUNITY:

Faith helps to support two Boston inner city churches.

Members of Faith regularly prepare sandwiches to be distributed by the Pine Street Inn rescue van.

Gifts varying from clothing to household goods to a stereo have been provided to the Abington Program for the Mentally Retarded, part of the Lutheran Service Association.

In the past Pastor Kimmell taught at the Boston School for the Deaf and held signed worship services.



The Fairhaven Rest Home was begun by members of Faith and the congregation has a continuing interest in the home.

TO THE WORLD:

Faith holds regular drives to help alleviate world hunger and send clothing, blankets, and health/school/sewing kits to be distributed through Lutheran World Relief.

About ten percent of Faith's budget is sent to the New England Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America to be used in missions, evangelism, and aid to those in need.

Faith brought three families to this country from Cambodia, the first family producing a new U.S. citizen very shortly after their arrival!

DEDICATED DEC. 4, 1909, this Hook-Hastings organ was purchased by funds from the congregation and a large contribution from Andrew Carnegie. The organ was completely refurbished in 1959.

Sadie Thoren 102 Years Young

Mrs. Thoren (age 102) has been a member for over seventy years. Her parents came from Sweden and sought a Swedish Lutheran church. There have been four generations of her family at our church. Through the many years, Mrs. Thoren was very active in the Missionary Society and Dorcas Society, sang in the choir and served countless church suppers.

SADIE THOREN, shown here on her 102nd birthday Jan. 20, 1989 is Faith Lutheran's oldest member.

The Finnish Lutherans In Quincy

By BILL TUORI

To Finland, the Lutheran Church had been a powerful influence over the lives of generations of Finns since Martin Luther. When they became part of the melting pot formed by thousands of immigrants to the United States, they discovered they had choices. However, in spite of their many new found freedoms, they wanted to continue in the religion of their homeland.

It is natural that they brought with them their devout Christian belief and trust in the future. Therefore, the need and desire of the Finnish community in Quincy was to acquire a place of worship and fellowship.

Some of the first Finnish preachers in the United States were Swedish men who had to learn the Finnish language before they could effectively communicate the Gospel.

The first Finnish Lutheran services in Quincy were in 1896. Because of the resulting enthusiasm it was decided to form a congregation. This meeting was held after a service in the Swedish Lutheran Church. Ironically, 78 years later they would both become the same congregation.

The group that eventually became incorporated as the Finnish Evangelical Lutheran Church of Quincy had 73 charter members. They were assessed 25 cents a month for dues first collected through home visits and then directly to the treasurer. The first pastor, Albin Hukkanen was paid $8.00 a month and lived in the home of the vice chairman.

The first services were held at the Swedish church with a rental fee of $7.00 a meeting. Later meetings were held at the Italian Hall on Water Street for a fee of 75¢. In 1910, when the new Finnish Temperance Hall was built on Suomi Road, the fee was only 10¢ per meeting.

Pastor Hannes Sjoblom, the new minister, organized a Sunday School in 1901 and established a building fund with a donation of ten dollars. After six months he resigned and went to China as a missionary.

From 1903 to 1913, Pastor Gabriel Lipsanen served the Quincy, Cape Ann, Salem, and Allson-Brighton congregations. They became part of the Suomi Synod. A choir was formed with rehearsals held at the home of John Hedlund.

Land was purchased at the top of Buckley Street and Suomi Road for $150 to construct a church building. The foundation was built by volunteers from the congregation. Swedish architect and contractor William R. Lofgren built the church. When the structure was completed in 1912, it was dedicated on the 4th of July.

In 1913 Pastor Alpo Setala accepted a call to serve the congregation. He was paid $85 a month plus $50 for travel expenses. He conducted two Sunday and two Monday services each month. Many new arrivals from Finland joined the Church as opportunities in shipbuilding and the granite industry increased in Quincy.

From 1916 to 1924 the church went through a succession of pastors, when Pastor Frank A. Pelkonen began his ministry. With the typical Finnish abhorance of indebtedness, Pastor Pelkonen began work to improve the financial situation. In 1927 he started having a worship service in English once a month.

Pastor Veljo Heiman arrived in 1929 and revitalized the church youth and the congregation became more involved in community activities. During 1931 he preached 236 sermons. Possibly because of the losses in finances and attendance due to the Depression Pastor Heiman accepted a call to Worcester with area responsibilities.

For the next ten years (1933-43), the church prospered under Pastor Armas Holmio. Membership increased significantly. A lot of land on Quarry Street was purchased for $500, and a Building Fund was initiated. With considerable donations of labor, material and funds, the Holmio family moved in at the end of 1940.

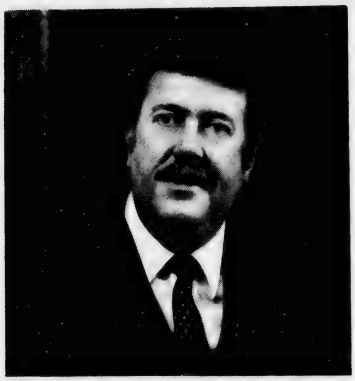
During Pastor Martin Halinen's term, second and third generation Finnish Americans increased the membership with more emphasis on the English language. Pastor Hugo Hillcla was called in 1948. Efforts began immediately to build a new church and parsonage on Roberts Street. The name of the church was changed to Trinity Lutheran Church. The new structure was dedicated in 1950.



Pastors Lepisto Tormala and Sallmen continued with both Finnish and English services. When it became evident that Finnish speaking preachers were no longer available, Pastor James L. Kimmell accepted Trinity's call. With youth work as his strength, he affected a merger of both Salem and Trinty LYFE groups. Trinity became the first LCA church in New England to serve the deaf. The Charles Djerf Child Development Center was formed.

Because of mutual problems at the Swedish Salem and the Finnish Trinity Lutheran Churches merged and formed Faith Lutheran Church. The former Salem site is used for services and the Trinity location became Faith House used for administration and special activities.

Best Wishes from

Mayor and Mrs. Francis X. McCauley

Congratulations on your 100th Anniversary

Community Outreach Leads To New Church

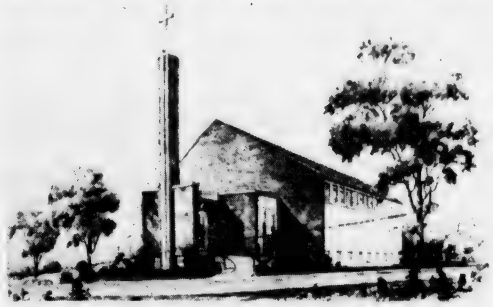
By ERIC CHILSTEDT

In January, 1927, responding to a need for Christian Education in the North Quincy (Montclair) area, members of Salem Lutheran Church founded a branch Sunday School.

The first meeting was held on January 16, 1927 in the Montclair Improvement Association Community Hall. Perhaps if it hadn't been for a snowstorm that day, more than the four pupils and three teachers would have attended.

By the end of that year, however, there was a total of 28 children enrolled with an average attendance of 21 pupils at each Sunday School session.

During the next 14 years hundreds of children received religious training and instruction. As the Montclair Sunday School, located three miles from the parent church, continued to grow, an increasing desire for a church of their own developed among the parents and the children of the little school.



In 1941 the Sunday School was transferred to the jurisdiction of the Mission Board of the Augustana Sydon when, as an experiment, it began conducting regular worship services. Response seemed sufficiently encouraging to justify the founding of a new congregation, and on June 26, 1942 the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd came into being.

When the ground-breaking service for the new Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd of North Quincy, Mass. was held Sunday, Oct. 18, the dreams and prayers of loyal and devout parishioners of the church for the past 26 years became a reality.

The story of the beginning of the Church dates back to Jan. 16, 1927 in the Montclair Improvement Association Community Hall when the founding of the Sunday School took place. Perhaps if it hadn't been for a snowstorm that day, more than the four pupils and three teachers would have attended. By the end of that year, however, there was a total of 28 children enrolled with an average attendance of 21 pupils at each Sunday School session.

In 1945 when the congregation was formally incorporated, the Sunday School had grown to three officers, 15 teachers, three Cradle Roll members and a total of 84 pupils.

There were no worship services held until March 1941 when the Rev. Henry J. Hokenson came to preach for a small group that also met in the same hall. Several men filled the pulpit during the following weeks until Carl Nelson, an interne from Augustana Seminary, arrived in June 1941. By June 1942, there were 30 charter members of the church. Due to legal difficulties, however, this charter never was legally completed. Mr. Nelson stayed until July 1942 and was followed in succession by other internes, Gene Lund and Neil Nelson.

LUTHERAN CHURCH OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD

The Rev. Olaf Lundgren, the first resident pastor, came to the church in 1944. By this time the group had outgrown the Community Hall and moved into the Montclair School Auditorium where the group still meets.

Following Pastor Lundgren was Laurel Udden, student pastor, who arrived in 1951 for a year. The present pastor, the Rev. P.T. Calvin Johnson, took over his duties in August, 1952. During Pastor Johnson's ministry plans for a new church have rapidly come to a climax. The building selected will have a seating capacity of 150 persons and a choir loft seating 30. The building has been designed by Carl C. Enebuske of Cambridge and will be built by William L. Lofgren and Sons of Quincy.

Material in the building will include stucco over cinder block, red brick, glass and laminated wood. If weather conditions are favorable and all goes well, it is hoped that Easter Services will be held in the new church.

Dr. Eskil G. Englund, Conference President, turned the first spadeful of dirt followed by Pastor Johnson. Mr. B.J. Johnson, representing the Board of Administration; Mr. Robert Swanson, Luther League, President; and Mr. Marshall Brett, Chairman of the Building Committee, also participated in the ground breaking ceremony.

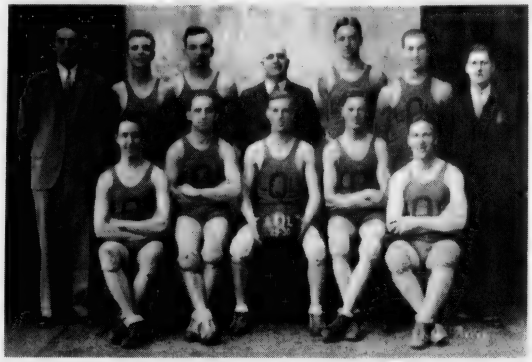
Personal Memories . . .

By HAP HILSTROM

• I joined the Church when I was confirmed May, 1928, and my wife, Betty, joined in 1951.

• My mother and father were members and my four brothers and one sister were all confirmed at Salem. My parents were not charter members to the best of my memory, but they were among the early members, and my guess would be around 1895. In fact, my father set all the hand rails at the steps leading from the street to the top of the hill.



• As a kid in Sunday School I remember that once a year we would make collections for the "Orphans Home in Avon." We were given printed cards and we would ask our friends and neighbors to contribute. Their names and amounts would be recorded on this card. And the kids who collected the most money were given prizes.

• Our Boy Scout Troop 25, was one of the best in Quincy. Many prizes we won at local Jamborees and our highlight for the year was to compete at Brockton Fair and stay overnight.

• Sunday School picnics are also fond memories. Many were held at the Orphans Home in Avon. This gave us an opportunity to play with and get to know the kids who lived there, and of course to play all the games and especially eat. Then after a few years we moved the picnics to Merrymount Park. We had many happy times there.

• And of course our basketball teams. We played in both the greater Boston Luthern Church League and the Quincy Church's League. It was a lot of fun to travel around in Benny's (Turnquist) Yelee" to and from games. Some were played in very small buildings to extra large courts. In these days a regulation size basketball court hadn't been heard of. I still have my gold Basketball charm won in the Quincy Sunday School League in 1929-1930. There are a few trophies in the Church cabinets to attest to the skill of our teams.

(Hap Hilstrom continues to worship with us and make new memories.)

SALEM LUTHERAN CHURCH 1929-30 basketball team in the Quincy Lutheran League.

Something We Should Try Today?

The Rev. John W. Eckman served Salem Lutheran Church from July, 1896 to October 1897.

Records of special Church Council meetings held during this time indicate that the church wielded a great deal of disciplinary power.

Members were called to account for their "wicked lives." Reverend Eckman would visit those members in question with a warning if they did not repent and change, they were called before the Church Council to defend their actions.

Members would be suspended for a short period of time. If after that time the person was still not repentant, they would be excommunicated from the Church.

Early Memories Of Our Church

By MARIA WALLIN PEARSON
Daughter of Bengt Severen Wallin and Anna Christina Wallin
Charter Member of Salem Lutheran Church

I remember one evening in particular Dr. Young walked home from Plummers Hall with my brother Axel and myself. He had his arm around both of us as we walked and discussed the plans for the new church.

He also talked about the Bible and spoke so kind to us. How fine a man he was and what an inspiration to us both. He entered the medical school at Harvard University in the fall of 1889 graduating four years later with a degree of Doctor of Medicine. He was a very busy man during this period studying, preaching and teaching in the church and quarrying stone.

Dr. Young recalls this period and the work of the members quarrying stone on the church lot the summer that the church was built.

He has written. "Sometimes I would turn the drill while others wielded the sledge hammers, till the holes were deep enough to fill with powder. Then we attached the fuse and covered over with railroad ties, lit the fuse and ducked down the street while the blast went off."

After sufficient stone had been quarried for the church, the contract was given to Anton Carlson to lay the stone work for $2,345 and the contract was given to William R. Lofgren for the wood construction for $3,100. The corner stone was laid in 1892 by my Uncle, Rev. Dr. L.P. Ahlquist, President of the Conference. I was ten years old at the time and remember it very well.

The church was completed in 1894 so that a program could be held on Sunday, February 25th. This program consisted of an Overture by the Swedish Band. An address of welcome by Dr. C.O. Young, Invocation by Rev. A. Thoren. A song, "God Bless Our Temple" by S.F. Klang rendered by the Choir. An Address in Swedish by Rev. J.T. Johnson Jorby. Anthem "Praise The Lord," by the Male Chorus. Song "Comfort My People" by the Church Choir and A Song "A Mighty Fortress is our God" and Benediction pronounced by Rev. C.A. Blomgren.

Dr. Young remained with the church for five years and having seen his hopes realized, he resigned and left Quincy where he had worked so faithfully in October 1894 for a trip to Europe. He carried with him a handsome gold watch with the picture of the church engraved on the case, a gift of the parishioners as a testimony of their appreciation of his worth. He came back to Quincy in the year 1939 at our 50th Anniversary. He spoke at the Banquet and it was so nice talking to him afterwards.

SALEM ANNIVERSARY — Three members of Salem Lutheran Church confirmed before 1900, were honored at the 75th anniversary of the church. Viewing a church in this newspaper photo scrapbook with Rev. Bertil E. Hult, pastor, (left) and keynote speaker, the Rev. Dr. Harold Ockenga, pastor of the Park Street Church, Boston, are Marie Pearson and Mrs. Elsa J. Wilson, confirmed in 1897 and Mrs. K. Aspara Kelley, 1899.

Rev. John T. Johnson Norrby succeeded Dr. Young and served from October 7, 1894 to April 1896. It was during this period that a handsome church bell was installed on the belfry as a gift from Henry M. Faxon. The dedication took place on Saturday, July 20, 1895. Inscribed on one side of the bell is the following: Presented by Henry Faxon, 1895. "And the rain descended, and the floods came and winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock, Matthew: 7-25.

The church was dedicated by Rev. Dr. Olof Olson, President of Augustana College and Theological Seminary, Rock Island, Illinois, Sunday, Oct. 13, 1895. Dr. Olson spoke on the text Matthew: 16-15-18 with the theme, "Thou Art The Christ, The Son of the Living God." It was something I shall never forget.

'The Church On The Rock'

(Dedicated to Mrs. Charles Chilstedt)

By BEN TURNQUIST

There was a group of God-fearing Swedes,
Who longed for a church of their own.
They had faith in their hearts, and showed it by deeds,
As they planned their church, built of stone.

□

It was long years ago when they started to meet,
Back in the year eighty-nine.
And for three hopeful years, - parted chaff from the wheat,
At the home of those Christians so fine.

□

Then they decided to build their new home,
And they looked around for a place.
They wanted a spot where they'd never have to roam,
And they could talk to their Lord face to face.

□

They looked high and low, and found one on high,
On Granite Street near Quincy Square.
And when they got through, it reached to the sky,
The Wondrous Cross, to help you get "There."

□

They piled stone on stone, it was back-breaking work,
But to them 'twas a labor of Love.
They all did their job, they seldom did shirk,
As they toiled for the Prince Up Above.

□

THe bulk of the work was done by the men,
One gives credit where credit is due.
But three cheers should resound again and again,
For the good ladies, God bless them too.

□

There were seventeen women, the men numbered twenty,
The "Church On The Rock," they did start.
Their joy knew no bounds, - of His Faith they had plenty,
For they all had a God-fearing heart.

□

Most all have gone home, to their last resting place.
They've done thier work for the Lord.
And now they're all happy in seeing His Face,
As they enjoy their Eternal Reward.

□

There were Andersons "two," and the Carlsons were five,
And a Childstedt and Hallberg were there.
And John Hollinder, J. Nylander both did arrive.
There was a Hultin and Jepson so fair.

□

There were two Hallquists, five Johnsons, Larson & Lofgren, too.
And four Nilsons, Two Rydens, and Swanson.
There was Samuelson, Sandberg, Two Videns, four Wallins.
May the Lord bless their work so well done.

MRS. CHARLES CHILSTEDT, charter member, with Rev. Bertil E. Hult, pastor, in 1959 on the 70th anniversary of the church.

4 Generations

Signe Chilstedt joined the church in 1938 by marriage to a church member (Erick A. Chilstedt). There have now been four generations of this family that have been members of Faith.

Interestingly, the original founding members included Charles G. Chilstedt who was a carpenter who helped build the original church. Charles Chilstedt in 1908, made the altar rail, pulpit and hymn number board that remain to this day. His great grandson, Eric Chilstedt, served on the Building Committee for renovating the church for the 100th Anniversary. Eric Chilstedt has given time and put hours worth of work into the current structure. He may even have renovated and stood in the very same places as his great grandfather did so many years ago.

Signe Chilstedt is still alive today to witness her great grandchildren (Scott and Karen) going to the same Sunday School to learn and grow to love a faith that has been a central part of the Childstedt family for generations.

FAITH LUTHERAN CHURCH houses an unusually beautiful hand painted copy of Block's famous painting "Come Unto Me." It was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson and unveiled on Dec. 1, 1908. This rendering was done on canvas by Olaf Grafstram. This picture was chosen because portrayed is Christ the Comforter, the Giver of Peace, and the name of the church, at this time, was Salem meaning "Peace."

Finn Sends 9 Specialty Officers To The Street:

McCauley Firm On No More Money For Police Dept.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor Francis McCauley stood firm against more money for the Police Department Tuesday despite appeals from Police Chief Francis Finn and Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney.

The request for more money came as Finn announced that he was reassigning nine specialty officers to the street as a way to prevent further cutbacks and to cover the department's upcoming vacation period.

The reassignment comes as a result of an order by the mayor who earlier this year told the chief to bring his overtime spending under control. Facing a $250,000 shortfall in the police personnal services account, Finn was left to come up with a new deployment plan since the mayor repeatedly said he would not allocate more overtime funds.

On Tuesday, the reassigned officers were removed from their regular duties to fill street patrols. Finn said the move is necessary because the summer vacation period will begin shortly and he does not want to reassign patrol officers, which he calls his first priority.

The reassigned special officers are: one training officer, a sergeant in the accreditation program, one traffic officer, two drug enforcement officers, the crime prevention officer, two investigation officers and the DARE officer.

The DARE program, which stands for Drug Abuse Resistance Education, recently began in several Quincy schools.

If more money were funded, the specialty officers would be able to return to their assigned duties, Finn and Cheney said.

Moreover, both Finn and Cheney said the reassignment comes at a critical time since the summer months are approaching. Historically, summer is a time when crime and drug activity are likely to increase.

"I hope we will be able to hold the line. I honestly feel if we break the continuation of these programs, they're going to suffer, public safety is going to suffer and the public will feel it," the chief said.

Finn said he is particulary concerned about removing the drug officers from undercover duty because their visibility helps prevent dealers from coming into Quincy.

The chief said he does not know how much money would be needed to transfer these officers back on their speciality. Cheny said $50,000 could put five of the officers back on their assigned duties.

Those five officers would be: the two drug officers, DARE officer, crime prevention officer and training officer.

Asked whether he would be agreeable to a $50,000 appropriation to the Police Department, McCauley said, "$50,000 is not a figure I would be agreeable to.

"We've got to make the department heads live within their budgets."

As for the deployment of Finn's men, McCauley said it is not his place to interfere.

"My position has not changed. The deployment of officers is a decision the chief must make. We have to finish fiscal 1989 in good condition," the mayor said, adding that available free cash will go towards a potential $6 million shortfall next year.

As for the threat of increased drug activity this summer, McCauley said, "Drugs are a problem everywhere. It's up to the chief to weigh this thing.

"He has to decide whether these men should be on the street."

However, Finn and Cheney contend the mayor should appropriate more money in order to transfer the specialty officers back to their assigned duties.

City Budget Looks Like $117.8 Million

If Monday's City Council Finance Committee meeting is a sign, it appears the city's $117.8 budget for fiscal 1990 will be approved with little or no changes.

The committee reviewed about 35 department budgets and passed most of them. Only a handful did not receive the council support but it appears these will at another budget review meeting.

Finance Committee Chairman Stephen McGrath said another meeting will be held Monday, May 8. At that time, other department budgets, including fire, police and schools will be analyzed.

McGrath also made it known that even if the council approves the budget submitted by Mayor Francis X. McCauley, there is still a chance that some areas, including the schools and public safety, could receive additional funding in the fall.

McGrath, who met with the mayor last week regarding the said there are three main factors which will determine the actual allocation of funds next year.

These are estimated receipts, local aid and free cash.

Noting that 32 percent of Quincy's budget is funded by local aid, McGrath said, "We're being told local aid will be level funded or cut. It's possible the Senate may increase the amounts of local aid.

"It's possible, after all is said and done, that we may have an increase in local aid."

As for free cash which McCauley is hoping will wipe out an estimated $6 million shortfall next year, McGrath said the mayor will "entertain" proposals for additional departmental money if more free cash becomes available.

In addition, McGrath said a hotel tax at this time is "premature."

"We still have three major pieces of information that we don't know what will be," he said.

If more money becomes available, McGrath said "We can look forward to refunding some departments."

The totals for free cash, estimated receipts and local aid should be known at the end of August or early September.

During the first round of budget reviews Monday, Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien placed on hold approval of new position in the plumbing, electrical and public works departments.

On hold are a custodian for the police station, annual salary of $30,381; an assistant wire inspector at $31,043 and two part-time building inspectors totalling $21,145.

It appears these positions will be approved since several city councillors agreed these new jobs are needed.

Also attempting to trim the budget was Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney. He moved that the committee cut $1,500 from the treasurer-collector's budget and $15,000 from the law department.

Neither motion received a second and thus failed.

Other motions to cut from the budget were withdrawn after department heads explained the purpose of the spending.

Among the budgets that were approved were: elections, planning, data processing, highway and waste collection.

The budget submitted by McCauley for next year amounts to $117,803,080, an increase of 4.3 percent over fiscal 1989.

The mayor cut the school budget by $438,000 and the fire and police overtime accounts by $400,000.

The budget does not include the $2.3 million worth of capital outlay requests made by department heads.

License Granted For Willard St. Lodging House

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Joseph E. McLaughlin for a lodging house license for 445-453 Willard St., West Quincy. The site was once proposed for an office building.

John Sheskey, architect for the project, told the board the lodging house proposal is for 62 one-room units to be rented on a monthly basis, and less if needed. He said the rooms will be furnished and equipped with a private bath and minimal kitchen facilities including a microwave oven and a small refrigerator.

Each room will be approximately 250 square feet and the building itself will house an exercise room as well as an office for the manager and a manager's apartment, Sheskey said.

The building will be three stories and will also include underground parking facilities for 62 cars and about 15 outside parking spaces, he added.

Sheskey also told the board that five percent of the units will be set aside for handicapped use and that the building would have an elevator.

Board chairman John Gillis noted that the board had received a letter from John P. Comer, Executive Director of the Quincy Housing Authority, urging favorable consideration for the project. In his letter, Comer said that, although the project will receive no state or federal subsidy and will be privately funded, that McLaughlin "has proposed committing 20 percent of the units for single individuals eligible for public housing assistance."

McLaughlin told the board that each unit would be rented for approximately $600 per month, and intended for "sales people or others" who need to be in the city on a temporary basis, but that he had planned to set aside 20 percent for public housing assistance because "there are a lot of people out there who need a place to live."

Jackie Quirk, representing Ward Four Councillor James Sheets, told the board that the people in the residential area are concerned about traffic and parking complications in their neighborhood which may result from the project.

Lorraine and Robert Carella of 26 Larry Place, abuttors of the site, were present at the meeting and told the board that they represented several other neighbors in the area who have concerns about the proposed project.

Lorraine Carella told the board that the main concerns are increased traffic on Willard St. and parking problems in the area.

Robert Carella echoed these concerns, noting that because of the temporary status of the housing in the building, more traffic and parking problems would arise than with an apartment building.

"We don't need a project like this in the area," he told the board

McLaughlin said that most of the parking will be in an underground facility and would not therefore impact the residents in the area.

McLaughlin also said that he hopes to rent the rooms on a monthly basis and not on a weekly basis, and that the project is intended to be an "alternative to a hotel or motel" and not operated as a hotel. "To describe this as a lodging house is the wrong terminology," he said, "I think there are a lot of people who need this (housing)."

McLaughlin said that he plans to install a trash compactor in the building so that debris and garbage in the area will not be a problem.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey noted that the project "might be less intrusive than an office building" in that traffic and parking would be less of a problem.

The board granted the license pending an inspection by the health, fire and building departments, and providing that a trash compactor be installed for use at the site.

IMPORTANT NOTICE QUINCY PUBLIC SCHOOLS NEW TELEPHONE SYSTEM

During the Spring vacation period a new telephone system will be installed using "CENTREX LINES." As a result, a new exchange has been assigned. Shown below is a directory of school and administrative numbers which should be used on or after April 24, 1989 for direct calls.

Additional "direct dial" numbers have been assigned to each location. Information will be distributed on these additional numbers through the school or administrative locations. For the next several months, the telephone company will intercept and refer incoming calls.

$275,000 Animal Shelter To Be Dedicated May 2

Quincy's new animal shelter will be dedicated at its Broad St. location Tuesday, May 2 at 11:30 a.m. by Mayor Francis McCauley.

Other officials expected to attend the dedication of the $275,000 facility include: Althea Griffin, president of the South Shore Humane Society; John McDuff, president of the Quincy Animal League; Thomas White, director of the Animal Rescue League; Police Chief Francis Finn; Dog Officer Phyllis Berlucchi, Paul Anderson, Commissioner of Public Works and David Colton, deputy commissioner of Public Works.

In addition, members of the City Council have been invited to attend.

According to Colton, the pre-engineered, one-level steel structure will have 15 to 20 cages for dogs, plus a separate room for cats and puppies.

The facility, which also includes an isolation room for a sick dog or cat, will have a capacity of approximately 25 animals at one time, Colton said.

Measuring 40 by 80 feet, the new shelter replaces the old city dog pound.

"It's a new, clean facility to keep the animals contained. It's a very simple building.

"It's a new place to keep dogs and it brings the kennelization of dogs in Quincy up to date," Colton said.

The old wooden dog pound, which dated back to last century, was leveled last year to make way for the new shelter. The project, which included construction as well as landscaping and new curbing on Broad St., took about eight months to complete, Colton said.

While the new facility was being built, a temporary facility was set up to house the animals. Cages were erected in a garage adjacent to the new shelter, Colton pointed out.

At Tuesday's dedication, a before and after picture of the shelter will be on display.

Colton said the facility should be ready for animals soon after the dedication.

Refreshments at the dedication will be provided by the Quincy Animal League.

To coincide with the shelter dedication, the week of April 30 through May 6 has been proclaimed "Compassion for Animals Week" by the mayor as a way to promote awareness of cruelty-free (non-animal-tested) cosmetic and household products.

Funded by New England Anti-vivisection Society, the observance is supported locally by the Quincy Animal League and the South Shore Humane Society.

Informational literature will be available throughout the week at McIntyre Mall throughout the week and at North Quincy High School.

Besides Quincy, the week is being observed in Boston, Cambridge, Newton and other cities in the state.

In proclaiming "Compassion for Animals Week," McCauley said "In recent years a growing interest has been generated in supporting industries that use humane alternatives to animal tests, and Quincy offers a number of shops where such products can be purchased.

"The City of Quincy and the mayor of Quincy are proud to observe the opening of a new and modern animal shelter in our city this spring," he said.

WARD 3 COUNCILLOR Lawrence Chretien, at podium, discusses the city's upcoming recycling program with Ward 2 residents at the Fore River Clubhouse at a recent meeting. At left are Mike Wainwright, the city's consultant on recycling, and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro. Other recycling meetings scheduled were for Wednesday, April 26 and Thursday, April 27, both at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chamber. The program will begin the weeks of May 1 and May 8.

6 City Employees To Be Honored May 11

Six city employees will be recognized at the seventh annual Mayor's Employee Appreciation Award Ceremony Thursday, May 11 at 10 a.m.

Hosted by Mayor Francis McCauley, the ceremony will be held in the mayor's office.

The program was instituted by the mayor to give recognition to dedicated and loyal municipal employees whose service to Quincy is outstanding and consistently exceeds what the job description requires.

Each recipient will receive a framed certificate and gift in recognition of the honor.

This year's recipients

No Extra Insurance Fee On One-Day Licenses

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board said Tuesday that no additional insurance fee would be added to one-day all alcoholic license for use on city-owned property, namely the Fore River Clubhouse.

The matter was brought before the board by a memorandum, dated Feb. 6, written to the board by Quincy Police Sgt. Richard Laracy, Liquor Inspector.

Sgt. Laracy's proposal suggested that all one-day all-alcoholic licenses for use on public property, including the Fore River Clubhouse, Faxon Park and Paggent Field, be required to show proof of liability insurance to release the city from liability in the case of accident or injury as a result of intoxication.

The board noted that the added cost for an individual or organization to purchase insurance would be $200 to $300. Ward Two Councillor Ted DeCristofaro and Board Chairman John Gillis agreed that, especially in the case of non-profit organizations, the extra expense would be unreasonable.

Laracy's proposal, researched by David M. Spillane, legal counsel for the city, also suggests that one day all-alcoholic licenses should not be granted for the sale and consumption of alcohol in public parks including Faxon Park and Paggent Field, to which the board has granted licenses in the past. Sgt. Laracy told the board that the Park and Recreation Department is against such licenses.

The board said they will write a letter to the Park and Recreation Department saying that the license board will no longer issue one day all-alcoholic licenses for events at Faxon Park and/or Paggent Field.

The board will also contact the City Law Department asking for a form letter to inform individuals and organizations that they are fully responsible for liability at events at the Fore River Clubhouse for which a one day all-alcoholic license is granted. The letter will release all liability from the city.

'Diabetes And Health' At Quincy Hospital

A special, two-part program to be offered in May by Quincy Hospital can help diabetics gain a fuller understanding of their disease and how to control it.

The "Diabetes and Health" program begins Monday, May 1 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the hospital, 114 Whitwell St. A second three-hour session will be held in the same time period Monday, May 8.

The sessions will emphasize what Quincy Hospital Diabetes Educator Arleen Ferretti, R.N., terms "the four cornerstones of diabetes management."

The May 1 gathering will provide detailed information on diabetes and coping skills, while the May 8 session will focus on medication and diet topics.

Pre-registration and a registration fee are required for the "Diabetes and Health" sessions.

For more information on this program and other diabetes education efforts at Quincy Hospital, call 773-6100 ext. 3029.

SINGLE PREMIUM IMMEDIATE ANNUITY OPTIONS

When an individual contracts for a guaranteed monthly income with an insurance company, they are given the right to elect payment options. These options are:

A. NO REFUND...The guaranteed income lasts for life, and at death all payments cease.

B. GUARANTEED PERIOD...The annuitant (receiver of the income) selects a period of time, such as 5, 10, 15, or 20 years that guarantees that the payments will continue to a named beneficiary if death occurs prior to the time period selected.

C. JOINT AND SURVIVOR...A husband and wife are both named as annuitants and the monthly income will continue until both are dead.

D. JOINT AND SURVIVOR WITH GUARANTEED PERIOD...This contract is the same as "joint and survivor," except that if both husband and wife die before their elected time period, the payments will continue to a named beneficiary for the balance of the period.

E. GUARANTEED TOTAL PERIOD...A monthly income is guaranteed for life, but if death occurs before the income received equals the deposit, any balance will go to a named beneficiary.

At Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. our insurance professionals are happy to discuss the many protection options available today. Please give us a call at 471-8200 or stop by our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy.

'Equal Rights For Humans'

I don't think Ted DeCristofaro has anything against snakes.

Not really. Not even poisonous rattlesnakes.

You know, live and let live.

But he raises an interesting point when he questioned Environmental Affairs Secretary John DeVillars' priorities.

DeCRISTOFARO

DeCristofaro was talking about DeVillars blocking construction of a $300 million, 128-acre office park on Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy on the fringe of the Blue Hills Reservation.

Object was to protect a small number of poisonous Eastern Timber rattlesnakes living on the developer's land.

Yankee Park Associates, the developer, built a 600-yard long fence to keep the snakes from slipping into the project area.

Now, you'd think the developer wouldn't want to have snakes rattling around the place and would have taken all proper precaution and made every effort to keep them on the outside looking in.

Who wants to go stepping on a rattlesnake — a poisonous one at that?

But environmentalists and state officials are on DeVillars' side. They think the fence is too late and not good enough to protect the endangered species of snakes.

The developer thinks it is good enough and is pondering a possible lawsuit.

DeCristofaro, meanwhile, isn't knocking the rattlesnakes. He just thinks humans should have equal rights.

He's wondering why DeVillars could suddenly step in and block a $300 million project "to save a small population of rattlesnakes" and then give the go-ahead for siting of a smelly sludge composting plant in Quincy in an area inhabited by human beings.

DeCristofaro estimates there are "between 30,000 and 40,000 human beings — who would like to breathe clean air and remain healthy."

DeCristofaro says he commends DeVillars for his concern about an endangered species of snakes but:

"I would only ask that no less consideration be given to the people who need his protection now."

He suggests DeVillars take "a long, hard look at what is proposed by the MWRA and Clean Harbors for a densely populated area of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth."

"His (DeVillars) prime concern should be maintaining the quality of life for us and our neighbors — not endangering it."

And, he adds:

"We must focus on the environmental risk that is looming, examine the possible consequences and beg to have human beings treated with the same respect and dignity as poisonous snakes."

He's all for the snakes living their lives in peace and without interference. He'd like to get a piece of that peace for the humans of Quincy Point, Braintree and Weymouth.

Unfortunately, DeCristofaro will probably have to find his own endangered species of reptile, animal or wild flower somewhere around the Quincy Shipyard.

Endangered humans apparently don't count.

LOOKS LIKE THERE'LL be a preliminary election for School Committee.

John McDuff, president of the Quincy Animal League, says he'll make his official announcement Thursday, June 8 at the Adams Heights Men's Club.

McDUFF

It just about guarantees a preliminary run-off because McDuff would be either the seventh or eighth candidate. Seven are needed in the three-seat field to create a primary.

If incumbent Mary Collins decides not to seek another term, McDuff will be the seventh candidate. Or eighth if she does run.

Collins, who was elected Norfolk County Commissioner last November, is expected to decide within a few weeks on whether or not to run again for School Committee.

With her out of the race, the seven candidates would be: Incumbent Frank Santoro, who is expected to seek re-election; Michael Preble, Ron Mariano and Sal Garrantani who have already announced; Judy Brams who says she will make it official May 5 and Gary Fine who plans to announce sometime in May and McDuff.

Incumbent Peggy Nigro has decided not to seek re-election.

She Calls It Destruction

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I have been a lifelong resident of Quincy and have watched the elegant, charming atmosphere of the downtown area become an abortion. I am prompted to write this letter, and it is a first, because of what I call the destruction of the former Hancock Bank building, now known as the Hong Kong Restaurant.

Not only is another oriental restaurant in excess but to allow them to desecrate this building by allowing ostentatious red and blue plastic awnings be put on it, they then proceed to cover the windows. What do oriental restaurants have against windows, and why do we allow it.

I am remembering the royal blue sign that was placed on the South Shore Bank building. A definite eyesore until someone restored the brass and copper, replaced the sign and the elegance reappeared. Whoever you are, thank you.

Is my opinion singular or are there others that are in harmony with me. Please let me know.

Sincerely,
Dolores Fitzgerald

Affordable Housing For Women Dedicated

LISTENING TO A prayer by the Most Reverend Daniel A. Hart during Tuesday's dedication of a boarding house at St. John's Church are, from left, Fr. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's; Mayor Francis McCauley; John Noonan, advocate for the elderly and editor of St. John's News; and Frank Kearns, vice president of Quincy Affordable Housing. Expected to open shortly, the home will house eight mature women.

MOST REVEREND Daniel A. Hart, auxiliary bishop of Boston, dedicates the newly renovated boarding room for mature women on the grounds of St. John's Church during a ceremony Tuesday. The dedication was attended by approximately 50 city and state officials, clergy and housing advocates.

Police Prosecutors To Be Honored:

Delahunt To Receive McIntyre Award At Law Day Ceremony

Dist. Atty. William Delahunt will receive the James R. McIntyre Humanitarian Award at the Quincy District Court's Law Day ceremony Friday at 9 a.m.

The award is named for the late mayor of Quincy and state senator and will be presented by his wife, Mrs. Sheila McIntyre.

Prosecutors for the 12 police departments which come within the jurisdiction of the Quincy Court will also be honored.

They will receive the Jason Feldman Special Citizen Award. The late Mr. Feldman was a civic leader in Quincy and provided valuable assistance to the programs of the court.

Quincy police officers who will be recognized for their service and contribution to the Quincy Court are:

Lt. Donald Riley, Detective Barbara DiNatale, Detective Paul Hussey and Detective Kathleen Roche.

Police prosecutors serve as the liason between the police departments and the courts. They oversee prosecution of those charged with criminal offenses and youths charged with delinquency.

They are being honored for their dedication to duty and hard work in a vital role that often goes unrecognized.

As for other presentations, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Award will be presented to Emerge, a men's counseling service.

Emerge's goal is to end assaults by men against their mates. Composed of 20 members and volunteers, they provide counseling to assist men to understand the causes of their violent behavior and find other ways to deal with their frustrations and anger.

Local high school students will be the recipients of the Dennis F. Ryan Essay Contest awards.

The contest is named in honor of the late clerk-magistrate of the Quincy Court and the awards will be presented by his son, Attorney Christopher Ryan.

MS Support Group Meeting

"Exacerbations and Remissions" will be the subject of an open discussion of the Quincy Multiple Sclerosis Support Group tonight, Thursday, at 7 p.m at the Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St.

Special Election On Zoning Ordinance

April 27-May 3
1926
63 Years Ago

A debate over the coming May 11 special referendum election on a zoning ordinance for Quincy drew an overflow crowd of 200 to the Atlantic Methodist Church.

T.J. McCarthy, a former member of the Zoning Commission, said zoning is essential to the health of women and children, who should be assured of sunlight, and a place to play away from the streets and the hazards of automobiles.

W.W. Willson, president of the Quincy Real Estate Exchange, calling zoning the most important question to confront the city in 100 years said it "puts an unjust restriction on business growth and development."

Meanwhile, the Merrymount Association met at the home of E.H. Marchant, 18 Furnace Brook Parkway, to discuss the ordinance and to sign pledge cards that they would vote "yes" on the referendum.

CORNERSTONE REMAINS

The School Committee refused to accede to a City Council request to replace the artificial cornerstone at the new Atlantic Junior High School with one of Quincy granite.

The fact that the stone was not of genuine Quincy granite was not discovered until a few moments before the dedication ceremony and the Council immediately adopted a resolution calling for placement.

But the School Committee feared replacement would delay completion of the school.

HOT STUFF

What's fast, super tasty, comes in its own—natural—wrapper and, as a bonus, packed with nutrition? A stuffed baked potato, of course! Increasingly popular as a satisfying mini-meal—ready in 10 minutes or less, using your microwave—it's a wholesome, economical alternative to high fat, high sodium, high cost carry-out foods...a perfect all-in-one energy booster for busy singles and families who must often eat in shifts.

What's the classic, simplest kind of filling? Cheese, of course! One surefire winner is mild, nutty Norwegian Jarlsberg—mellow yet distinctive, it melts quickly and smoothly in seconds. Or try delicately spiced, creamy Nokkelost, also from Norway's prime dairylands. Both are chock-full of quality protein while comparatively low in fat, sodium—and calories—since they're made from part-skim milk. And each can turn a plain spud into a luscious treat.

Build a truly creative potato with these versatile cheeses plus leftover vegetables, cooked chicken or lean ground beef—even yesterday's meat sauce or chili, a dollop of stew or fricassee. Jarlsberg or Nokkelost will complement and bring out the best in other flavors, helping to minimize kitchen time and maximize your grocery dollar—with a bit of delicious ingenutiy.

Chicken In Tomato Sauce

I'm often teased about liking a certain cup for my coffee and a certain glass for other drinks and I must admit as my children get older, they too are leaning toward that same thing!

And so it is with foods. Although I enjoy all kinds, one of my most favorites is chicken in tomato sauce with some kind of pasta. Last week when I planned to have chicken this way, my house began to fill up with family members right around dinner time. (You know how that is). So that meant Plan B. I skinned the chicken (I used thighs this time) and seasoned it with basil, salt, pepper and greased the bottom of the roasting pan and cooked the chicken in the oven while the tomato sauce was cooking on top. It not only is easy, but great for those watching their cholesterol (and who isn't?)

CHICKEN WITH TOMATO SAUCE

about 6 to 8 thighs — or (16 as I cooked for more) basil
salt and pepper oil water (about a half cup)

Skin and wash the chicken. Place in a slightly greased pan and add the water in the bottom of the pan also. Season the chicken as you wish, and bake in a 350 degree oven uncovered until done. Assuming you are making a basic tomato sauce, or if you're using the prepared kind, just add the chicken slowly to the sauce and cook for at least 30 minutes. Then after your favorite pasta is done, pour the sauce and chicken over it with some grated cheese and I promise you'll get raves! (And approval from your doctor!)

THE 17TH ANNUAL SPRING FLING BENEFIT AUCTION of Family Counseling & Guidance Centers' Clinic in Braintree is being planned by William DiPesa of Milton and James Blake (co-chairman) of Hingham; Maura Grealish (co-chairwoman) of Quincy, and Mary Ann Hyde of Hanover. The April 27 benefit at Lantana in Randolph last year raised $80,000 to aid the private, non-profit mental health agency.

Sharon Goodman Speaker At NCCJ Dinner

Sharon Goodman, a senior at Quincy High School, was a speaker at the 61st annual awards dinner of the National Conference of Christians and Jews held recently at the Park Plaza Hotel.

She spoke on perspective on NCCJ's Programs with youth.

Goodman participated in "Any Town, New England," leadership program in 1988 and the South Shore Leadership Conference recently held in Braintree.

She has been Student Council President and served on the State Student Advisory Council working on the Legislative Task Force. She is also a Student Union member and is the Quincy High representative on the School Committee.

Goodman has also participated in athletics, drama, yearbook, and a variety of leadership roles in other extra-curricular activities.

Women's Commission Special Programs For May

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women will offer free Thursday evening programs during the month of May.

The Schedule:

May 4: "Beyond the Birds and Bees — Let's Communicate." This program will be a dialogue between professional health workers and teens on how to talk to your teenager about sexuality.

May 11: "Insurance." Beth Ann Strange of the Hurley Insurance Angency, and Geradine Sharkey of Metropolitan Life, will focus on the intricacies of home, tenant, car, and retirement policies.

May 18: "What's In and What's Out in Divorce" will cover the problems of guilt, fear, and dealing with the legal establishment of divorce. Diana Child, a South Shore family therapist, and Mary McCallum, a Dedham lawyer, will lead the discussion.

May 25: "Up Close and Personal" with State Representative Marjorie Clapprood. She will discuss her personal political scene and her work with her constituents and her fellow Representatives.

All programs are free and are held in the second floor conference room of City Hall. 1305 Hancock St., at 7 p.m.

QCA Takes Stand On Three Issues

The Quincy Citizens Association has expressed its position on three issues to Mayor Francis McCauley.

The positions were taken after a vote by the QCA at its April meeting, said Arthur Chandler, QCA president.

They are:

Kincaide property. The QCA does not favor an eminent domain taking of the Kincaide property in Quincy Square.

"We recommend that the city require the property owner to alleviate the public hazard by filling and grading the foundation hole within 30 days. If the owner does not comply, the city should fill and level the lot and backcharge the owner for the cost involved," Chandler said.

Extending the Historic District. "The QCA basically favors extending the Historic District. However, we have serious reservations about the Historical Commission's necessity to strictly adhere to its official 'purpose' under Article XXVII, Sec. 137 — in view of the 'loopholes' offered under Sec. 138 (E) 'Certificate of Hardship'," Chandler said.

"We recommend that Section (E) be revised to minimize the possibility of the issuance of a 'certificate of hardship,' and the Historical Commission should strictly enforce its duties outlined in its 'purpose.'

"Many Quincy residents are truly disappointed that the Commission did not insist on better architectural design and historic compatibility of Presidents Place," Chandler said.

Guest Preacher At United First Parish Sunday

The Rev. Shuma Chakravarty will lead the 10:30 a.m. Worship Service as guest minister Sunday at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents."

The title of her sermon will be "The Invincible Spring."

Rev. Chakravarty has served for many years as associate minister at the Vedanta Centre in Cohasset. Advaita Vedanta is one of the great religious traditions of Hinduism. She is currently a candidate for Master of Divinity at Harvard Divinity School and is serving as ministerial intern at First and Second Church in Boston, preparing for Unitarian Universalist ministry.

Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, Minister, will participate at the opening of the service, but will then lead a discussion with the Church School on the parables of Jesus.

Norman Corey, Music Director, will play organ works by Vaughan Williams, Rheinberger, and Couperin. Richard Post and Thomas Keto will usher.

Historic United First Parish Church will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. The tombs of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, with those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine are buried in a crypt within the Church. Church School and Child Care are provided. The church is located at 1306 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, (opposite city hall). Visitors are welcome and invited to attend the Social Hour immediately following the service. For information call 773-1290.

'Divine Dance' Sermon Topic At Bethany Congregational

There will be two services of worship Sunday, April 30, at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach a sermon at both hours, on the theme "Divine Dance" considering the Trinitarian nature of God.

Lay scripture readers will be Nicole Orman in the chapel and Gerald A.J. McCluskey in the sanctuary. The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will conduct the liturgy at both services.

During the sanctuary service, the Chancel Choir under the direction of organist, Charles J. Blue, Sr., will sing the anthem "Now Let Us All Praise God and Sing" by Gordon Young, and as the offertory J. Albert Jeffer's composition "Ancient of Days."

The sanctuary service will be broadcast live at 10 o'clock over the South Shore radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

The Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through 8th grade, under the supervision of Bethany's early childhood coordinator, Pamela Ford Curran. Well staffed and equipped Nursery and Toddler rooms are also provided for babies and very young children.

At 11 a.m., following the late service, a fellowship hour will be held in the Allen Parlor with light refreshments.

A large contingent of young people and adults will be participating in the annual Protestant Social Service Bureau's Walk-a-thon on Sunday afternoon beginning at 1:30. The Walk-a-thon "captain" for Bethany this year is John M. Andre.

Individuals and families from the South Shore area are invited to come to Bethany and share in the worship, fellowship, and enroll children in the Sunday School.

For additional information on Bethany's ministries and programs contact the church office at 479-7300.

Antique Flea Market At Christ Church

The Christ Church Episcopal will hold an Antiques Flea Market on Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Christ Church Parish Hall, 12 Quincy Ave.

Items for sale will include antiques, jewelry, books, clocks, crocheted and knitted items, craft items, kitchen ware, dishes, records, puzzles and assorted odds and ends.

There will also be a snack bar serving home made soup, sandwiches, desserts and beverages.

An admission charge of twenty five cents will be asked and all proceeds will benefit the church.

Catholic Religious Vocations Pilot Program On 'Cable Talk'

Four Quincy priests will discuss a new pilot program recently initiated in Quincy's nine Catholic parishes under the direction of Bernard Cardinal Law on Quincy Community Television's "Cable Talk" program tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m. on Channel 3 in Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

The program, entitled "Called by Name," involves the personal contact of young men and women who have been recommended to local clergy as possible candidates for religious vocations.

Parishes participating in the program are: St. Ann, St. Boniface, St. John the Baptist, St. Joseph, St. Mary, Star of the Sea, Most Blessed Sacrament, Our Lady of Good Counsel and Sacred Heart.

Discussing the program on "Cable Talk" are Fr. Joseph Downey of St. Joseph's; Fr. Daniel O'Connell of Sacred Heart, Fr. Bryan Parrish of St. Mary's and Fr. Cornelius Heery of Sacred Heart, coordinator.

This edition of "Cable Talk" is hosted by John noonan.

The priests discuss the role of today's religions in our society, the training and education needed, various ministries in the parishes, goals and objectives, and some reasons for making personal contact with potential candidates for the religious life.

Fr. Heery explains the background and success of the program in other parts of the United States.

Fr. Downey recounts his years as a pastor and points out that he is the pastor in all nine parishes with the longest period of service.

Fr. O'Connell and Fr. Parrish are two younger priests and they relate their experiences and callings to the priesthood.

Candidates selected through "Called by Name" will have the opportunity to meet and dine with Cardinal Law at his residence to explore in further detail with other church leaders the various religious career requirements.

Abp. Williams Convent Renamed To Honor Nazareth Sisters Of Charity

Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree officially changed the name of its former convent building to Nazareth Hall to honor the religious order of Sisters of Charity of Nazareth, Kentucky, and the 116 members of the Order who staffed the school since its founding in 1949 during a morning ceremony, Wednesday, April 26.

The Most Rev. Daniel A. Hart, D.D., auxiliary bishop of Boston, presided at the dedication ceremony.

Sister Elizabeth Wendeln, S.C.N., provinicial of the Northern Province, accepted the dedication on behalf of the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth, Kentucky.

Brother William Drina, C.F.X., principal at the school, spoke on behalf of the high school community.

Sister Ann Susan Villa, S.C.N., the only Sister of Charity of Nazareth now teaching at the high school, offered her reflections during the liturgy.

There are more than 2,600 graduates of Archbishop Williams High School living in Quincy. Also, more than 250 of the presentstudent body live in Quincy, according to Christopher Standring, director of Alumni and Development.

The Sisters of Charity of Nazareth, Kentucky, have served the Archdiocese of Boston since 1882, when they first staffed the Immaculate Conception School in Newburyport, Mass.

Ironically, the person responsible for opening that school and bringing the Sister of Charity of Nazareth there to teach was the very man for whom the Braintree high school is named--Archbishop John Joseph Williams.

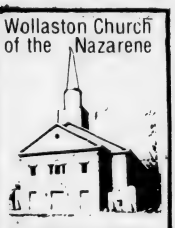
In addition to their continued presence on the faculty and the Advisory Board of Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree, the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth are actively involved in a number of schools and parishes throughout the Boston Archdiocese.

'Tapping God's Power' Squantum Church Topic

The congregation of the First Church of Squantum, Sunday heard the pastor, Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, preach on the subject, "Tapping God's Power Through Prayer."

The greeters for the morning were Jack and Ruth Westerbeke. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes. Hazel Mayne and Grace Holms hosted the Fellowship Hour.

This Sunday the service will begin at 10:30 a.m. Sunday School and nursery meet during the service. Visitors are warmly received.



Quincy Hospital Offers Smoking Cessation Program

Quincy Hospital is again offering its Smoking Cessation Program, beginning with a free, introductory session on Wednesday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Hospital Cafeteria.

The seven-session program incorporates behavior modificaton and relaxation techniques. Participants learn the "cues" that make them want to smoke and how to avoid them, find substitutes for smoking without anxiety or weight gain, and learn how to "reprogram" behavior to eliminate the need to smoke.

For registration information, call 773-6100, Ext.2072 or Ext.3093.

Morrissey To Take Part In Semi-Automatic Weapons Demo

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, acting in his role of chairman of the House Committee on Public Safety, will participate in a demonstration of semi-automatic assault weapons at the Moon Island Shooting Range today at 11 a.m.

Also in attendance will be representatives from the Committee on Public Safety, the Department of Public Safety, the Governor's staff and other legislators.

"In light of the controversy surrounding the Governor's proposal to prohibit the sale of certain assault weapons, this demonstration provides an opportunity for me, and other legislators to examine this important issue," said Morrissey.

The purpose of the demonstration is to examine the so-called assault weapons and to better determine their legitimacy in the sport of shooting.

"It can be legitimately argued that the police are becoming out-gunned by criminals," said Morrissey.

"However, Massachusetts has some of the strictest gun laws in the nation. By prohibiting the sale of such firearms, unfair limitations and restrictions may be placed on the licensed gun owners, who are traditionally law abiding citizens. The Committee is looking at a number of alternatives to control the use of assault weapons, some of which include the imposition of stricter penalties."

Traffic Commission Agenda

The Quincy Traffic Commission was scheduled to meet Wednesday, April 26 at 10 a.m. in the Planning Department conference room, City Hall annex. 1305 Hancock St., to act on the following items:

- Install Handicap Parking Space in front of 6 Florence St.
- Install No Parking--Here to Corner sign on Small St. from the driveway of the Montclair Men's Club to the corner of Small St. and Holbrook Rd.
- Recommendations regarding improvement of traffic conditions in the neighborhood bounded by these streets; Hancock, Washington, Greenleaf, McGrath Highway and Southern Artery.
- Install No Parking--Tow Zone on both sides of Billings St., between Atlantic St. and Quincy Shore Dr.
- Newport Ave., from Beale St. to Newport Ter., remove One Hour Parking and install Two Hour Parking.
- Install Three-Way Stop Sign at the intersection of West Elm Ave. and Billings Rd.
- One Way, Cheriton Rd., from Hancock St. to Oxer ridge Rd.
- One Way, Lawn Ave. from Baker Ave. to Dee Rd., allowing traffic to flow in one southerly direction toward the Fore River traffic circle.
- Install No Parking signs at 142 and 146 Butler Rd.
- No Parking Anytime sign on Pond St. 100 feet from the corner of Southern Artery.
- Request from Mayor's Office regarding MBTA markers in the vicinity of 57 Hollis Ave.

Daniel S. Whelan Sr., 61
Coached Youth Baseball

A funeral Mass for Daniel S. Whelan Sr. 61, of Quincy, a retired general foreman for the Cambridge Department of Public Works and a retired postal worker, was celebrated Monday in Sacred Heart Church.

Mr. Whelan died April 21 at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Boston after a brief illness.

He worked for the department of public works 40 years and worked 30 years for the postal service, serving in Kenmore Station, the John F. Kennedy Post Office in Government Center and the South Postal Annex.

He worked the Cambridge job during the day and for the post office in the evening.

For 20 years, Mr. Whelan was a manager and coach in Quincy Youth Baseball, working with both the Junior League and the Triple A League. He managed several teams, including the Junior Elks Club and Tiger Teams.

A Navy gunner's mate during World War II, he served on the USS Boxer, an aircraft carrier.

He was a member of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and a member of the Knights of Columbus Fourth Degree Cardinal Cushing Assembly.

While a student at Rindge Technical High School in Cambridge, he was on the track team.

Born in Cambridge, he lived there until moving to Quincy 35 years ago.

Husband of the late Lillian F. (Hampston) Whelan, he is survived by five sons, Daniel S. Whelan and James M. Whelan of Braintree, John J. Whelan of Weymouth, Kevin G. Whelan of Malden and Vincent P. Whelan of Quincy; a daughter, Karen F. Whelan of Quincy; a brother, Ignatius "Babe" Whelan of Tewksbury and four grandchildren. He was the brother of the late John J. Whelan and the late Gordon M. Whelan.

Burial was in Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester.

Funeral arrangements were by the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Memorial donations may be made to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute, Boston.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

WE ALL KNOW PEOPLE WHO SEEM TO PRACTICE THE ART of courtesy very naturally... and then there are those who seem to feel that courtesy is a 'lost art.' Much as been written and said about the art of being courteous..."We must be as courteous to a man as to a picture, which we are willing to give the benefit of a good light." —Ralph Waldo Emerson "Among the qualities of mind and heart which conduce to worldly success, there is one, the importance of which is more real, and which is generally underrated in our day...It is courtesy." — Herbert H. Schiffer.

The late Dale Carnegie was one of the most successful men in his field. He believed in courtesy. He practiced it and this is what he said about courtesy: "Courtesy will do wonderful things for you. First, it will help you get ahead. Discourtesy is so rank and rife that the man or woman who radiates courtesy is not going to have much trouble forging ahead. They are going to have very little competition...Second, you will have much fun being courteous. You will enjoy your work more. The courtesy you express will please your associates, and this, in turn, will kindle a warm, reflected glow in your own heart...Third, you will consciously develop better manners because you are courteous...Finally...Smile...Treat everyone as you want to be treated."...Good advice during Mr. Carnegie's lifetime...Good advice today...

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

What color can do for your home

Two identical houses, side by side, can look very different, depending on the color of their siding. A white house will seem larger, while a house sided in a barn red color will look smaller.

Colors also affect depth perception. A house with a pale blue siding will appear to be set back farther from the street than a house with a "warm" yellow siding.

Colors have a profound effect on how we see things. Light colors enlarge the appearance of a house, while dark colors reduce a house's size visually. Warm colors—reds, oranges and yellows—seem to advance toward you, while cool colors—blues, violets and blue-grays—seem to move away from you.

Homeowners considering re-siding their homes should consider the many color options available in modern vinyl siding. Remodeling contractors who specialize in installing siding can offer the homeowner advice on colors and color combinations that will make the home look most attractive.

Contrasting trim colors, for example, can intensify the good looks of a house. Or, when windows and doors are oddly positioned, using trim and siding in the same color helps mask the flaws.

Thirty years ago, white siding dominated the residential scene. Some 90 percent of all re-siding jobs were white. Today, according to CertainTeed Corporation, the nation's leading manufacturer of solid vinyl building products, earth tones are "in," and deep colors are gaining ground.

Vinyl siding's colors are the most durable, too. The color is molded clear through the vinyl, and won't show scratches, or chip or flake. Vinyl siding never needs repainting.

Choosing the right colors and the right kind of siding for a home is a big decision. To help you make an informed decision, CertainTeed offers a 14-page booklet, "What You Should Know About Selecting Siding For Your Home."

For your copy, send $1 to The CertainTeed Home Institute, VBPD, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

TO ENHANCE ANY ARCHITECTURAL STYLE, CertainTeed offers a wide range of solid vinyl siding styles and colors for your home.

There's something new for under the sun

Skylights are among today's most popular architectural features. They brighten any room, allow indoor plants to grow and offer a wonderful view to the outside.

However, once installed, homeowners find that the intense solar rays that stream through a skylight may cause heat buildup and make interiors uncomfortable. The harsh ultraviolet rays of the sun may also fade the carpeting and upholstery.

Until recently, few options existed that protected homes from the sun's severe rays yet still allowed the homeowner to enjoy the beauty of a skylight.

Pleated shades, invented by Verosol USA Inc., offer both a decorative and a functional solution for skylights. The horizontally pleated shades are available in a wide array of fabrics and opacities.

Many fabric pleated shades have an inner thin, energy-conserving backing to deflect the sun's rays. This keeps sun heat and provides a cooler, more comfortable interior.

In winter, pleated shades are a fashionable insulator and keep heat from escaping through windows. In addition, the energy efficient fabrics block harmful ultraviolet rays to help prevent fading of interior furnishings.

Pleated shades are available in stylish fabrics, colors and patterns that complement any room and decor from cozy country kitchens to Art Deco living rooms and Victorian bedrooms. Simply fit

PLEATED SHADES offer a fashionable and functional decorating solution for skylights and other windows. Available in a wide range of easy care fabrics and colors, pleated shades keep interiors more comfortable year-round while protecting carpeting and upholstery from the sun's fading rays.

How Secure And Safe Is Your Home?

Have you ever thought about the security of your home?

Are the locks of good quality? Can you secure your windows to prevent a break in?

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

A Surface Bolt For The Decor Blues?

An attractive new way to protect your home could be an easy to install surface bolt available at local hardware, building supply and home center stores. Round and with a bright brass finish, it looks good with most decorating schemes.

An easy to install surface bolt can protect your home and your decorating scheme.

It installs in three steps. Use a drill with a 3/32" bit and a Phillips type screwdriver.

1. Position the bolt near the edge of the door at the desired height. Be sure the bolt will engage and project a quarter inch or more through the strike location. Mark screw hole positions.

2. Drill 3/32 pilot holes approximately the length of the shorter screws and fasten bolt body with the shorter screws of the four included in the Stanley Hardware Decorative Surface Bolt kit.

3. Position the strike on door jamb opposite the extended bolt. Bolt should be vertically centered in strike mounting. Mark screw hole locations, drill 9/48" pilot holes the length of the longer screw. Fasten strike to jamb with the two long screws.

For a free fact sheet on the bolt, write Stanley Hardware, P.O. Box 1290, Berlin, CT 06037.

How is the lighting around your home during the evening? Are the shrubs around your home overgrown to the point that someone could hide undetected behind them?

These are some of the questions that will be answered if you had a home security survey done.

Tips for protection while at home:

- Replace or rekey lock when you move into a house or apartment. Anyone could have keys to the old ones.
- Install a peephole so you can see who is outside your door before opening it.
- A note on your door saying you are not at home is asking for trouble. Use only your last name and initial in your door bell, mailbox or phone book.
- Elevators in apartment buildings and offices can lead to trouble. Wait for an empty car rather than get in with strangers.
- Notify the police of anonymous phone calls made repeatedly at certain hours. someone may be checking to see if you are home; quietly hang up and notify police of obscene phone calls.
- Strangers should stay outside your home; they can go someplace else to make a phone call; or you can make it for them.
- Require all servicemen to show proper identification (uniforms alone should not be considered proper identification).
- Keep window shades down and blinds closed at night.
- Report to the police immediately if you see or hear any suspicious sounds, activities or people around your neighborhood.

spotlight on safety

Staying Safe At Home

An estimated 98 percent of fires started in the home are preventable: cooking related accidents; inadequate electrical wiring or equipment; heating units; carelessness with burning cigarettes, lighters, matches and so on.

***

Manufacturers of upholstered furniture have spent the past 15 years looking for ways to make their product more resistant to burning cigarettes. About two percent of home fires start in upholstery. Of these fires, 80 percent are started by burning cigarettes abandoned by smokers who generally are sleepy or affected by alcohol, recreational drugs or medication.

***

Local stores carry modern, cigarette-resistant furniture. The furniture carries a gold hangtag that says: "Important Consumer Safety Information From UFAC." UFAC is the Upholstered Furniture Action Council, the group of industry leaders who have spearheaded this effort.

An estimated 98 percent of fires started in the home are preventable.

PROTECT YOUR TOOLS

Tools are always the target of theives. To protect your tools, engrave your drivers license number on them. They will be much harder for the thief to sell and if they are recovered they will be returned to you.

To all those who helped us during our time of displacement

Central is Home! The cafeteria looks great! The floors sparkle. The classrooms are bright. The weather station is in place. Structurally, we are ready for the next 100 years! The best thing, however, is the sound and sight of the students in their own school once again.

After settling in, we have begun to reflect on everyone's support and help during our twenty-three weeks away from Central. We want to take this opportunity to thank you for all your efforts to help our children during the time they were displaced. A lot of us worked together persistently to reopen our school, and together we can enjoy the fact that almost 500 students are now benefiting from our labor.

Once again, we want to thank everyone for everything you have done while we were disrupted, and for helping us to reach our goal of having the kids in "No Where Else But Central."

Raiders Struggling Despite Strong Pitching

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy baseball tem already has as many wins as it had the past two seasons, but the Raiders are struggling, despite some strong pitching, and fell to 3-6 in their Suburban League opener.

Leo Donovan's North team is idle Friday, will play at Newton North Monday and will host once-beaten Waltham next Wednesday at 3:30 at Adams Field.

Bill Warren turned in his second strong pitching performance with nothing to show for it as Brockton scored three unearned runs Monday. Warren gave up seven hits and walked two.

North was held to four hits, all singles. Tim Baker had two and Jim Bryan and George Rozanitis one each.

"Billy pitched well and we have had good pitching all season long, but we haven't been able to get the clutch hits and have made too many errors," said Donovan. "Erik DeBoer has pitched three outstanding games and Kevin MacDougall, Warren and Gary Rowdan have all pitched well. Our last two losses were to Brockton and Weymouth South, both of whom are undefeated."

Last Saturday North lost to unbeaten Weymouth South, 5-3, despite a good pitching effort by Rowdan, who allowed eight hits.

Kevin MacDougall and Bryan had RBI singles for the Raiders.

In its previous game DeBoer pitched his third straight outstanding games as he shut out Everett, 4-0, allowing only three hits and striking out 14.

Tony Anderlionis, one of the top hitters in the league, had a triple and Jimmy Glynn and Kevin MacDougall singles.

Earlier North bowed to Somerville, 4-2, as losing pitcher MacDougall allowed seven hits and struck out seven.

Anderlionis had a home run and also drove in the other run with a ground out.

Quincy Seeks First Win At Brookline

Last year the Quincy High School baseball team had hitting and excellent pitching as the Presidents went to the third round of the Eastern Mass. tournament after missing the tourney by just one win the previous two years.

With every starter gone, Quincy has neither the pitching nor the hitting and is winless in seven games this season after being walloped by Waltham, 10-1, Monday in its Suburban League opener.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents will play at Brookline Friday, will host Brockton Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field and will be at Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Wednesday.

Once-beaten Waltham, jumped off to a big early lead and never looked back in topping Quincy Monday.

Steve McGinnis, Tom Balzano, Rich Burns and Chris Beatrice had Quincy's hits.

In their previous game the Presidents lost to Revere, 10-3, as Mike Noonan and Kisiel had home runs and McGinnis had a single, double and an RBI. He also pitched five innings and took the loss.

Earlier Somerville topped Quincy, 6-3, despite two hits each by McGinnis and Balzano. An RBI double by McGinnis sparked a two-run third inning for Quincy. One of Balzano's hits was a double.

"With an entire new team, I knew we would struggle," said Sylvia. "We just haven't been able to get the pitching or the clutch hits. The boys have never quit and have put out 100 percent, but it's going to be a long season."

Quincy Youth Girls 1-1-1

The Quincy Youth Soccer League girls' under 10 team, competing in the South Shore League for the first time, has a 1-1-1 record.

Quincy dropped its opener to state champion Whitman, 4-2, with Angela Hogrell and Jennifer Starsiak scoring the Quincy goals and Sarah Satkevich, Jill Picardi, Brenda Linehan and Lauren Lomaghini having assists.

The girls rebounded and easily defeated Bridgewater, 7-0, sparked by Satkevich's hat trick and two goals by Erin Flaherty. Colleen Donahue and Hogrell had one each. Starsiak and Hogrell had three assists each and Flaherty, Siobhan O'Connor, Kristyn Stenberg and Betsy Stone one apiece. Goalie Erin Barry posted the shutout.

Quincy and Weymouth played to a 3-3 tie with Hogrell scoring all three goals. Flaherty, Linehan and O'Connor had assists. Halfback Diane Jordan turned in a strong performance.

Montclair, Atlantic City Basketball Champs

The Quincy Recreation Department All-City basketball championships go to two veteran recreation leaders.

Middle School champion Montclair is guided by Coach Gerry Pratt and Senior High champion Atlantic is coached by George Dunn. Both coaches have supervised recreation programs at the same location for over 13 years.

The future looks bright for high school basketball followers at both Quincy and North Quincy as Snug Harbor and Montclair matched up in the best played Middle School championship in recent years. Montclair broke a 60-60 tie with 28 seconds left to earn a hard played 64-60 city championship.

The game was played at the North Quincy High School gym.

Both teams engaged in offensive display from the sixth, seventh, and eighth grade players that saw six three-pointers scored, three by each team.

First-year coach Will Hughes had his balanced Snug Harbor team moving the ball in their set half-court offense and six of the nine players scored. Snug Harbor lead by Ed Kenny with 20 points. 12 came in the first half. Kenny also chipped in with a key three-point bomb to put Snug Harbor up by one, in the fourth quarter. Sean Heron was close behind with 19 points and 10 in the second half. Tim Byrne had seven points including his three-point basket in the late stages of the 4th period. Mike Bartlett had four second half points, plus two in the first period for his six. Harold Mortel had five and Danny Melzard rounded out the scoring with three points.

Montclair's Sean Donovan had eight of his game-high 27 points in the fourth quarter including an offensive rebound basket that broke the 60-60 tie and provided the game winning points. Donovan had plenty of help from Liam Higgins, who had 23 points including two three-pointers. Nick Mastrogiacomo had eight points and some key rebounds on the defensive end of the floor. Gerry Pratt was pleased with Mike MacDougall's defensive play and the six points he scored to help balance the Donovan, Higgins front line. Andy Kenny chipped in two to round out the scoring.

Pratt also got strong play from Keith Lentini and a hustling George Wirtz. Pratt also thanked his volunteer assistant Coach Mike McManus for his help with the team.

Recreation Director, Barry J. Welch, presented awards to the Snug Harbor team: Jason Beauvais, Sam Brown, Tim Byrne, Sean Heron, Eric Kenny, Ed Kenny, Joe Kelly, Mike Bartlett, Danny Melzard, Harold Mortel and Coach Will Hughes.

Tom Mullaney, Park and Recreation Board Commissioner, presented trophies to the city champions, the Montclair team; Sean Donovan, Peter Fitzpatrick, Liam Higgins, Andy Kenny, Keith Lentini, Mike MacDougall, Nick Mastrogiacomo, Jamie O'Connell, Jeff Pollard, Brian Raferty, George Wirtz and Coach Gerry Pratt, assisted by Mike McManus.

In the Senior division championship game Atlantic jumped to an early lead, expanded it to ten at halftime, and then controlled the flow of the game in a 61-39 victory over Beechwood Knoll.

Atlantic put all nine players in the scoring column as George Dunn used a variety of combinations to offset the Beechwood Knoll height advantage. Brian Curran was tops for both teams with 12 points; he was followed closely by guard Desmond Bellot with 11 points in addition to running the offense. Angelo Kyranis and Bill Warren each chipped in nine. Dan McLean had five, Scott Dunn, and Mike Duran, four each, Steve Kaval three, and Chris Murray dropped in one free throw to round out the Atlantic scoring.

Beechwood's Mike Dannick was the high scorer for Rick Radzik's team with 11 points. David Murphy was top rebounder and also had nine points. Jamie Green had eight key points despite some early foul trouble. Mike Connor had five second half points, Danny McClain tossed in a first half 3-pointer while Mark Kelleher had a fourth period free throw. Cristian Ciavarro played a strong floor game and ran an effective ½ court offense.

Mullaney presented championship trophies to Atlantic's winning team: Desmond Bellot, Brian Curran, Scott Dunn, Mike Duran, Steve Kaval, Angelo Kyranis, Dan McLean, Chris Murray, Bill Warren and Coach George Dunn.

25 To Be Inducted Into Quincy Hall Of Fame

The Quincy High School Presidents Basketball Alumni Association will induct 25 players ranging from the 1920s to the 1970s into the Quincy High Basketball Hall-of-Fame Tuesday, May 23 at the Bryan VFW Post, 24 Broad Street, Quincy. A social hour at 6 p.m. will be followed by dinner at 7.

The banquet will honor these former players for their outstanding contributions to Quincy High basketball and their continuing contributions to their community.

Also honored will be this year's high school team, which had its best season in several years under coach John Franceschini.

"This will give the alumni, their families and friends a chance to share a very special evening together and visit with old friends and teammates," said Guido 'Budsy' Pettinelli of the Hall-of-Fame committee. "At the same time, the Alumni Club will be making a contribution to the boys' basketball program at Quincy High School."

The following will be the first inductees into the Hall-of-Fame:

1920-1929: Ellie Hughes and the late Robert 'Bones' Greenhalgh.

1930-39: Vic DiGravio, Eddie Dunn, George Page, the late Jackie Pettinelli, John Joyce, the late Fred DeSantis and Ralph Graham.

Page, Pettinelli, Joyce, DeSantis and Graham were Quincy's famed Granite Chips.

1940-49: George Burke, coach John Killelea and late Coach Munroe MacLean.

1960-69: Coach Marty Finnegan, Paul Fitzpatrick, Paul Beston, Frank Driscoll and Billy Nolan.

The Hall-of-Fame committee includes Pettinelli (472-6991). present Quincy Coach Franceschini (786-8753 or 773-6852) and former coaches, Finnegan (786-8782), Amorisino (848-4136) and Rick DiChristofaro (335-4146).

Tickets are $20 per person and those seeking tickets should send a check payable to the QHS Basketball Alumni Club to Guido Pettinelli, 40 Hardwick Road, Quincy 02169 with their name, year of graduation and address.

Neponset Road Race May 6

The CYO of St. Ann's Neponset, will conduct a five-kilometer (3.1 miles) road race Saturday, May 6, at 10 a.m. There also will be a five-kilometer walking event.

Registration fee is $6 before May 1 and $8 after that. Registration will take place until 9:15 the morning of the race in St. Ann's School Hall.

Applications can be picked up at St. Ann's Rectory or by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to St. Ann's Rectory, 243 Neponset Ave., Neponset 02122, attention of Road Race.

Braintree Choral Society Concert At Point Congregational

Braintree Choral Society will present its final concert of the 1988-1989 season Sunday at 4 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

Featured will be masterworks "Mass in F" (Franz Schubert; Mass for Four Voices by William Byrd; "Hallelujah" "(Judas Maccabeus" by G.F. Handel; "Choose Something Like a Star" from Frostiana by Randall Thompson; and "Hear My Prayer" with soloist, Laurel McKenzie, soprano.

Larry R. Kamp is the conductor and Timothy Hughes is guest organist.

Mrs. MacKenzie has performed other solos with BCS, and presently she is a soloist with the First Presbyterian Church, Quincy. Last year, she sang a full program at the Fort Square Church, called "Let Go, and Let God," a program of worship and song. Most recently, she was the soloist at the Easter Sunrise Service in Quincy.

Kamp, a native of Ohio was appointed music director of BCS in 1987. He is Director of Music and organist at the First Congregational in Revere, and is also Music and Chapel director at the North Shore Christian Church in Lynn, Mass. He received his Bachelor of Music degree from Houghton College, and his Master of Sacred Music degree from Boston University. He is now a member of the B.U. faculty. He has studied organ with Max Miller and Marion Ruhl Metson; harpsichord with Mark Kroll, and choral conducting with Donald Bailey and Thomas Dunn. Mr. Kamp has served as guest conductor for orchestras and choruses in Massachusetts and New York.

Hughes, assistant to Max Miller at Boston University has played for BCS before.

Tickets at $5 for adults and $4 for seniors and students may be obtained from any member of BCS and at the door April 30. Donations to BCS are welcome and may be sent to Genevieve Titus, 23 Olefson St., Braintree.

'Red Scorpion' Stings With Action But...

"Red Scorpion" directed by Joseph Zito
Starring Dolph Lundgren and E. Emmet Walsh
Now playing at Entertainment Cinemas Quincy Fair Mall

By JANE ARENA

"Red Scorpion," a Rambo-esque film starring Dolph Lundgren, the blonde, towering brick wall who made his name in "Rocky IV," is predictable at best.

It's the latest in a line of anti-Soviet films about a man-of-steel killing machine who single-handedly demolishes the bad guys in the name of freedom and democracy.

This time the action (and there is a lot of it), takes place in Africa, and the guns (and tanks, and grenades, and bombs, etc.) are aimed at the communist-backed Cubans who are oppressing the African people and plotting to kill their rebel leader, Sundata. Enter our man-of-steel.

In "Red Scorpion" though, there is a twist — this particular killing machine is a Russian Army lieutenant named Nikolai.

Predictably, it's not long before our hero changes his loyalties and we discover that his true alliance is to the African rebels and not the communist oppressors.

Or is it?

After rescuing an African rebel and a foul-mouthed, Russian-hating American journalist from prison, defending them in a chase that has more explosions than you can shake an ouzi at, and leading them safely back to their headquarters where Sundata is waiting, Nikolai reluctantly makes an attempt on the leader's life.

The attempt, however, fails, and Sundata sends our hero, chained and broken, back to the Soviet Army as a symbol of rebel strength.

The viewer though can't help wondering how this bullet-dodging, head-bashing, machine gun toting, grenade-launching killing machine could possibly be foiled by a single bespectacled rebel leader, who, we imagine, isn't much more than a political icon to begin with. We never know because we never see it.

Presumably, we are meant to believe that Nikolai didn't put up a fight because he truly sides with the African cause. But, when he's tortured by suspecting Russians and Cubans in the next scene, his national pride is so hurt that he escapes vowing to complete his mission.

His alliance shifts again though, and for good this time, when he meets up with an aging Bushman doctor who heals him, hunts with him, befriends him, and teaches him, without the use of language, the scope of African suffering and African pride.

It is this relationship which, in its sublety and near silence, sets "Red Scorpion" apart from other films in the genre. Visually, the scenes are downright beautiful, and the mismatched pair are endearing and intriguing. It is disappointing though, when the two part company too soon and the viewer is left with the thought that this should have been the entire focus of the film.

All in all though, the attention of these scenes serve to offset — and even make more palatable — all the bullets, blood and propagandist drivvel which make up the remainder of the film.

Carnival For De Vanna Center

The Dianne DeVanna Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect will hold a benefit carnival at the Braintree Drive-In Theater grounds, across from South Shore Plaza, from Tuesday, May 2 through Sunday May 14.

The hours will be Tuesday through Friday 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from noon to 11 p.m.

Admission and parking are free.

The location was donated by the Flatley Company and the carnival is being presented by Fiesta Shows. All proceeds will benefit the Dianne DeVanna Center.

Grandchildren's Day At Town Brook House

Grandchildren's Day was held recently by residents of Town Brook House at 45 Brackett St., Quincy.

"Sunshine the Clown," presented a program, painted faces of all interested, and passed out balloons.

Homebaked goodies baked by residents followed.

Flower Show May 6 At National Fire Protection Assn.

"Earth, Wind and Fire" is the theme for a Standard Flower Show to be staged in Quincy by the South Shore District of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts.

The show will be held at the National Fire Protection Building off Willard St. in Quincy Saturday, May 6, from 12:30 noon to 5:30 p.m. Donation is $5. Tickets are available from local Garden Club members and will be sold at the door.

Proceeds from the Flower Show will be given to the South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell, now in the midst of a building campaign to enlarge their facilities and their programs.

Mrs. Doris Delagi of the Sharon Garden Club, South Shore District Director, has chosen this project to benefit from the club activity.

WEEK OF: April 27

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You are extremely perceptive, able to assess a situation quickly and thoroughly. This ability can be put to positive use in both domestic and career spheres; the key, however, is to be more self-confident. Several turns in career path straighten out by Fall, and a series of prestigious assignments then follows.

AQUARIUS – January 21 - February 19
Careful assessment required before making decisions on travel--and traveling companion. Joint efforts bring rewards for a communitiy undertaking. Small monetary gain may be on tap after weekend.

PISCES – February 20 - March 20
Casual comments are taken more seriously than you realize, so weigh all your remarks, expecially prior to weekend. Personal relationship is on a much steadier course thanks to your recent effots.

ARIES – March 21 - April 20
Thursday-Friday are favorable for taking complaints and suggestions to a person in authority. Weekend activities blend your interests with partner's--and offer something new and special for both.

TAURUS – April 21 - May 22
Thursday-Saturday proves favorable for expanding your extracurricular activities, with the emphases on fitness and recreation. Monday-Tuesday focus on financial planning as well as offbeat travel.

GEMINI – May 23 - June 21
Information arriving before the weekend relates to upcoming visits and visitors. Saturday is favorable for competitions--physical or intellectual. Small windfall may blow your way after Monday.

CANCER – June 22 - July 22
Week's theme is boosted prestige, as non-monetary gains come your way from Friday on. In romance, avoid making a basically simple problem into something complex. Monday finds you championing pet cause.

LEO – July 23 - August 22
Everyday events seem just a little more complex, so allow added time for routine chores. Good week for tending to such personal details as wardrobe shopping. Libra may be entering the friendship sphere.

VIRGO – August 23 - September 22
Combination of circumstances may lead to job advancement by Tuesday-Wednesday. The key is to follow up on all leads. Thanks to your recent efforts, adult friend at last shows signs of maturity.

LIBRA – September 23 - October 22
Spring fever leads to creative energies. If you can only harness them, you could produce a song, story, painting, etc., that's rather special. Children of all ages are benefiting from your concern.

SCORPIO – October 23 - November 21
Prestigious community assignment may be yours for the asking, but decide carefully whether in fact you want to ask. Weekend offers opportunities for careful and clever antique sleuths.

SAGITTARIUS – November 22 - December 22
Your innovative ideas help you conclude a project with a flourish; but in human relationships your find that a tried-and-true approach brings results. Interfering 'outsider' steps out of the picture.

CAPRICORN – December 23 - January 20
Your insights and follow-up actions may help avoid a dommestic conflict. Don't hesitate to question the words of money advisers. Workwise, be super observant to current trends.

Ch. 3 Telethon To Benefit AARP Memorial Scholarship

Quincy Community Television will host a benefit telethon for the American Association of Retired Persons Saturday, April 29 beginning at 1 p.m. on Ch. 3.

Money raised will go towards the Barbara I. Nash Scholarship, the AARP's scholarship fund.

The fund, started a year ago to honor the memory of Barbara I. Nash, is for Quincy High School students who enter a registered nurse program in college.

Brian Buckley and John Noonan will co-host the telethon and Baron Hugo will host the entertainment portion of the telecast.

Among the guests to be interviewed are Helen Tierney, state director of AARP; Mayor Francis McCauley, Mark Mundy, director of Quincy Hospital; representatives from Quincy Junior Colleges Nursing Program; city officials and other guests from the nursing community.

The telethon will feature guests in person and on tape and include entertainment segments with local talent twice every hour.

City officials will assist a large volunteer group in answering telephones.

People are welcome to come to the Quincy Community Television Studio, 81 School St., and donate in person.

Nicholas Barbadoro 'Newsmakers' Guest On Ch. 3

Norfolk County Clerk of Courts Nicholas Barbardoro is this week's guest on Quincy Community Television's "Newmakers" program to air tonight (Thursday) at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 3.

The program will be repeated Tuesday at 6 p.m.

This week's host is John Noonan. The three panelists are Bob Bosworth from The Quincy Sun; Herb Fontaine from WJDA radio; and Eric Schwarz from The Patriot Ledger.

"Newsmakers" is a public affairs program which brings those who make the news with those who report the news. This informational program brings interesting people and local issues to Quincy Community Television.

Mayoral Candidates On Ch. 3

The Quincy League of Women Voters will present a program entitled "So You Want To Be Mayor?" to question Quincy mayoral candidates, on Thursday, April 27 on Quincy Community Television, Channel 3 from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

A panel of League members will pose questions on housing, education, health care, civil rights and other issues of concern to Quincy residents.

All of the candidates have agreed to appear on the program. Several League members will hold house parties to watch the show and respond to the issues presented.

QHA Mentally Ill Residence Opened

The Quincy Housing Authority and the South Shore/Coastal Area Office of the Department of Mental Health were scheduled to hold an opening celebration of the community residence constructed with funds from the Executive Office of Communities and Development Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at 269 Water St., Quincy.

The facility will house 12 mentally ill clients who will be supervised by live-in staff.

McCauley Firm On No More Money For Police Dept.

(Cont'd from Page 1)

They believe the officers have helped the city make great strides in crime fighting, especially in the war on drugs.

Finn noted that 92 percent of all major crime committed in Quincy is either drug or alcohol related. Moreover, since Proposition 2½ was voted in, the Quincy Police Department has lost 28 officers.

"The police department has taken it on the chin in terms of cuts. (The specialty unit) isn't a luxury. It's a necessity," Cheney said.

Commenting on the job the drug officers do, Finn said, "These people work on the streets to approach those who sell drugs to youngsters, some are as young as 10 years old."

The chief also said all the specialty officers are "integral parts of a modern, smooth running police department, including training, drug, investigative, crime prevention and DARE officers.

"These are not 'extra' frills that we can only sometimes afford," Finn added.

The chief also said the drug officers are important to the department because they help supply information for arrest warrants.

Cheney said the reassignment will cause the city's war on crime and drugs to go backwards.

"I fear that there will be an increase in drug activity. "We're going to go backwards. We're going to have housebreaks. We're going to have violence and I think that's a shame," he said.

Cheney also called the city's war on drugs an investment for children and all of Quincy's residents, noting that the drug officers have uncovered nine handguns.

He also stated that studies show that for every dollar spent on prevention, five or six dollars are saved.

By not funding the shortfall, Cheney said "We're being penny wise but pound foolish."

The department is financially strapped because there is a shortfall in the overtime account and summer vacation period will soon start.

According to Finn, all officers are required to take a vacation sometime during June through September. Since the department uses a one-car patrol system, an officer must fill in for a vacationing officer on an overtime basis.

As for revamping the one-car system, Finn said that would not save the department money this year.

He also said the system is effective because it increases police visibility in the city.

"Our first line of defense has to be patrol. You have to be able to respond and react," he said.

Applicant Told To Meet With Sheets, Residents

By JANE ARENA

In an informal hearing concerning the proposed opening of a "Boston Chicken" take-out restaurant at 642 Adams St., the Quincy License Board Tuesday said that the applicant should formally apply for the license after meeting with Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets and the residents of the area.

Harvey E. Lazarus, President of the Massachusetts Equity Capital Corporation, Sea St., the intended owner of the Boston Chicken franchise, told the board he had been in contact with Sheets and that he agreed to a community meeting on the matter.

Thomas Largey, attorney for Lazarus, told the board the Boston Chicken restaurant would be modeled after the original Boston Chicken which is operated in Newtonville.

Charles Vlassakis of the Quincy Health Department, sitting with the board in the absence of Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue who is on vacation, noted that the Quincy Board of Health had been in contact with the Board of Health in Newton on the matter and that no health-related problems were found concerning the Boston Chicken restaurant in Newtonville.

Atty. Largey also noted that the Newtonville location is similar in its residential quality to the proposed Quincy site and that no problems or complaints had been issued.

The board noted that an application for a Chinese restaurant at the site had been denied by the board due to neighborhood concerns of odors, debris, and traffic problems.

"We're aware of the previous application," Largey said, "and of the problems brought up at that time."

Largey told the board Boston Chicken would likely cause less of a problem than a Chinese restaurant for many reasons.

"A Chinese restaurant has very distinctive odors," he said, "and residents were opposed to that coming into their neighborhood." He noted that neighboring residents in Newtonville had no complaints about odor because most of the food is cooked at a remote location (in Brookline Village) and brought to the store daily for retail sale. He explained that rotisserie chicken would be the only food cooked on premises.

Largey also assured the board that a professional company would be employed to deal with trash and refuse.

Largey said that parking would be less of a problem than with a chinese restaurant because the establishment will be take-out and that its peak hours of operation will be in the late afternoon or evening.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey said that he was committed to the residents of the area not to vote for or against anything until a neighborhood meeting had been held and the concerns of residents noted.

Jackie Quirk, on behalf of Councillor Sheets, said that he had offered to arrange a neighborhood meeting on the matter, and that he would notify the board after such a meeting had taken place.

The board asked that the application be formally submitted at that time.

6 Police Officers To Receive Dana Award

Six police officers from the South Shore will receive the Robert P. Dana Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement at the Quincy District Court's annual Law Day ceremony Friday, April 28 at 9 a.m.

The award, named in honor of a Metropolitan Police Officer who died in the line of duty, is presented by the court each year.

Recipients will be Lt. Detective Donald Murphy of Braintree Police; Officers John Lank, Michael Devin and Richard Mearn of Milton Police and State Troopers Robert Blazuk and Jon Maloney.

Lt. Detective Murphy will be honored for his apprehension of a group of bank robbers at the South Shore Plaza last October.

Patrolmen Devin and Mearn of Milton are being honored for their work over the past six years as patrol partners in East Milton.

Over the last year, their joint efforts have resulted in the successful clearance of approximately 150 burglaries in the Greater Boston area.

Officer Lank is being honored for his apprehension of armed robbery suspects on two different occasions last April and last July.

Troopers Blazuk and Maloney will be honored for apprehending an escaped prisoner and preventing his suicide near the Raytheon plant in Quincy in March.

New Program Underway

Paper Recycling Success Depends On Residents

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The key to the city's new paper recycling program is resident participation, city officials said during a kick off ceremony outside City Hall Monday.

Mayor Francis McCauley and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, surrounded by several dozen school children as well as many boxes and bags of soon-to-be recycled paper, said the success of the program depends on the number of residents who participate.

By recycling newspapers, magazines and periodicals, the city will cut down on its trash hauling expense and also do its share for a cleaner environment.

"This is a program that the city can be proud of," said Chretien, the city's recycling chairman. "We're taking one large step towards handling our trash in a way that's going to be environmentally sustainable."

To highlight the important of the program, Chretien said the city will save $100,000 if 4,000 tons of paper are collected this year.

"That's our goal," Chretien said, adding that this is a conservative estimate.

On Monday, the first day of the program, 17,240 pounds of paper were collected from residents in Houghs Neck and Germantown.

A spokesperson from BFI, the city's trash hauler and now recycling firm, said the first day in Quincy's recycling history was "pretty good."

"A lot of people had (their paper) out," she said.

The recycling program began at 6:10 a.m. when the mayor made the first donation to a blue and white BFI truck with words "Quincy Recycles" on the side. He handed over three grocery bags full of newspaper.

See Pick-Up Schedule Page 32

Also contributing on the first day were several dozen students from the Central Middle School. They boxed, bagged and then helped dump the paper into the truck parked outside City Hall for the ceremony.

Beside participation, the spreading of the recyling message by school children will also be instrumental in the program's success, officials said.

Chretien said school students need to make their parents, friends and neighbors aware of the program.

Noting that the effort to educate citizens will continue the next several months, Chretien said, "I expect this to be a highly successful program."

Up until Monday, paper products along with the rest of the city's trash had been transported to the West Quincy landfill or more recently, to landfills outside the city. Furthermore, the cost to haul the trash out of Quincy has been rising steadily and dramatically in recent years.

Part of the reason for the paper recycling program is to remove paper from the city's trash, thereby reducing the amount of waste hauled away from Quincy.

The city's trash hauling expense is determined by how many tons of waste are collected annually. By reducing tonnage, the city will save money.

Residents who have curbside trash collection should participate in the program. The program applies to homeowners of buildings with four or fewer dwelling units.

The city urges all residents to separate newspapers and magazines from their trash. They should be stacked not more than 12 inches high and placed in doubled paper brown grocery bags or tied with twine. Plastic bags and wire should not be used since these materials cannot be recycled with paper.

Besides saving tax dollars, the recycling program will also help the environment.

"We want to show the people of Massachusetts and the people of the United States that this is the way to go about handling your environmental problems," Chretien said.

"I ask you to do this for yourself, as taxpayers, anyone who is concerned about the quality of our air, our water and our soils should do this," he added.

Chretien also said he hopes the recyling program will be expanded next year, perhaps regionally to include bottles, cans and plastics.

A decision to start a leaf composting program in the fall will be made in a few months.

Cheney Lone Supporter

Council Shoots Down Excise Tax On Motels

Citing fairness in particular, the City Council voted 8-1 Monday against imposing a four percent excise tax on hotels, lodging houses and motels in Quincy.

Dissenting in the vote was Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney. Cheney said he was in favor of the tax as a means to raise revenue for city departments presently in need, such as police.

Originally introduced by Mayor Francis McCauley last spring, Cheney reintroduced it in light of a $250,000 shortfall in the police overtime account.

As a result of the shortfall, Police Chief Francis Finn reassigned nine specialty officers to the street, including two drug officers, last week.

Cheney reintroduced the measure in an attempt to raise money for the police department and thus return at least two of the officers to the street.

Based on fiscal 1987 receipts of the city's four motels, the four percent tax would have generated nearly $77,000. Only a few small motels are located in Quincy, including President's City, Quincy Bay Inn and Eddie's Motel Lodge.

Although some councillors agreed that the police department and other departments, namely the school system, need more money, they said the hotel tax was not the proper avenue.

A majority of councillors also said it is not right to tax a specific area and earmark the money for a specific cause.

"I think it's unfair," said Council President Patricia Toland. "As much as we want to generate additional revenue, we have to be considerate to the small business people."

Other councillors also expressed their disatisfaction with the idea.

"I think this is a small business tax," said Councillor Timothy Cahill. It's much too much selective. It's really not correct for us to raise specific taxes to fund specific taxes."

Councillor Stephen McGrath said, "I have a problem earmarking a specific tax for a specific purpose. "I support your goal but I think it sets a bad precedent.

"I don't think it's right for two or three small hotels to fund a shortfall in the city's police department," McGrath added.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley also said the tax could have set a "dangerous precedent."

"This is not the way our government is set up. Besides being wrong, it's not fair to pick on one industry," Nutley

'A Pretty Sharp Little Guy'

6-Year Old Calmly Handles Emergency

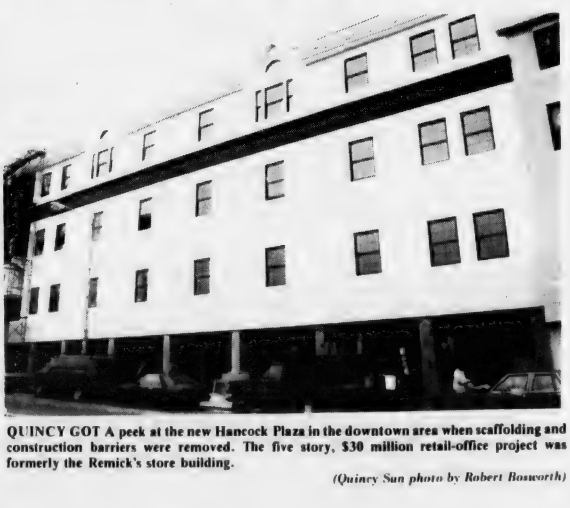
By JANE ARENA

According to Lincoln-Hancock School Principal Dennis Carini, six year old kindergarten student, Ryan McCarthy, is "a pretty sharp little guy."

Not too many people would argue with that.

Last week, Ryan was a regular hero when he calmly handled an emergency at home and averted a possible tragedy.

Ryan, a student at the school's afternoon session, was at home last Friday morning when his three year old brother, Collin and his grandmother Dorothy West, when his grandmother tripped over the family dog and broke her hip.



Ryan's parents were both at work at the time, and he took matters calmly into his own hands by dialing 911, explaining the situation, and giving his correct address to the police.

When the police sent the ambulance to the wrong house, (17 instead of 70 Kent St.), Ryan called them back and informed them of their mistake.

Meanwhile, at the school, Ryan's older brother, Garret, a first grader, became ill and the school called the McCarthy's home to have him sent home.

Ryan informed office aide, Evelyn Crews, that she could not speak to an adult because the police and fire fighters were presently taking his grandmother to the hospital in an ambulance.

Animal Shelter Opens

MAYOR FRANCIS McCAULEY cuts the ribbon to officially open the city's new animal shelter of Broad St. during a ceremony Tuesday. Among the many officials that attended the ceremony are, from left, John McDuff, president of the Quincy Animal League, Michael Wheelwright of the department of Public Works, Councillor Timothy Cahill, Deputy Commissioner of Public Works David Colton and Councillor Ted DeCristofaro.

CHELSEA, a three-year old female doberman, was one of the guests at Tuesday's dedication ceremony for the city's new animal shelter. Owned by Ann Sava, formerly of Quincy, Chelsea approved of the new facility and carried the message "Thank You for a Clean New Shelter." Sava is a member of the Quincy Animal League and the South Shore Humane Society.

License Extension Granted To Sell Beer, Wine Outside

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Ann Barrett and Geraldine M. McEacher of Fruits of Hawaii, 500 Victory Rd., for a three-day extension of their license to sell beer and wine outside of their establishment during the Northeast Boating Expo at Marina Bay, Friday through Sunday, May 5-7.

The board noted that no complaints had ever been received concerning the establishment.

The board granted the request with two stipulations: The area outside the shop where the beer and wine will be sold and consumed must be roped off so that customers do not leave the immediate area with alcoholic beverages. The board also stipulated that Sunday's hours must be after 1 p.m. in compliance with the city's Sunday alcohol laws.

As there will also be food sold at the event, by both Fruits of Hawaii and by Amelia's restaurant, the health department must also approve the menu and the method of preparation of the food to be sold.

Chamber Business After Hours Session May 17

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will hold a business after hours network session Wednesday, May 17 at Massachusetts Bay Lines, Hingham Shipyard commuter docks, Route 3A, Hingham. There will be a 5 to 6 p.m. dockside reception and a 6 to 8 p.m. cruise on the M/V Freedom.

Reservations are $5 for members and $10 for non-members. Call 479-1111 for reservations.

Asian-Pacific Heritage Week

This week has been proclaimed "Asian-Pacific Heritage Week" by Mayor Francis McCauley, the first city-wide celebration of its kind in the greater Boston area.

According to McCauley, the event marks the 10th anniversary of when President Jimmy Carter designated the first week of May, Asian-Pacific Heritage Week.

"Today, Asian Americans number over 60,000 in the greater Boston area, yet knowledge of their history and culture in, and their contributions to this country is virtually unknown," the mayor said.

"As Mayor of Quincy, I would like to congratulate the Asian American Resource Workshop and other Asian American communities in their making this event an important educational experience for all of us," McCauley said.

McCauley Optimistic Milken Will Deliver On Shipyard Vow

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A junk bond trader's promise to help reopen a portion of the General Dynamics shipyard for marine purposes is a "positive move," Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday.

Last week, while speaking at the annual gathering of shipyard workers in Rockland, junk bond trader Michael R. Milken told the workers that the $17.5 million they need is not a problem. He said the he and the firm that is firing him, Drexel Burnham Lambert, will help raise the money needed to revive shipbuilding and repair work at the shipyard.

Milken, indicted last month on charges of insider stock trading, fraud and racketeering, created the "junk bond." The bond is a vehicle for thousands of smaller, struggling companies to raise money on the world's financial markets.

He told the workers that it will be easy for him to secure the millions of dollars in start-up capital and performance bonds needed to finance an employee-owned shipbuilding and repair operation.

For three years, a group of shipbuilders, who formed the corporation Massachusetts Shipbuilders Inc., have tried to secure the needed revenue to reestablish shipbuilding at the yard.

Flanked by Peter Gwyn, president of the shipbuilder's corporation, and Arthur Durand, executive secretary of local 5 and the shipbuilders union, Milken then said, "By June 30, the money will be lined up for the year."

Furthermore, Milken said the "easy job" will be getting the money during the next two months. He then said he is looking forward to the first project in October.

Surprised by the development, McCauley also said he is optimistic that Milken can help the shipworkers obtain their goal.

"I was surprised by (his announcement.) To restablish in Quincy that was a positive move," McCauley said.

"It would be good to get a certain amount of land at the shipyard for shipbuilding. It's a step forward," the mayor said.

McCauley acknowledged that there are several more steps that need to be taken before a return of shipbuilding becomes a reality.

"There are a lot of things to do because you have to start all over again," he said.

The mayor also pointed out that there is not a big market for building new ships today. Therefore, the workers will probably have to focus on repair work.

Milken's vow to help the workers reopen the yard adds another dimension to the possible revival story. Although he had pledged to help them, Milken finds himself the subject of the largest securities fraud investigation in U.S. history.

Earlier this year, he was charged with 98 counts of securities fraud, insider trading and racketeering. He faces fines of $5.5 billion and up to 520 years in jail.

What has he managed to do during his career on Wall St.?

In 1978, he was began changing corporate America by ushering in an unprecedented era of corporate mergers, takeovers, and leveraged buyouts.

In 1987, he earned $550 million.

Now, Milken says he and the firm that is firing him, Drexel Burnham and Lambert, will help raise the money needed to revive shipbuilding at the Fore River Shipyard.

He said he would help with the shipbuilding venture, but the role he will play is unclear.

According to Drexel officials, Milken was instrumental in putting together the firm's commitment. However, Drexel Vice President Pat Flanagan has said Milken will have no official involvement in the future.

Drexel severed ties with Milken April 13 as a result of a suit brought by the Securities Exchange Commission. The settlement is awaiting final approval by a federal judge.

McCauley said Milken's disassociation with the firm is another reason to call the most recent shipyard revival development a "step forward."

"It's certainly a positive move," he said.

Shellfish Digging Permits To Be Issued In April Only

The City Council revised the city's shellfish management and regulation plan Monday by reducing the time when permits can be issued.

As approved, all master diggers, subordinate diggers and transportation agents must procure a city of Quincy shellfish license during April. Issuance of city permits to dig shellfish will begin April 1 and close April 30.

Permits issued after this 30 day period will only be allowed after a majority vote of a five person panel made up of three licensed diggers, one master digger and the shellfish constable.

Previously, all three diggers were allowed to obtain a license on a yearly basis.

Also, no master digger may allow a subordinate digger to dig for him without proof of city and state license to harvest clams in mildly contaminated areas.

Failure to adhere to this regulation may cause suspension of the permit.

There are between 50 and 60 diggers in Quincy.

Chester Bragg, representing the city's diggers, said the change is supported by Quincy diggers.

Lodging House License Transfer Request Continued

The License Board Tuesday continued for one week a hearing on a request from Leo Martin, Jr. of Martin Realty company, for the transfer of a lodging house license at 98-102 Bigelow St. as formerly held by Donald Berman.

Martin told the board that he has already purchased the house and that he has been operating it for over a month because he was unaware of the need for the official license transfer with the board.

He also told the board that the 11-room, one-apartment building had undergone the necessary inspections for the renewal of the license. He said that he has plans to install the sprinkler system which is now required in all lodging houses as well.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien told the board that he has never received complaints about the lodging house in the time he has been representing the ward.

The board continued the hearing for one week to give Councillor Chretien time to arrange a meeting with neighboring residents.

30-hour Harley Madness Friday & Saturday, May 5&6

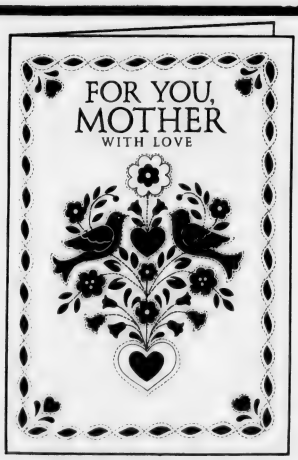
IT'S SPRUNG.

The New Harley-Davidson® Springer® Softail.

Spring front suspension returns to a production motorcycle for the first time in 40 years, with the new Springer® Softail. The style is historic. But the ride—through thousands of computer hours and aerospace-rated components—belongs very much to the present day.

A warning, though: if you'd like to spring on one yourself, you'd better do it soon. Because as you can imagine, they're jumping right out of the dealership.

Things Are Different On A Harley.



Come celebrate
Cycle Craft's 30th Anniversary with 30 hours of Around-the-clock Harley Madness beginning Friday morning and ending Saturday evening.

Free Skin Cancer Screenings At Quincy Hospital

Quincy Hospital will once again offer Skin Cancer Detection Clinics this spring. The clinics, staffed by dermatologists, are timed to coincide with the outset of the warm summer months, when many people unknowingly risk potentially harmful overexposure to the sun.

The free skin cancer screenings will be available Thursday, May 18, and again on Thursday, May 25, from 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in the hospital's Ambulatory Care Department. Although the clinic examination is being offered free of charge as a community service of the hospital, pre-registration for an appointment is required.

"Early detection is crucial in the treatment of skin cancer," notes George Blumental, M.D., director of dermatology at QH. "Most types of skin cancer are curable. The clinics will provide evaluations that can be helpful in preventing more serious problems. Anyone who has a sore that does not heal, a suspicious wart, mole, or lesion that changes color or shape, or an unusual skin growth should plan to attend one of the two clinic sessions."
